Mysterious Tapping of Trees Is Puzzle

Have new sources of liquid refreshment been discovered in sap from the trees in Ogden, or do certain individuals seek to compete with local sugar companies in producing saccharine sweetness from the sap which sample of spring has caused to flow?

These and other questions have arisen in the minds of several Ogdenites since a mysterious individual, armed with an auger, was observed boring into various trees in the vicinity of the city hall.

While some who watched the performance had ideas that the mysterious one was after a new "hard" drink such as is made of cactus juice in Mexico, others declared that the auger-bored gent was a scientist who will employ a process for extracting sugar from Boxelder and Poplar sap.

GENERAL THAWING OF SNOW HELP TO THE SHEEP OWNER

General thawing of the heaviest snows known to the sheep industry of the intermountain states has been the salvation of the industry and will mean a saving of thousands of dollars to sheepmen, declares S. W. McClure, secretary of the National Woolgrowers' association. Unprecedented snowfalls in most of the sheep sections melted almost completely in January, according to reports from association members. Though the sheepmen's dilemma is not entirely relieved, the thaw will enable sheep to use the winter ranges and thus a limited feed supply will be conserved.

The snowfalls, coupled with the shortage of food which was brought about by the heavy drought last summer, has set back the industry hard, said Secretary McClure. "The sheep country was faced by an unprecedented peril. But, happily, the January thaw will avert serious losses that undoubtedly would have occurred because of the serious feed shortage."

Secretary McClure added that indications of an early spring looked heartening for next year's sheep business.

The entire morning session of the court was taken in securing a jury for the trial.

At the afternoon session the liquor in two pint bottles and a glass containing a small portion of liquor was offered in evidence.

Armed Bandits Hold Up Salt Lake Drug Store

SALT LAKE, Feb. 4.—Armed bandits held up and robbed the West State pharmacy, 576 W. Second South street, at 10 o'clock last night, and made off with more than $300 in money, say the police.

Nearly $100 of the loot was strewn along the sidewalk where the gunmen dropped it in flight as they ran west on Second South street.

From their method of operation and the manner of their escape, the police believe them to be amateurs. They are not the "drug store" bandits who last November obtained more than $1000 in money and several hundred dollars in watches and jewelry from five drug store holdups in as many nights, say the police.

PROHIBITION DIRECTOR TO MAKE SURVEY OF OGDEN

Mathonibah Thomas, federal prohibition director for the Utah district, will be in Ogden soon in connection with the state survey he has planned in connection with his taking up the enforcement of federal prohibition in Utah.

Preparations for taking over the work of enforcing the prohibition law, which is now being handled by the internal revenue department, were begun yesterday by Mathonibah Thomas, federal prohibition director for the Utah district. A canvass of the federal building is now being made for quarters for the new department, but until space is found, Mr. Thomas is using desk room offered him by U. S. Marshal Aquila Nebeker and William H. Davenport, secret service operator.

A general tour and survey of the entire state by Mr. Thomas is the first definite move in the plans for taking over the prohibition work, according to a statement made yesterday. It is expected that ten or fifteen men will later be sent here to work directly under him in various parts of the state.

With the assignment of these workers all prohibition work will be taken from the internal revenue department and investigations will be made entirely under the supervision of Mr. Thomas.

Prosecutions of persons charged with violation of the new law will be handled by the United States district attorney, with assistance from the prohibition enforcement officer.

Mr. Thomas said yesterday that his department seeks the close cooperation of state, city, county and other peace officers in the prohibition enforcement and that if this is obtained much will have been accomplished. The public, Mr. Thomas said, is also looked to for support in the enforcement of the law, through reporting cases of violation.

OLD TIMER REMARKS ON UNSEASONABLE WEATHER HERE

With blue buds threatening to burst forth into leaves and other spring indications present, unseasonable weather of a pleasant variety prevails in Ogden.

Old timers, with their "I swan" and "I never saw the like," recall other Januarys "when the peach blossoms blossomed but were nipped by the frost."

The illusion that spring has already arrived was given added realism today when several Japanese youths, en route to eastern college, arrived from California this afternoon. The Japanese boys were from Hawaii and all wore wide brimmed straw hats.

Though farmers deplore the present weather because of its effects on snow in the hills, the majority of people seen on the streets today seemed heartily in favor of continuance of the spring weather.

YOUNG WOMAN CALLED IN NEWBERRY TRIAL

Handling of Money, Sending of Form Letters and Use of Senator's Private Office Told

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 4.—Picturing of the Newberry senatorial campaign in the trial here of the senator and 122 others on charges of conspiracy and fraud today progressed beyond the happenings in New York in December, 1917, to the headquarters of the campaign organization in Detroit.

The headquarters, called several young women employees of the committee. They brought into the testimony the names of several defendants but were questioned particularly as to the way money was handled in the office.

Miss Louise B. Delameter, a stenographer, testified she was paid by check the first week and after that by cash. She also said that "large quantities of form letters" were prepared in Detroit and sent by parcel post to New York for Newberry's signature.

The testimony of another girl served to bring out the use of Senator Newberry's private office in Detroit as an adjunct to the campaign headquarters. The government maintains this was one of the links in the chain that bound the senator to the campaign activities and kept him cognizant of its methods.

Helme Tells Story. Preceded by an appeal to the jury by James W. Helme, Jr., candidate for United States senator in the 1918 Democratic primary, the first evidence was introduced yesterday in the Newberry election conspiracy trial.

Helme's appearance was unheralded. He followed a statement by James O. Murfin, who opened for the defense, that Helme had been "worked" by the Newberry campaign committee into making the race against Henry Ford. Mr. Murfin explained to the jury that this was done to prevent Democratic votes being cast for Ford in the Republican primary.

"I was 'worked' as Mr. Murfin told you," said Helme. "I am making this statement because it seems to occupy a position apart from the other defendants, but the recital is a bit humiliating."

Helme said that Samuel O'Dell, another defendant and who was state treasurer in 1918, told him that if he "beat Ford in the Democratic primary and Ford won the Republican nomination, all the Republicans would turn to me in the general election."

Helme concluded with an explanation that his motive was "to eliminate one of the millionaires from the campaign."

"Spending money in a campaign may be legal, but I am an idealist and hold it to be a moral wrong," he said.

After some legal skirmishing in the introduction of testimony started. Two witnesses were called today, J. G. Hayden, Washington correspondent of the Detroit News, and James F. Schweinhart, head of the paper's New York bureau. Schweinhart related that Frederick Cody, conversing in New York regarding the Newberry candidacy, had said:

"It will be a great time for the boys in Michigan because they will spend a barrel of money."

Dry Law Forces Sale of German Steamers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Sale of the former German passenger liners seized at the outbreak of the war, was forced on the shipping board by the operation of the national prohibition law, Chairman Payne is understood to have told President Wilson.

Mr. Payne was said to have written the president that the government could not operate the liners on which intoxicants were not sold in competition with privately owned ships on which wine and other liquors were served.

S. Army?" The "treasure trove" is going to contain gold medals, silver medals, loving cups, suits of clothes, dresses, hats, bank deposits and what not. More than 10,000 prizes are already listed and it is expected that by Feb. 20 there will have been offered more than 100,000 prizes. Army Placing Recruits in Suitable Places

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—The plan used by the United States Army to place every recruit where he would do the most good is being tried in a modified form in Pacific coast industries by a group of former army officers, psychologists and specialists in vocational training and employment problems. These specialists have organized a non-profit bureau with Captain J. David Houser, formerly chief psychological examiner at Camp Kearny, as president. The organization has undertaken surveys of the employment problems of the several large business houses including three big department stores, a street railway company and several other concerns.

It offers to give intelligence tests to employees and applicants for positions, to prepare scientific application blanks for each concern. It seeks to eliminate excessive labor turnover attendant upon the ordinary haphazard method of employing.

Research work is being carried forward dealing with experiments in industrial democracy, profit in sharing, plans for making the lazy employ, work and plans for established promotion schedules, regular complaint channels and other means for reducing discontent.

Wilford E. Talbert of the bureau of personal research of the Carnegie Institute of Technology is director of the bureau here. The staff includes Dr. Roy W.
