

FORMER PRESIDENT AND EDITOR FIGHT

One Is Killed in Spectacular Duel Arranged With All Formalities

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, April 2.—Washington Beltram, editor of the newspaper El Pais, was shot and killed in a duel today by Jose Batlle y Ordoñez, former president of Uruguay.

The duel took place with the usual formalities, and with seconds and surgeons in attendance. The weapons used were pistols. Beltram was shot in the breast and died soon afterward.

The morning newspapers today printed announcements of the impending duel. They said that former President Batlle had sent his seconds to Beltram, challenging the journalist, because of statements published in El Pais, which Batlle considered offensive.

Beltram was a Nationalist member of the chamber of deputies and a leader of that party which is opposed to the "Batlleists."

Batlle twice had been president of Uruguay. His last term was from 1906 to 1910.

Yesterday was not the first time that Jose Batlle y Ordoñez met an adversary on the field under the code of honor. On January 13 last during a duel with swords fought with Senor Leonel Aguirre. He was rendered incapable of continuing the fight a few seconds after it started and the duel was suspended.

It was said at the time that Batlle had sent his seconds to Aguirre because of an article printed in the paper, in which Aguirre was proprietor, charging that the former president was seeking to acquire predominance in the chamber of deputies to further his personal ends.

In 1906, while president of Uruguay, Batlle agreed to fight a duel with Dr. Luis Alberto de Herrera, a member of the chamber of deputies and former secretary of the legation at Washington, after Batlle's term of president had ended. Nothing, as far as is known, ever came of this agreement.

Burglars by Ruse Escape from Capture

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 3.—R. D. Cellars saw a stranger emerging from a nearby back door early today; the stranger carried a suitcase. Cellars thought he was a burglar, went in the house, got a revolver and stepped out to halt the man. As he reached the scene, a pretty red haired young woman came tripping out, also carrying a suitcase.

"What are you doing?" asked Cellars. "Eloping," said the young woman. "The lady who lives there let us pass through to evade my father, who wants me to marry a wealthy old man I don't love."

She wept. Cellars wished her luck and let her pass. A few minutes later his neighbor came running to tell him that her home had been ransacked while she was asleep and two of her suit cases filled with her property and carried away by the thieves.

New Punishment for Disgraced Navy Men

BOSTON, Mass., April 2.—The punishment which the navy now provides for disgraced men furnished an unusual spectacle at the Charleston navy yard today. THEATRE PATRONS

We feel that you, as well as we, are to be congratulated on our securing for an early showing at this theatre, Miss Alice Brady in "Sinners," a Re-Entré picture.

Miss Brady, we know, needs no introduction; you are no doubt familiar with her former successes. But we have it on the best authority that her appearance in "Sinners" offers by far the best portrayal of an emotional role that Alice Brady has rendered and eclipses any and all of her previous performances.

This wonderful story, adapted from the play by Owen Davis, the eminent playwright, offers Miss Brady a wonderful opportunity to display her remarkable ability as an emotional actress. As a spoken drama, "Sinners" met with phenomenal success; as a photoplay it is even more remarkable.

Briefly, the story is this: Mary Horton is a country girl who has been reared in a rather narrow environment. Her world is the little village of Ponsel Point. The city beckoned to her and she came—came and fell among sinners. But at the crucial moment she is drawn back from the brink of despair and returns to her home town. There she is followed by the sinners, and the peace of the staid little home is threatened with the unfolding of one of life's tense and brutal dramas. But love intervenes, and Mary finds her true happiness in the little town she at first despised.

"Sinners" is one of those stories that leaves one with a feeling of warmth and sympathy toward all mankind. It is bound to please all who are fortunate enough to see it. It has just the right combination and proportion of laughter and tears; a story that thrills through you and makes you feel that life is sweet—and home is sweeter.

Washington Police Break up Picketing

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Efforts of the state department today to have the Washington police authorities break up the picketing of the British embassy by women favorable to an Irish republic, failed. The police said that in the light of the decision of the federal courts in the case of the suffragists who picketed the White House two years ago, they were powerless to act unless there was disorder.

A dozen women marched up and down the sidewalk in front of the embassy this morning, displaying banners criticizing the British government. State department officials immediately conferred with the District of Columbia commissioners and police authorities.

It was said that the British embassy had made no complaint. The women undertook a demonstration at the capitol yesterday, but were turned away by the capitol police. Before they staged a demonstration opposite the White House.

METHODS OF RAISING TOMATO PLANTS. By T. H. ABELL, Assistant Horticulturist, U. A. C.

The question often arises, "What is the best method for raising tomato plants in the hotbed?" There is probably no one best method for all conditions and all localities. But a discussion of various systems in use may help the grower in deciding what method he should use.

Probably the simplest and cheapest method is the one of planting the seed thinly broadcast or in rows, thinning them later to about 2 to 3 inches apart and then filling in with soil around the young plants. The theory involved is that the plants remain undisturbed until planting out time, and that the added soil insulates the young plants to send out more roots in the surface soil. These theories are good if they really work in practice. The possible drawbacks to this method are that the undisturbed root systems travel so far that when the plants are removed, many of the roots are broken off and the plants receive a check. And again, the new upper roots really make better plants?

Another method is to grow the young plants in almost pure sand, the idea being to eliminate disease and cause the plants to develop large root systems in their search for food in this infertile medium. Now, a good big root system is to be desired, and that should be the aim in any method. But may it not be that such a poor soil would fail to produce a good healthy top that would stand the change to rich soil in the field? Also, would not the roots be broken off and the plants receive a check? And again, the new upper roots really make better plants?

Still another method is to sow the seed directly in dirt bands and leave them growing there until setting out time when the whole thing is set in the field. For the benefit of the unfarmed, dirt bands are bottomless cups.

Ten Principles of Wage Payment Listed

CLEVELAND, April 3.—In an effort to devise a method of wage payment which will satisfy workers, owners, managers and consumers, a firm of New York industrial engineers, employed jointly by unionized employes and associated employers in the Cleveland women's garment industry, today announced a set of ten principles of wage payment.

These principles are based upon the industrial expert's definition of wages as a share in the fruits of industry and not a payment made by the employer.

"The wage is not paid by the employer; he merely incurs the production and acts as an agent to pay the worker for the past he has done," the wage and labor experts assert.
