AVIATOR INJURED

Falls While Giving an Exhibition at Sacramento

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 10.—At 1 o'clock this morning physicians in attendance on Charles K. Hamilton, the aviator who was badly injured in the wreck of his machine last night at the state fair grounds, gave out a statement, after a third examination, that Hamilton's condition was favorable. They do not believe that no permanent or dangerous injuries have been suffered. Numerous deep gashes and burns from the radiator of the engine of his biplane are the only visible results of the accident, but how serious are the internal injuries will not be known until later today. The jamming of the rudder of the machine caused the sudden drop, was the statement made by Hamilton as he lay swathed in bandages at the hotel. "When I hit, the steering wheel jammed and held me fast while the radiator was trickling over me." The physicians who are caring for Aviator Hamilton, who was injured last night when his biplane became unmanageable and fell with him at the state fair, report that the patient is resting easily this morning, and that there is no reason to believe anything serious will come of the accident. No bones were broken and there were no signs of internal injuries. The physician says the Hamilton will be suffering only from a severe shaking up and will be out again in a week or ten days.

FOUNDATION OF MARION HOTEL

The foundation work on the new Marion hotel is progressing and within the next ten days the Hamilton will begin the laying of brick. The retaining walls, which are being constructed of concrete, will be finished next week. Considerable trouble has been experienced by the workmen on the concrete because of the heavy rain which is causing an annoyance to the workers who are making ready the pit for the placing of the boiler. This pit will be sunk five feet below the surface of the cellar proper. Chivert & Leek, who have the contract for the brick work, will probably begin hauling material by the last of next week and the brick work will be started during the following week.

SMALL BANKS ARE TO BE REGULATED

New York, Sept. 10.—On behalf of business associates, James Lee, a curb broker, has undertaken to test the constitutionality of the new law which went into effect in New York state on September 1, to regulate all private banks or all business which in any way accepts, money for deposit. An order to show cause why the attorney general, district attorney, police commissioner and the state comptroller should be enjoined from enforcing the provisions of the law is before the state supreme court. Counsel for Mr. Lee argued that that law imposes unequal restrictions giving to the great business houses a freedom denied the smaller banker, to all intents and purposes depriving him of his business and his property without due process of law. Louis Marshall, who appears for the state attorney general in his argument, recalls how a commission appointed in 1907, by Governor Hughes found serious abuses in the small private banks throughout this city chiefly patronized by poor immigrants. During the panic of 1907, these lost $2,000,000. "It was easier to run a bank than a saloon," says the lawyer. "For the private banker was subjected to no regulation, whereas the saloon had to comply with distinct regulations." Justice Blair accepted the briefs of counsel and reserved decision.

FLAGS AT HALF MAST FOR FOREIGN PRESIDENT

Washington, Sept. 10.—An example of the growing kinship among peoples of the American hemispheres is the presidential order that the American flag be at half mast for a few days over the public buildings here as a mark of respect to the memory of Ferrnades Albano, late acting president of Chile, who died in Santiago on the sixth of this month. A similar order was issued when President Montt of Chile died in Europe, August 17, so that the flags have been kept almost constantly at half mast since the later date. This is almost without precedent. Heretofore the national standard has been placed at half mast only on the death of some distinguished American. It was not even lowered in the case of King Edward.

PROHIBITIONISTS IN COLORADO RATIFY THEIR TICKET

Denver, Sept. 10.—Prohibitionists in state convention here today ratified the ticket reported by their nominating committee and adopted a platform. MARRIED AT AGE OF 92

Old Man Finds His Affinity Rather Late in Life

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Volney E. Rusco established a record yesterday in the marriage license department in the county building. Mr. Rusco lacks two months of being 92 years old. He applied for a license to marry Miss Helen Conger, 44 years old. Clerk Salmonson, immediately after the departure of the couple, delivered to the archives and announced that all records had been smashed. Previously eighty-five years had been the age of the oldest applicant for a marriage license. Rusco, who is a veteran of the Civil war and a resident of Chicago for sixty years, was born in Waterloo, N. Y., on Nov. 9, 1818. He married at the age of 26, and his first wife lived to celebrate her sixty-seventh anniversary. She died five years ago. At his residence Mr. Rusco explained his reason for taking the latest step. "I grieved a lot over the death of my first wife," he said. "I got to be lonesome with nothing but my parrot to keep me company. I don't believe in the Robinson Crusoe type of existence as long as you don't live on a desert isle. "Since meeting Miss Conger two years, I felt that we were created for each other. Call it mental waves of psychic suggestion, or whatever you want, but I felt that way." "There was no formal proposal. I did not ask her if she would be mine. I knew she would, and she knew I wanted her. I remarked to her the other day: "About time we were applying for a license and she said any time I was ready she was."

SPIRITUALISTS ARE OFFERED PRIZE

New York, Sept. 10.—The fact that several spiritualistic meetings recently asserted that they have received messages from the late Prof. William James of Harvard, one of whose favorite themes was the possibility of communication between the dead and the living, has led the Metropolitan Psychological society here to propose a test as to the validity of all such assertions. The society offers a prize of $1,000 to any medium who will obtain from the spirit of Prof. James, when asked to speak through them, a statement of the contents of a certain letter sent by him a few days before his death to W. S. Davis, secretary of the society. Mr. Davis has the letter from Prof. James in his safe. No one else has seen it or has received from him any inkling of its contents. The president of the Psychological society, in making public the prize offer, makes the following comment on the alleged "messages" thus far put forward by various mediums. "The great difficulty with all the messages which have so far been published is that they are vague, indefinite, and trashy and could have been concocted by anyone. Such alleged communications have invariably followed the death of all persons of note in the spiritualistic field, but the very simple test herein proposed would considerably narrow the question down, and should easily be within the capability of any person actually in communication with the spirit of the late Prof. James. We recognize in Prof. James a great and open-hearted investigator. We have striven to maintain his spirit of open-mindedness toward all assertions and have endeavored to give them a full hearing and fair trying-out. That we have never encountered any phenomena of a superhuman kind does not wholly discourage us from looking into any fresh assertions advanced as to the existence of such."

CANAL MUST NOT FORTIFY

Panama Treaty Did Not Provide for Building of Fortifications

New York, Sept. 10.—Phillippe Bunau-Varilla, who was one of the negotiators of the Panama treaty of 1903, in a statement given out in Paris and cabled to this country, denies that this instrument invested the United States with the right to fortify the canal in his sense in which such fortifications are advocated by Colonel Roosevelt. Bunau-Varilla declares that the fortification mentioned in the treaty were those of a merely temporary character, intended to protect the canal against a malefactor, filibuster, local insurgents, aggression by bordering countries, and accidents of any kind that would endanger the waterway.

Reagan states that as soon as he is through with McGovern he will meet Peanuts Sinclair, if Peanuts will put up a side bet, but that he thinks it will not pay him to meet the Salt Lake boxer unless he does get some money on the side. He says there is no question in his mind but that he is Sinclair's superior at any time.

POLITICS AN INFLUENCE

Which Has an Unsettling Effect on Stock Market

New York, Sept. 10.—The week's stock market made no positive response to new developments. The only effect was of depression. The election result in Vermont and belief that a division was growing between the President and his predecessor were factors in making politics an unsettling influence. The government crop report and the week's weather conditions promised improvement in the crops, but the extra hazard from frost damage to cotton and corn, owing to the lateness of the start of these crops, left the final yield still uncertain. The enormous output of copper for August disappointed hopes of effective curtailment and sentiment in the iron and steel trades lacked confidence. Interior demands for money to move the crops continue, but moderated from the rate of the previous week.

BANKERS ORGANIZE

The committee will formulate by-laws, recommends officers for the organization and receive appointments made by the different banks of their representative to act as a member of the association.

RESTRICTING THE HINDU INFUX

San Francisco, Sept. 10.—Charles Nagel, secretary of the department of commerce and labor, arrived in San Francisco from Portland last night, and is spending a day here before returning to Washington. In an interview, he denied that he had come to investigate the conduct of the local immigration bureau by Commissioner Hart H. North. However, he will pay a visit of inspection to the immigration station at Angel Island. On the subject of Hindu immigration, upon which the Asiatic Exclusion league has recently been concentrating its attention, the head of the department had little to say. "Word was received in Washington that it is a most important matter. The requirements for entrance should not be mere physical measurements; we should look to the applicants' fitness for his new environment. I am hoping to be able to prepare some regulations with this in mind," he said.

INVITED THEM TO HIS FUNERAL

Newburgh, N. J., Sept. 10.—The early part of this week was spent by George W. Baker, a farmer of this township, in calling on his neighbors and jocularly inviting them to his funeral, which, he said, would be held this week. It was merely a joke, as Baker died last night at his home, where he had committed suicide by taking laudanum. He was 40 years old. No reason for the act is known. Little attention was paid to his grim joke at the time, but the neighbors invited will attend the funeral.

NO KNOWN CAUSE FERRY ACCIDENT

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 10.—That yesterday's wreck of Pere Marquette car ferry No. 18 and the loss of twenty-nine lives was not due to a storm, to overloading or to a breakdown in the vessel's machinery, and that the real cause of the disaster will never be fully determined, is the conclusion reached by General Superintendent W. D. Trump of the Pere Marquette railroad, who came here yesterday to investigate the wreck. According to the report sent by Mr. Trump to Pere Marquette headquarters in Detroit today, Captain Russell of car ferry No. 18 was merely asked by Captain Kilty to stand by when he arrived at the scene. Captain Kilty evidently not believing the vessel was in immediate danger. Captain Russell, however, observed that No. 18 was sinking and lowered his lifeboats before No. 18 went down. According to Mr. Trump, there were sixty-two people on board No. 18. The sixteen above the regular crew were four employees of the Chicago Navigation company, with Sergeant T. Cochran, vice-president of the company, and a corps of extra scrubbers, carpet layers, etc., who were working while the boat was moving in order to save time. Mr. Cochran was saved, but his four employees were lost. The compartment of the engine room was then found to contain a considerable amount of water, though not enough to disturb the firemen and deck hands sleeping there. Distress signals were given as the vessel continued to sink, and the lifeboats on the port side were lowered but not cut away from the ship, Captain Kilty continuing to head the steamer for the west shore of Lake Michigan. All of the survivors jumped or were thrown from the boat when she sank and were picked up by boats from the steamer No. 17.
