

A GIRL SHOW—A GOWN SHOW—UNADORNED BEAUTY.

IN ITS MOST ALLURING GUISE.

Bert Lytell in "Lombardi, Ltd." A GREAT LOVER, A GENIUS, AND FAILURE!

A smart comedy of moods and moods.

The glass of fashion set in a frame of spiciest humor.

Reflecting the moods that dress up Fifth avenue.

Fads, fancies, fashions and follies of New York's smart set.

Genius under the microscope in a bizarre romance.

Wherein Fame and Love are at daggers' points.

The unique love tangle of a man dressmaker.

A glimpse into the perfumed studio, where Style is born.

Loveliness in silken negligee and Wealth in rainbow garments.

The old story of the Moth and the Flame with a thousand new twists.

Unadorned beauty in its most alluring guise.

In which Cupid mocks a celebrity and runs away.

A brilliant commentary on eccentric genius.

Wherein Milady dons her peacock feathers to strut before the eyes of the world.

Life's ironies as revealed in a romance of the fashion shops.

An entrancing story of the loyalty that is love.

In which a woman's faith saves him from pitfalls.

A great laugh hit by Frederic and Fannie Hatton. By ALL Means do see it. BIGGER AND BETTER than the stage play. NOW PLAYING AT UTAH THEATRE

WORLD'S MARKETS

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Stocks were strongly supported at the active opening of today's session, the recovery in many instances being almost buoyant. Traders were disposed to disregard the labor crisis and bought freely of those issues which sustained greatest impairment Saturday. Within the first half hour gains of 2 to 12 1/2 points were registered by leading motors, oils, equipments, steels and several of the investment rails. Many special...

INDUSTRIAL CABINET PROPOSED FOR OGDEN CITY

I am not going to address this article, Editor for I am not writing to him but I will say Dear Mr. or Mrs. Voter of Ogden: It has been a good many years since I sat in the editorial chair and tried to direct some of the politics of that time and now that I have sneaked into the reporters' room and quietly taken seat, I will tell you what I have on my mind, at least, as some of our good lady voters say today, "I will give you a piece of my mind."

When I was in the chair—a good many years ago—they called me the peacemaker in politics, but as there is no politics in our city election this year I want to tell you a few things about political economy of our city election. For thousands of years the people of the industrial world have simply preyed upon one another like the fishes of the sea, until a few large fish, say about ten per cent, have corralled about ninety per cent of the world's wealth. In all branches of the world's activity a few men and a few women have led the multitudes, industrially, commercially, politically, socially and religiously. But the past quarter of a century has worked some wonderful changes and the enlightened workman is beginning to see the light.

A century ago when Adam Smith wrote his "Wealth of Nations," you will find that he cautioned us relative to two elements entering into the making of universal prosperity and warned us that whatever else we did in our business economy, not to make enemies of the two leading elements in every industrial enterprise, viz: Labor and Capital. Capital without labor is useless and labor without capital is helpless. But now, after thousands of years of the might-makes-right policy, labor is asserting its rights and capital is at least recognizing its brother in council, and the time is not far distant when a free and open discussion of all economic questions will be necessary for the success of any commercial enterprise. But, you ask, what has all this to do with the present city election in Ogden? I will tell you what. Readers of the daily press are well aware that a great council representing both capital and labor has just come to naught because labor, being afraid of capital, got up and marched out of the meeting like a blind horse over a bridge.

President Wilson had called the council the first of its dignity to grace the records of a great ruler and political leader and when both labor and capital have had time to digest the wisdom of such a movement a new era will have been born into the industrial world and both labor and capital will have received the benefits. Labor will feel the security of living wages and capital will be secured against strikes. Yes, the time is at hand when the man called to manage the affairs of great public enterprises will find it desirable, economic and wise to solicit the council of industrial commissions and will invite men of mature minds and successful experiences into harmonious council.

Yes, boys, the old horse it getting his eyes open and when that bridge is repaired a little he will march back again to his place in the stall and help himself to the provender. Now, I have not said one word to Frank Francis on this subject, but I have read his late editorials and take my word for it boys, if he is elected mayor of Ogden he will appoint a commercial council, or industrial cabinet, if you prefer to call it such, whose advice will be sought and wisdom followed and on the momentous occasions, and that not the least influence in this industrial council will be the labor element and the women voters of our city. (Signed) PROF. J. A. SMITH.

SEAT SALE. Earning the title of "The Napoleon of Comedies," it required a full year before New York playgoers would allow the run of "A Tailor-Made Man" to terminate at the Cohan and Harris theatre. This delightful play, by the late Harry James Smith, who gave the American stage "Mrs. Bumstead Leigh" and "The Little Teacher," is a rare and delightful comedy, in which humor is blended with philosophy in a manner that thrills as fascinating.

Four generations ago women wore hoopskirts

SHE had to back up to the chair when she wished to be seated and tilt her skirts sideways to get through the door.

Does it seem possible that any woman with a vestige of thinking matter would ever have worn such an ungainly garb? She did.

A few years ago the fashion creators tried to bring hoopskirts back into style. Did they succeed? They did not.

The modern woman does her own thinking.

But even today there are a few women slaves to a custom more out of date than hoopskirts

They bake their own bread. They slave hours each week over a hot stove. They grow irritable and prematurely old. They don't save a penny for a minute, but waste a lot of both.

The modern way is to buy

as clean as possibly can be made at home. Materials as fine as money can buy. Compounded scientifically, made with automatic exactness and baked perfectly. Crisp, fresh, wholesome, nutritious.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON, D. C. At the second business meeting of the Utah society held in the office of the senate committee on public lands, Lorenzo Richards of Ogden was elected president. About fifty people attended this meeting and convinced the most skeptical that the Utah society in Washington is going to be among the foremost state societies at the national capital.

Wesley Horsely, Brigham, corresponding secretary, and B. J. Summerhays, Salt Lake, recording secretary. The constitution as presented by the committee was adopted, and the executive committee was appointed by the president, consisting of the following: Senator Smoot, chairman; Senator King, Captain F. N. A. Ebley, Evert Moyle, Samuel Russell, Robert A. Burns, Salt Lake, and Mrs. J. E. Benson, Ogden.
