OGDEN BOY RELEASED FROM GERMAN CAMP

Gloom and sorrow was removed with a single sweep this morning at the home of Mrs. Emma Haley, when official word from the war department told her that her son Harvey M. Murdock, who has for some time been a prisoner in the German camp, at Rastatt, has been returned to France and is in good health.

Just but a day ago, Mrs. Haley received a letter from Harvey which appeared in Thursday's Standard and although his letter told her that he was well and getting along first rate, there was a doubt in her mind, for the letter was obliged to be carefully and tactfully written in order to avoid any difficulties with the German censors.

However, the news received this morning dispelled all disquieting thoughts, and Mrs. Haley is now waiting patiently to hear that her boy is sailing for the states and home, after what undoubtedly must have been a horrible experience in a German prison camp.

NORTH OGDEN HAS A NEW OUTBREAK OF INFLUENZA

(Special Correspondence) NORTH OGDEN, Dec. 20—The sudden lowering of temperature in the first days of the month found many of the farmers with a lot of unflinched fall plowing on their hands. Fortunately, however, the mild weather following has made it possible to practically get it all finished up.

The flu situation in North Ogden claimed its first victim two months ago in the person of one of the most honored mothers, Mrs. Charles N. Barker, October 17, when, which time the town has been subjected to a churchless and schoolless period unprecedented in the history of the town. After having over 100 cases or 10 per cent of the town, we felt a week ago that we were nearing the point of elimination, but now we are confronted with a new outbreak, reaching into quite a number of families, including some serious cases, one of whom, Lanny Warren, has been taken to an Ogden hospital.

Howard C. Little son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. and Martha Poulson Lindford, born 15th, died 16th inst., was buried Thursday in the North Ogden cemetery after services were held at the home on city limits street, under the direction of Bishop Wilford W. Rawson of the Eighth ward, at which he and Elijah A. Larkin were the speakers.

Elihu H. Warren, Frederick Barker, John M. Bailey, John H. Brown, Joseph Chadwick, Fred W. Ellis, John M. Larson, James Alma Montgomery, Edmund J. Marshall, Heber J. Randall, James Roylance, Thomas B. Stordall and Lorenzo Ward have been drawn for jury service from this place for 1919.

The thousands of tons of sugar beets dumped near the track here are now rapidly being diminished by the large force of men and teams employed in loading them into the cars for the factory, and the last of them will soon find their way to the "slicer" and start on their mission of adding to the world supply of sugar, soon.

In a regular contribution to the World Press from London on war conditions with citations of bravery, special mention is made of the three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Holmes of this place, Raymond Milton, Ronald Francis and Paul Dewey. Raymond M. had lost his life July 25th from wounds received in action, while making a vigorous drive on the enemy. Ronald F. had been given advancement in the navy and had won distinction in dropping depth bombs and had been transferred to a newly built destroyer. Dewey had been given additional honors as quartermaster, being placed in full charge of all the gas and oil that went to the front.

Return of Leon F. Berrett from Camp Joseph E. Johnston in Florida is awaited, based on a telegram received by his father, Richard E. Berrett.

A number of families who had sons probably engaged in the titanic struggle of the last few days before the signing of the armistice have been made happy on receipt of word dated after that eventful November 11th.

William L. Blaylock, writing to his parents, says: "The war is now over and I have come through practically unscathed and while my health is not so good, I think when I get back and breathe the good American pure air and have regular old time home cooked food, I will be glad to improve, though I have plenty to eat and a good warm place to stop, but there is no place like home."

The proverbial stork has made a number of visits to the town during the last month, depositing his precious treasures with the families, leaving a son with Mr. and Mrs. Lyman S. Bailey, a daughter with Mr. and Mrs. George N. Roylance; a son with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Orton and a son with Mr. and Mrs. William A. Binford.

Switzerland is in need of food. A serious shortage of food threatens all Switzerland, according to a communication received by the Joint Centenary committee of the Methodist Episcopal church from Bishop John L. Nielsen, stationed at Zurich. "A week ago the salaries of all the state and city officials in Zurich who received less than 5,000 francs were increased 110 per cent," declared Bishop Nielsen. "This measure was submitted to a popular vote and was adopted by a large majority. The public discussion preceding the vote was very illuminating. It was proved by figures that the living expenses have gone up more than 100 per cent. It is exceedingly late to do anything, even by practice."

the most stringent economies. "Almost all the necessities of life are rationed and the rations are very small. Some things cannot be procured at all. We receive only a little more than a quarter of a pound of butter per person a month and not quite a pound of oil or fat. The sugar ration is only one pound. Cereals cannot be bought at any price." Bishop Nielsen has asked the Methodist Episcopal War Council for $20,000 to be used in immediate relief work. A delegation of bishops and other church leaders, which has sailed for Europe, will investigate the needs of Switzerland in connection with those of the warring countries. Approximately $2,500,000 of the $5,000,000 reconstruction budget to be sent by the Methodist Episcopal church in 1919 will go toward relieving distress in Europe.

ATHLETICS AT SCHOOLS

Basketball practice at both the Ogden High school and the Weber Normal college will begin immediately upon the opening up of these institutions, according to school authorities. Much fine material is on hand and both schools are looking forward with much expectation to some exceptional games. Inter-class games are to be encouraged this year as well. In order to make athletics a benefit to a greater number, instead of just those on picked teams, Weber is planning to have several minor teams, which will play various classes. Under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Keys, the girls attending the Weber Normal will receive physical training as well, along some other lines than that of basketball, as this is considered too strenuous.
