Nobody Arrested As Ogden Welcomes 1920

From a police standpoint Ogden was quiet last night. No arrests were registered on the police blotter.

Although the funerals celebrated until the small hours this morning, police on the various beats of the city had what might be termed as a "soft" night.

During the past two years but one arrest has been made on New Year's eve, which is declared a record for a city of the size of Ogden.

WELCOME HOME PARTY GIVEN AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH IN HONOR OF DOCTOR ERNEST P. MILLS

A very enjoyable time was spent last evening in the First Congregational church when members of the church and congregation and friends gathered to do honor to Dr. E. P. Mills at "A Welcome Home Party" arranged by the members of the Ladies' Aid society.

After a brief time spent in social intercourse a splendid musical program was rendered by the Misses Zoë Kirkpatrick, soprano, Miss Grace Matthews, contralto, and Mr. E. L. Howes, basso. Miss Mary Parmley contributed two splendidly rendered violin solos and also aided the soloists by playing violin obligatos to their songs. The vocal soloists are all members of the church quartette and the program rendered by them last night gave the congregation further insight into their musical gifts which mean so much to the conduct of the worship in the church.

The musical program was concluded by a selection of old southern and popular melodies during the rendition of which Mr. E. L. Howes played two banjo solos that were greatly enjoyed.

Miss Vera Hassenpflug of the oral expression department of the high school read with fine dramatic ability a selection from the Christmas passage of Lew Wallace's famous story "Ben Hur."

Rev. Godfrey Matthews recalled to the party that was given in the latter part of April when Dr. Mills was about to leave for Siberia and expressed the unfeigned pleasure of every one connected with the church in the return of this indefatigable worker to the life of the church and the community of Ogden.

Dr. Mills expresses pleasure. Dr. Mills replying spoke of his pleasure in being back again and of the kindness of the friends in the church who had made the jolly party possible. Briefly he gave four well-phrased word pictures of his experience at Irkutsk; speaking of the wonderful roadbed of the Trans-Siberian railroad; the magnificent equipment of their railroad cars; of the wondrous beauty of the country; and the pitiable suffering he was called upon to alleviate in the hospital.

The evening's jollity was concluded by a watch-night service conducted by the minister in which Dr. Otis Carey and Dr. E. P. Mills also officiated and a little after the midnight hour the people departed to their homes glad to have had the opportunity of greeting their returned friend, and rejoicing in the fellowship of Christian people who know that as the years come and go they live and move in the safe keeping of the ever-living God.

Ogden Sleeps Late After Welcoming New Year

It was evident this morning, as one passed along the street, that Ogden's citizens were one and all united in celebration of the advent of 1920. Contrary to the usual conditions, the business streets were practically deserted. Not even the newsboys were crying their wares. The hour of midnight found Ogden wide awake and celebrating as it celebrated in years gone by. This morning Ogden slept as a reward of a celebration well done.

There were many public gatherings last night at which large numbers of people gathered to watch the old year out. Notable among these, was the party at the Elks' club and the large crowd at the Berthans. Owing to the cold weather there were not so many people on the streets last evening as was customary on New Year's eve.

At midnight the blowing of whistles and ringing of bells about the city welcomed the new year.

There were several church assemblies during the evening, where services were conducted until after the midnight hour.

The Berthans was the scene of a delightful party. Several hundred couples were in attendance at the big hall. Manager J. P. Goss had provided grand hats and horns and with these merry-makers greeted the new year. As the midnight hour approached, Drummer Fred Seeger of the Lillian Thatcher orchestra greeted the change from 1919 to 1920 on the cymbal.

About 200 couples celebrated the advent of the new year at the Elks club. The clubrooms on Grant avenue had been gaily decorated for the occasion and it was a happy crowd. Music was furnished for dancing in the ballroom and cabaret entertainers furnished music for dancing and entertained the crowd in the lobby. At midnight a delicious buffet lunch was served in the billiard room. Favors were handed out at the midnight hour and the scene was a pretty one. Dancing was continued until 2 o'clock.

Manager Ledbetter of the Utah Hot Springs had provided special entertainment and many people of the city journeyed to the northern resort. Special car service was provided after midnight for the return to the city of these pleasure seekers.

There were watch parties in several wards of the city and private parties were to be found in many homes.

"PICCADILLY JIM" AT THE OGDEN THEATRE STARTING TODAY

Owen Moore's first Selznick picture, "Piccadilly Jim" comes to the Ogden theatre today.

It is a picture of the famous Saturday Evening Post serial by P. G. Wodehouse and depicts the adventures of a young English-American led by love and an overpowering passion for baseball, comes to America.

There are all sorts of ludicrous complications which include plotters, intriguers, kidnappers and "Piccadilly Jim's" own father, himself a rabid baseball fan, who has followed his boy to America, and there, under an assumed name, is masquerading as a butler.

Playing opposite Mr. Moore is Zena Keefe, who is to be a star herself in 1920, and the rest of the cast includes William Haze, Dora Marion, Alfred Hickman, Arthur Marion, Reginald Sheffield, George Dunny, Millie Methot and many other players of equal prominence. The direction was in the hands of Wesley Ruggles and it is said that he has many novelties in the making of the picture.

New Year's Revelers Steal Ford Automobile

Thieves stole a Ford automobile last night, the property of J. W. George, 1809 Washington avenue, bearing license number 24060. The theft was reported to the police this morning. The machine was standing between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth street on Madison avenue, when stolen shortly after 9 o'clock last night.

18 PER CENT CHRISTMAS BONUS FOR ORANGE-CRUSH HELP

Orange-Crush Company of Chicago, manufacturers of Ward's Orange-Crush and Ward's Lemon-Crush, has announced the award of a cash Christmas bonus to salaried employees. Each man and woman on the salary payroll receives an amount equal to 18 per cent of one year's salary.

The officials of Orange-Crush company report a most successful year for sales of their drinks. The enormous demand for the company's products has forced quick action in multiplying manufacturing facilities by the acquisition of extra floor space and the installation of much new machinery. The organization is now housed in handsome commodious quarters at 314 to 324 West Superior Street, Chicago. Laboratories are maintained at Los Angeles, California.

The magnificent success of the Orange-Crush organization is an inspiring example of what can be accomplished by harmonious co-operation between all departments of administration, sales and production. The company gladly credits a goodly part of its prosperity to this work-together spirit on the part of all employees, reflected in increased efficiency with gratifying results. The Christmas bonus is an expression of the company's appreciation of good and loyal service.

Gymnasium Accident Serious for Hadley

A. W. Hadley, local realty man, is slowly recovering from the effects of an accidental punch over the heart, received when boxing two weeks ago at the Eagles' gymnasium. The blow caused the development of a blood clot. This in turn has affected the sight of one eye and has caused other ill effects. Mr. Hadley is still confined to his bed at his home, 885 Twenty-sixth street.

Library to Distribute Fine Set of New Books

A set of books declared to be of exceptional interest has recently been purchased by the Carnegie Free Library, and is now ready for circulation. "The Chronicles of America," published by Yale university.

OWEN MOORE Selznick Pictures

These books tell the story of the development of American ideals and institutions, of the men who have made America, of the habits of the people, of America's literature and educational ideals, of our growth as a nation, and our development as a world power, all in a manner that is declared delightfully readable, and in a clear, straightforward manner that is utterly unlike the American history of the textbook. Each volume is written by a recognized authority. Frederic Austin Ogg's volume on "The Reign of Andrew Jackson" is especially good for its treatment of the Webster-Hayne debate. "A Sequel of Agamottox," gives an excellent idea of the problems the country had to face at that period. "The Cleveland Era," by Henry Jones Ford, is an unusually good presentation of the period discussed, and Carl Russell Fish's "The Path of Empire: a Chronicle of the United States As a World Power," is a book of great current interest.

BUILDING RECORD FOR YEARS JUST PAST BREAKS RECORD

During the 1919 reports compiled by Building Inspector Davis, show that $1,562,580 was given as an estimate cost on buildings started here during the twelve month period. The record, according to Inspector Davis is the highest in the city, even eclipsing the stellar year of the "boom" days.

Aid for Constructing Mountain Road Sought

A delegation of Salt Lake men visited the local forest officials in the federal building here yesterday seeking aid from the United States forest service in the building of a mountain highway from Lamb's canyon to American Fork.

The proposed highway would be completed by Salt Lake and Utah counties, according to the data obtained, the expense of building being paid by the respective counties. The matter will be brought before the regular meeting of the forest officials here at which time a decision will be rendered.

Police Say They Have Clues to Lowes Killing

Detectives of the police department say they are still working on clues in connection with the murder of George Lowes of Green River, Wyo., on December 19. Information as to the murder has been sent broadcast by the department.

While several suspects have been detained at the city jail, no one has been located as yet in connection with the murder whom the police can pin the blame upon. It is expected, however, that some information concerning the sudden departure of two men from Ogden last week will be received here within the next 24 hours.

Two men, formerly of Ogden, are suspected of committing the deed.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS WILL TAKE FIELD HERE TOMORROW

Eighteen places as enumerators remain unfilled in the census taking for the state of Utah, according to district supervisor George Romney, Jr. Despite this fact the census taking will start tomorrow. More than 150 applications for positions as enumerators have been received.

Blank forms for writing mines, quarries, irrigation and drainage enterprises were received at the local offices from Washington. A number of the larger projects will be covered by correspondence direct from Washington.

All data obtained will be strictly confidential and it will be the duty of census takers to emphasize that fact.

TO BE A BANK DEPOSITOR IS A SIMPLE MATTER

By Chas. H. Barton, Cashier Ogden Savings Bank, Ogden, Utah

The best time to start saving is early in life, when habits are easily formed. Parents are not as appreciative of this fact as they might be. They want their children to be schooled in mathematics, grammar and history at the earliest possible age. They place them under religious and moral training almost from infancy, and yet many children come to young manhood and womanhood without an appreciation of the value of money. Their food and clothes and spending money are all provided, and, they care free, are taking no thought for the future, when without habits of thrift, they will find themselves upon a treacherous sea.

On the other hand, there are thousands of depositors who started their savings in young manhood, or even middle age, learning the lessons of economy on the rugged road of actual experience and hardships. It is never too late to begin to save, but thrift in childhood means independence all the way.

It is well, also, in opening your first account, to start with a bank that is not only strong and convenient, but one that helps to encourage the beginner. This is important as otherwise many accounts may stop at the first or second deposit.

It is always a good plan in beginning to save to start with a small amount and increase, rather than start on a large scale and decrease. Build gradually but surely each week and the future will take care of itself. Interest and then interest on interest starting from small beginnings soon become a source of inspiration.

In its effort to encourage old and young to adopt habits of thrift and economy, a modern savings bank makes the starting of an account simple, easy and attractive. It does this through presenting customers with reminders and facilities for saving small change such as pocket dime savings banks in which loose change, otherwise so easily spent, may be placed. It has rightly been said that a dime savings bank has started many a man on the road to success.

All formalities are dispensed with when opening a savings account. For the purpose of identification, signature cards with date and place of birth are signed. The initial deposit required is any sum of $1.00 or more. The pass book is then issued, and this completes the entire transaction.

This start on the road to thrift must be followed by regular and systematic saving to produce results that will furnish the incentive to further saving. When savings have accrued until they reach $100, $500 or $1000, it often happens that the depositor wishes to make investments, and again the banker's advice is sought. Later on, the depositor may wish to place his valuable papers in safekeeping or make a loan on real estate. It is not necessary that he consult different authorities on each subject. His savings banker can be his adviser in all these transactions.

Livestock Business In Ogden Increases

The livestock business in Ogden has shown a marked increase during 1919, according to Lester F. Whitlock of the Ogden Union Stockyards. Official records show that 7,042 yards of cattle, sheep, hogs, and horses were handled. With the exception of the sheep, practically all of the other livestock was sold in Ogden.

Sales in cattle increased 100 per cent over 1918. A total of 35,999 head of cattle, 102,528 hogs, 608,547 sheep and 6,992 horses were handled during the year.
