WORK FOR CONGRESS.

After congress gets through passing a resolution which will end the war between the United States and Germany there is plenty of work to be done before there should be an adjournment. A glance through the files of the newspapers about the time the congress went into session discloses the lawmakers were asked:

To provide for a federal budget system to prevent the waste of government money.

To simplify the taxes on incomes and excess profits and to readjust other levies on the people.

To provide employment and land for former service men.

To enact laws to encourage farmers and promote an increase in crop production.

To afford protection for the nation's new chemical and dyestuffs industries.

To give federal aid for the building of public roads.

To foster the development of forest resources.

To readjust the tariff system to meet changed world conditions.

To regulate the transportation of food in interstate commerce, the holding of food in cold storage and to prevent "unconscionable profits."

Some of these requested pieces of legislation are needed badly. There are many who would like to see a federal budget system established to help the nation get on a basis where it ceases to think and act in terms of billions and returns to millions.

RETURN OF BODIES.

Senator J. W. Wadsworth of the committee on military affairs of the United States senate recently called for a report from Secretary of War Newton D. Baker giving a complete statement concerning return of bodies of American soldiers who died abroad. In response the secretary sent the desired information in a report, much of which is of decided interest to American citizens, especially those who have relatives buried abroad. In connection with this report the secretary writes:

"Seventeen thousand caskets have already been purchased, but the shortage of materials for manufacture has caused vexatious delay in their delivery. In addition to those already shipped to Europe 3000 will be forwarded during the month of March and 5000 during April and each month thereafter until the contract is completed. Anticipating the possibility of French consent to the evacuation of the battle areas designated as the zone of the armies, the quartermaster general has been making an exhaustive study of the sources of procurement, with a view to placing an order, at the earliest possible date, for the necessary number of caskets to complete the entire work of removing all bodies in Europe from the places where they are now interred, and transferring the same either to their homes or to such place as may ultimately be selected, in addition to Surresnes for a permanent cemetery in France.

"Motor transportation has been secured from a variety of sources to meet the entire requisitions for the same by the officer in charge in Europe, and ample requisitions have been prepared for further procurement from existing supplies to be filled so soon as advices are received from him as to additional needs and points of desired delivery.

"The graduated personnel referred to above includes qualified embalmers, who are to supervise sanitary arrangements and insure the most approved professional preparation of bodies for return to their homes.

"The personal requests from relatives indicates that practically 70 per cent of the dead are to be returned to their homes (about 50,000 in all), and with about 20,000 or 25,000 to remain permanently interred abroad.

"An estimate of the probable cost of this project can be only tentative at this time, but it is likely to involve a minimum expense of $500 in each case where a body is to be returned to the home of the next of kin, and probably $200 or $250 in connection with the permanent interment in a field of honor abroad. It is believed that a minimum appropriation of $30,000,000 will be required for the completion of the work. The sundry civil bill for the current year contains an appropriation of $8,451,000, at least $6,000,000 having been already required for existing projects, contracts and the above-mentioned provision for additional caskets for the zone of the armies. It is requested that the amount appropriated in the sundry civil bill for the current year may be made a continuing appropriation and that there may be added thereto a further appropriation to cover the balance of the $20,000,000 herein suggested."

UNSEATING THE SOCIALISTS.

The New York legislature by substantial majorities has ousted the five Socialist members on the ground that they belong to a party which is disloyal. In denying seats to the New York legislature has established a precedent. Never before has a state legislature expelled an entire delegation which has been legally elected by the people.

The unseating of the five is not a defeat for the Socialist party. It virtually is a victory. Had the Socialists been permitted to retain their seats without all the fuss made about their alleged unfitness, nobody would have heard of the five. They were too small a majority to influence legislation in the slightest in Albany.

But the attack delivered upon the Socialists has brought strong men and influential newspapers to their side in the controversy. The Socialists can thank Speaker Sweet for his ouster proceedings for this action brought such men as Charles E. Hughes and the members of the New York Bar association to their defense. It also gained such powerful newspapers as the New York World as their friends.

The question as to whether the Socialist party stands for good or evil is not the big issue in the case at hand. The New York legislature has decided against representative government. If the Albany precedent is established, then Republican control of a legislature may mean the ousting of the Democrats and the legislature controlled by Democrats may oust Republicans.

If the New York legislature was without suspicion that it is controlled by interests inimical to the best interests of the people there might be greater cause for alarm over the verdict. But the women voters' organization of New York has shown that all is not right within the walls of the legislative halls. So it is likely that the verdict of the New York legislators is not the verdict of a free group of lawmakers, but the verdict is a group to which many strings are attached.

THE DAVIS COUNTY EXPERIMENTAL FARM.

By M. C. MERRILL

Horticulturist, Utah Experimental Station

One of the most important developments in recent years along the lines of agricultural experimentation and demonstration is the establishment of the winter of the Davis County Experimental Farm in North Farmington. For years, the need of such an experimental farm has been keenly felt by the growers throughout Utah's intensively cultivated areas as well as by the Experiment Station staff. Indeed so strongly has that sentiment grown of late that last year the legislature passed a bill appropriating funds for the establishment of such a farm, which was later vetoed, however, by the state executive for reasons which he indicated at the time.

Nevertheless the movement would not die. The people in the trucking sections wanted an experimental farm on which could be solved the problems which they were daily meeting on their farms.

Through the initiative of Mr. W. J. Thawne, Davis county agricultural agent, and of Mr. W. E. Potter and other public-spirited citizens of Davis county, a movement was set on foot looking to the establishment of an experimental farm in the county. The Davis county farm bureau got strongly back of the movement. The county commissioners were appealed to for funds. Before taking action they naturally wished to get the sentiment of their constituents. A series of mass meetings was therefore held in all the townships of the county. The result was a practically unanimous verdict in favor of the proposition.

Fourteen beautiful farm sites were generously offered in different parts of the county. From these a committee of the Experiment Station staff composed of Director Harris and Drs. Hill and Merrill selected a twenty-acre tract on the old Seerist farm in North Farmington as being the most suitable. And that farm is surely a beauty. It is almost exactly half way between Salt Lake and Ogdén on the state highway, where it will be easily available to an overwhelming majority of Utah's population and where the various phases of work can be readily seen and the results studied. It is expected that hundreds will visit the farm each week and thousands upon thousands during the season. And that is one of the very best ways in the world to disseminate agricultural information. For seeing is believing and it becomes impressive.

Davis county is paying the rent for the farm and has turned it over completely to the Utah Agricultural Experiment Station for operation as long as the station desires it for experimental purposes. The county is also contributing toward the operating expenses. While the farm is at present a local county affair it, of course, goes without saying that the results obtained there will have state-wide significance, and particularly so, for the intensive section between Fielding and Payson. It is one of the best things that has happened to Utah agriculture for several years.

Mr. Alma Wilson, who has been raised on a truck farm in Weber county, a graduate of Weber State Academy, and of the Utah Agricultural college, a horticultural specialist along the lines of plant diseases, who served during the war as state plant pathologist and while a recently been county agricultural agent of Morgan county, has been appointed superintendent of the farm. In his selection, Davis county and the state of Utah are to be congratulated, for both by training and experience, as well as native ability, he is eminently suited for that important position.

Plans are now well under way and the projects are outlined by the various departments of the Agricultural College Experiment Station for the operations on this farm. An interesting and satisfactory thing about the whole matter, is that the work is being outlined not for one year, but for many years, as it is confidently expected that this farm will become a permanent part of the Utah Agricultural Experiment Station.

Order Forbids Raise In Insurance Rates

LINCOLN, Neb., April 1.—A temporary order forbidding the Royal Highlanders, a Nebraska insurance fraternity, from putting into effect a new table of rates was issued by District Court late yesterday.

The court acted on application of William Widener and Ernest Holmes both of Lincoln, who allege the new rates are discriminatory against the older members of the order. The organization has members in eight or ten other states, counsel for the men said. The case was set for hearing April 12.

Strong Women

By Dr. Valentine Mott.

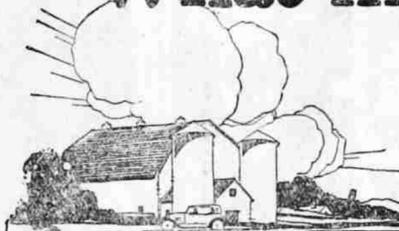

Women and men too—are just as strong and healthy as their blood. Vigor and health come with good blood.

Without good red blood a woman has a weak heart and poor nerves.

In the spring is the best time to take stock of one's condition. If the blood is thin and watery, face pale or pimply, if one is tired and listless, generally weak, a Spring Tonic should be taken. An old-fashioned herbal remedy that was used by nearly everybody 50 years ago is still safe and sane because it contains no alcohol or narcotic. It is made of roots and herbs and called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If druggists do not keep it in tablet form, send 60 cents for a vial to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

The children know it all too before they can be told.

What men who do big work say about overalls—

"I've tried a lot of overalls, but of all I've worn, give me Blue Buckles every time. They always give long wear."

FRED McCULLOCH is one of the biggest corn growers in his state—Edward Gibson is the champion riveter of the U.S. Shipyards—James Heberer runs the Twentieth Century Limited—these men know their jobs from top to bottom.

And they know what to wear on the job. They know how much good, strong, comfortable overalls mean when you do big work.

That's why all three wear Blue Buckles. That's why more men wear Blue Buckles than any other overall in the world.

Tough, longest-wearing denim, sewed with wide, double-stitched seams, goes into every pair. Blue Buckles are big and roomy. They never rip or bind. First-class workmanship makes every detail about Blue Buckles right. They have heavy riveted brass buttons, best quality buckles and loops, a solid back-band, big, convenient, reinforced pockets, and extra wide suspenders. All Blue Buckle coats have free swing, raglan sleeves.

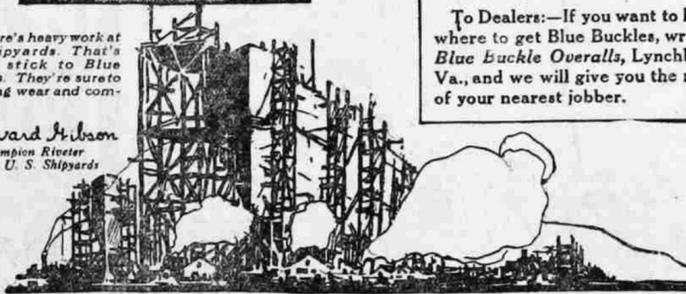

Ask your dealer for Blue Buckles.
