FRED MORRISON WOUNDED IN BATTLE

Mrs. M. Peterson of 2102 Jefferson avenue has received a most interesting letter from her son Fred Morrison who is with the 1st Gas Regiment in France. Fred enlisted with the 30th Engineers December 10, 1917 and was in training at Fort Meyer, Va., until June, 1918, and has been in active service in France since July of the present year.

"Dearest Mother—Just a few lines to let you know that I am still alive and well, and have not forgotten you. I have been looking for a letter from you every day, but it seems all in vain. I have not had a letter for three months. I hope this finds you well and happy.

"I just got back from the front where we have been doing some very heavy fighting. The Boches fight good ten or twelve miles off but when it comes to hand to hand fighting the Sammies are a thousand times better. I saw one sadly wounded Sammie bringing in eight Boche prisoners the morning I came down.

"A few nights ago another soldier and I were sleeping under a tree when old Fritz started to shell that locality and we jumped up and ran for a dug-out and just as we did he hit the tree and cut it off about a foot from the ground. My bed is still under it. I also got gassed the same night but it was not serious, just a couple of little burns. Little things like that are common occurrences up at the front.

"I only wish I were allowed to tell you more about it for I am sure it would be interesting reading, but I will have to wait until I return home which will be the day of my life. I do not think it will be so very long for we are giving the Fritzies just about all we can stand and then some. How is everything in Ogden? I met Harry Phillips, he is sure a nice fellow. A few days after I met him he got wounded with a piece of shrapnel but do not think it was bad.

"I am staying in what was once a nice town, but it is mostly in ruins, and it has been abandoned for four years. A few of the people that used to live here are coming back, poor souls. It is the only place they have, and besides it is home, and that is everything.

"Well, dear, I must close, with love. Your loving son, FRED MORRISON.

Austrian People Rise and Salute Allied Prisoners

TRIESTE, Wednesday, Nov. 13.—Improvement in the situation in the interior of Austria is reported. Almost everywhere the population is being kept in hand by the authorities and it is believed that further excesses will be avoided. It is reported that allied prisoners everywhere are permitted to walk the streets in their own uniforms. When they enter a public place the people invariably rise and salute them. At the moment of departure from the internment camp some of the Americans hoisted the Stars and Stripes and the people cheered for President Wilson. The prisoners explained this changed attitude as reaction against Germany, all the Austrians considering that the Germans were the cause of their disaster.

The former Austrian emperor and empress probably will reside in a town on the Swiss shore of Lake Constance until peace has been signed.

REVENUE TAXES NOT TO BE CUT BELOW PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Uncertainty of future government expenditures and of policies for curtailment of war production makes it advisable in the opinion of treasury officials, that the taxes under the pending revenue bill, be not reduced materially below the $6,250,000,000 carried by the measure as drafted in the senate. Secretary McAdoo has prepared a survey of the government's financial situation as affected by the termination of hostilities. Most government departments, he found, were not able to forecast what reductions might be made in their previous estimates. This cannot be done satisfactorily, it was explained, until the government's policy of cancelling war contracts is defined.

The treasury now considers it unnecessary, it is said, to raise $8,000,000,000 by taxation on this year's business, as provided by the revenue bill passed by the house. Since the senate has reduced this amount to about $6,250,000,000 the treasury is inclined to believe that little change should be made in this total.

Many minor revenue sources, such as stamp taxes, and special taxes on different business lines, which are difficult to administration and yield comparatively little revenue, might be abolished without great reduction in the total tax burden.

Whatever sum may be cut off as taxes, treasury officials pointed out, must be raised by issue of bonds. Consequently, the amount which must be forthcoming next year will not be affected.

RE-DISTRICTING U. S. PRISONERS ARE RELEASED

Important Work Being Outlined by National Association of Clubs.

PEORIA, ILL., Nov. 14.—Balloting on the proposals to reclassify and re-district the minor leagues of the country to make the circuits more compact and reduce salary limits occupied the attention of the minor leaguers attending the annual meeting of the National Baseball Leagues here today. The meeting will close tonight.

There was a growing disposition when the meeting was resumed to withhold definite action in regard to baseball next season until the plans of the American and National Leagues are revealed. Thomas M. Chivington, business manager of the Louisville club, and former president of the American Association, was among those who shared the opinion that no definite action for the resumption of the national game in 1919 should be taken for at least three months.

"The peace of the world overshadows everything," Mr. Chivington said, "and until the war situation is cleared, I do not think it would be wise to adopt any legislation for baseball. I shall suggest adjournment of the present convention and holding another meeting probably in January."

M. H. Sexton of Peoria, Ill., president of the National Association, declared himself in favor of postponing definite action. He believes that in the event professional baseball is resumed next season, fewer than half a dozen leagues will take the field.

John H. Farrell of Auburn, N. Y., president of the International League, President Thomas J. Hickey of the American Association and Dan O'Neill, president of the Eastern League, are among the executives favoring baseball for next season. Club owners of the Western League also are planning on entering the field.

William Rourke, owner of the Omaha club of the Western League, is so confident that baseball will re-establish itself that he is willing to pay $50,000 for a franchise in the American Association, providing the franchise is transferred to Omaha.
