JOHN A. HUTCHENS, MEMBER OF OGDEN POLICE FORCE, IS FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED

John A. Hutchens, a member of the Ogden police force for the past twenty-one years, was found dead in his room at his home this morning by his wife. Mr. Hutchens was on duty at the police station yesterday as usual and his death was a shock to his fellow workers. Upon returning to his home last night he complained of having pains through his chest and a local physician was called and after giving an examination stated that there was no need for alarm as the pains were of a general nature.
The family retired and Mr. Hutchens was found dead in his room at 8 o'clock this morning by his wife. Mrs. Hutchens was up early this morning and at 6 o'clock she went to his room but did not enter, thinking that her husband was resting easily.
An examination was made after he was found dead and the physician's report showed that the former patrolman died shortly after 3 o'clock this morning.
Mr. Hutchens was born in Ogden, April 12 1863, the son of William B. and Mary Eliza Stone Hutchens. He was married to Miss Lois Brown, December 25, 1884, and resided in this city practically all of his life.
He was the father of ten children, six of whom are still living. Besides his wife he is survived by the following children: Mrs. Mabel Woodfield, Clara Normand, Irene, Leroy and Harold Hutchens.
Two of the sons, Harold and Normand, served under Old Glory in the world war and only recently returned from the service. Harold was a member of the 145th field artillery, (First Utah), while Normand served in the United States navy. Mr. Hutchens is also survived by one brother and six sisters. Death was due to heart trouble.
During his service with the Ogden police department Mr. Hutchens was one of the most trusted men in the world war and only recently returned from the service. He served for twenty-one years and had a host of friends here. The body is at the Larkin & Sons chapel. Funeral announcement will be made later.

GENERAL MANAGER OF NATIONAL COUNCIL OF DEFENSE ROASTS CONDUCT OF THE OGDEN POLICE

J. Phillip Bird, general manager of the National Council for Industrial Defense, caused a sensation at the meeting of business and professional men at the Hotel Utah last night when he stated that the Ogden chief of police should have been dismissed from service immediately following the trouble a few weeks ago between strikebreakers and union leaders.
Mr. Bird took up the point and expressed in vigorous language his condemnation of such practices as un-American and unbefitting the high plane of American citizenship. He further stated that the government failed in its contract to protect the rights of the men who had paid to be transported to their destination without interruption and with the full protection of the law.
Mr. Bird also stated that he would have a petition so large that a train would be unable to carry it, signed, and he would further see that the Ogden chief of police were removed, had he been a resident of this city.
About sixty Ogden men were in attendance, including Miles Jones, commissioner of public safety. Mr. Jones met with Mr. Bird following the dinner before Judge A. W. Ager. Damages in the sum of $2950 and costs are asked for as the result of the depreciation in this Stephens property and injury to health caused by the operation of a rock crusher at Thirty-third street and Jefferson avenue. The jury which was sworn this morning to try the case was as follows: Timothy Kendall, Martineus Barton, Sanford Harrop, Henry Grow, Alfred Dixon, Thomas H. Ballentyne, Ben F. Garr and John Selman. The case will probably occupy two days' time in court.

ner and asked him where he obtained his information, to which Mr. Bird replied.
James Emery of Washington, together with Stephen Mason of New York, also addressed the gathering.
The following Ogden men were in attendance at the meeting:
Those attending from Ogden included A. J. Hall, D. H. Pape, W. Arthur, A. P. Merrill, W. W. Boyle, I. N. Pierce, W. Fred Bossner, G. A. Nicholas, J. W. Wilcox, W. H. Williams, George Glen, Ralph D. WHAT WEBER COUNTY MAY GAIN BY DRAINAGE PROJECTS SET FORTH BY L. F. KNEIPP

What Weber county may accomplish by co-operation of various drainage projects is the main idea in an article prepared by District Forester L. F. Kneipp of the forest service offices. He was asked to prepare the article, which follows, by officials of the Weber Club:
Utah has on its statute books one of the most progressive and practical drainage laws of any state in the union, a law whose constitutionality has been upheld by the supreme court of the state. Weber county has within its limits 38,000 acres of rich land capable of high production and adapted to intensive cultivation, but temporarily of low production because of lack of adequate drainage. The investing public has large sums of money awaiting investment under the attractive conditions of yield, security of principal, and ready negotiability offered by high grade drainage bonds based upon lands such as those in the vicinity of Ogden. Properly co-ordinated, these three circumstances will give Weber county an opportunity to double her agricultural production, expand her industries, increase her population and enhance the value of her taxable resources. The transformation of 38,000 acres of waterlogged pasture land into an equal area of intensively cultivated land producing sugar beets, truck crops, fruit and alfalfa will be the biggest thing Weber county has ever done and will create an era of unparalleled prosperity and industrial development.
Drainage has proved its worth in other sections of the country and will do so here where every factor is favorable to low costs and high efficiency. The need for the drainage of the lands surrounding Ogden, and the enormous financial and industrial benefits which would accrue, has been recognized for more than 20 years. The subject has been discussed periodically by the Ogden papers and has been the topic of constructive comment by men familiar with the possibilities of drainage work. Unfortunately, the consideration given the subject has been of a general character which left unanswered many questions of vital importance. The area of land in need of drainage and sufficiently valuable to justify the cost of drainage was not accurately determined. There was a question of whether there was sufficient fall to the land to carry off the accumulated waters and whether the necessary outlets could be readily established. There was another question of whether the soil did not contain so high a proportion of salt that its intensive cultivation would be impossible. The known occurrence of quicksand raised another question of the practicability of installing tile drainage without incurring prohibitive costs in keeping the drains free from sand.
The Weber club, and the Weber county farm bureau undertook to secure answers to these questions and have done so. They enlisted cooperation of the Utah Agricultural college and of the bureau of public roads and arranged for a detailed examination of the entire western end of the county by an experienced drainage engineer, who made the necessary surveys, ran the required levels and collected the essential soil samples. The work has just been completed. It has proven that there are 38,000 acres of land upon which drainage will yield a large financial return; that there is sufficient fall to drain all parts of the area; that the necessary outlet ditches can readily be constructed; that upon the greater portion of the area the quantity of salts in the soil is negligible and in no part so high that it cannot be brought within the margin of safety by flushing and proper tillage; that the existence of quicksand will not prohibit the installation of tile drains; and that in general the territory surrounding Ogden offers one of the most favorable opportunities for land reclamation of rich farm lands by drainage that can be found in the west.
The engineer calls attention to the needs of a highly developed farming community now exists. The highways, railroads, fences, irrigation ditches, bridges, telephone lines, towns, schools and other requirements of modern life are already constructed and available to the new families who will occupy and till the drained lands. Drainage alone is all that is required to transform a partially abandoned territory into a land of plenty, of happy homes and good citizenship.

Thirty-eight thousand acres means a thousand families and each family means five people on an average. It means at least one more sugar factory and several more canneries. It means that more of the livestock slaughtered in Ogden can be fattened and finished within sight of the packing plant. These things in turn mean greater mercantile establishments with larger numbers of employees; more professional men; greater business activity; larger banking resources; more people, more schools, more churches; in short it means a bigger and busier and more prosperous Ogden.
The organization of drainage districts under the state law should be given early consideration. Labor and financial conditions are not wholly favorable at this time, but the best preliminary organization of a drainage district under the law; the examinations which must be made by the board of supervisors of the district; and finally the preliminary engineering work all require a great deal of time. The every reason to believe that labor and financial conditions will be satisfactory by the time that labor and money are required for the construction of the drainage projects needed to give Weber county her full development.

Would Place Water Carriers Under Control

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Opposing those features of proposed legislation for railroad legislation which would place water carriers under the control of the interstate commerce commission, W. E. Clark of Seattle, Wash., representing the Pacific Steamship company, today told the house interstate commerce committee such legislation "might result in regulating American shipping into the boneway."
Legislation to benefit water lines, Mr. Clark urged, should permit a free hand in competitive foreign commerce, including Alaska and provision for export and import rates on American rail lines applying only to water freight moved by American ships.

ACCEPTANCE OF TREATY A GOOD BUSINESS MOVE

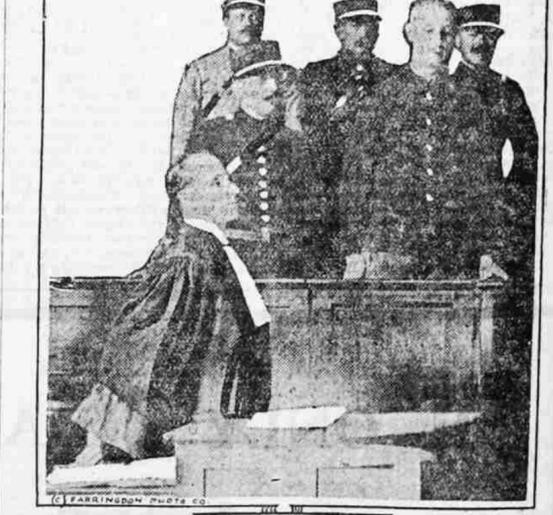

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—Acceptance of the peace treaty as a good business proposition was urged by President Wilson today in an address to San Francisco business men.
He asserted that to refuse membership in the league of nations would be to isolate the United States and to build up a distrust abroad which would be detrimental alike to the nation's political and commercial interests. Making his third and last speech in San Francisco for the peace treaty, Mr. Wilson spoke at a luncheon given by the city's commercial organizations, which was attended by more than 1500 men, who cheered the president and Mrs. Wilson when they entered, and many times interrupted his address to applaud.
What the world demanded, the pres-

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD BOY OF NORTH OGDEN IS RUN DOWN AND KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Frank Lowther, 11 years of age, was fatally injured at 11 o'clock this morning when he was struck by an automobile driven by E. E. Brenkman, of Tremonton, Utah. The accident occurred about a half block north of Five Points, when the little fellow ran out to the street to catch a ride upon an auto truck loaded with logs and going north toward the Martha Home, where the boy was staying, as a ward of the Children's Aid Society. The accident, according to eye witnesses, was unavoidable.
It was stated that Frank, with Lavene Eddy, Elsie Cole and Virginia Allen were enroute to the home from school. They saw a large truck going north and they ran out, from the west side of the street, to catch the truck.

Brenkman was coming from the north and when he saw the children he shouted and applied the brakes. The Eddy boy turned back and the Lowther boy stopped and started back, but he was struck by a sewing machine fastened on the side of the Brenkman auto. The force of the blow struck him in the head and threw him to the pavement. When he was picked up he was dead and blood was flowing freely from his mouth.
An investigation was made by Deputy Sheriff T. H. Blackburn of the sheriff's office and the accident was found to be unavoidable. Deputy Blackburn said that when he arrived at the Martha home he met Mr. Brenkman, a man of about fifty years of age, and he was in tears and terribly broken up over the accident.
