WOMAN WEEPS IN THE COURT ROOM

Overcome With Remorse, Cora Ellis Cries, Freely Admitting Her Crime and Accepting Responsibility—Her Male Companion Seeks to Recall His Plea of Guilty and Is Given Time to Do So.

When Cora Ellis was brought before Judge Howell this morning to receive her sentence for the crime of grand larceny, to which she and W. L. Seath pleaded guilty a few days ago, she broke down and wept bitterly. She was requested to approach nearer the judge and explain why she had stolen from her friends and employers, or give the reasons, if she had any, why the court should not pass judgment.

"I did wrong," she said, "and will have to suffer for it. I have nothing in particular to say why you should not sentence me. I took the things out of the house and gave them to Seath, and I was the first to think of stealing them. He knew the goods were stolen property when he took them. I am very sorry that I did this, but I am willing to suffer for it. The relationship between myself and Seath is simply that of friends, nothing more."

Without passing sentence on the woman, the court called Seath to stand up and state, if he could, why he should not be sentenced for the crime he had acknowledged to have committed. He told the court that he did not understand, when he pleaded guilty to the charge, that he would not be given a trial.

"I supposed that I would be tried just the same and would go given a chance to clear myself of the charge. I did not thoroughly understand all that was said to me when I was arraigned the other day. My hearing is not good and I think a good deal of what was said was not heard. I am guilty of the crime in a way, but I think they have placed the valuation of the goods that were stolen pretty high. I would like a little more time for consideration."

The court advised the defendant that he had the right to change his plea if he so desired, and that he would be given time to reconsider his former action in pleading guilty. He was given until tomorrow morning to think the matter over, and the passing of sentence in Cora Ellis' case was postponed until that time.

BAPTIZED IN THE ICY BERING SEA

Former Resident of Ogden is the First Woman to be Immersed in the Far North—Hundreds Witness the Ceremony Performed by an Elder of the Mormon Church.

Mrs. A. W. Anthony, a daughter of Mrs. C. A. Bybee of Ogden, drew a great crowd to the water front of Nome, Alaska, on September 22, when she was baptized in the icy waters of Bering Sea by an elder of the Mormon church. In a letter to her aunt, Mrs. C. U. Child of Riverdale, Mrs. Anthony encloses a clipping from one of the Nome papers, which is here reproduced.

From a Nome Paper.

"I baptize thee in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost," and with these words Mrs. A. W. Anthony was dipped below the icy water of Bering Sea opposite the Life Saving Station.

Mrs. Anthony is the first woman convert to the faith of the Latter Day Saints here in Nome, and during the history of the camp, very few baptismal services have been held of any denomination, so all the people who could get away at the hour of 2 in the afternoon were on hand to see how they did it and who would be the one that would be dipped beneath the icy waters of the Bering Sea.

At two o'clock Hugh Priest Cannon and his assistant, Mr. Winne, took up their position on the platform in the rear of the Miners & Merchants bank, Barricks Square, overlooking the water, and opened the baptismal services with a hymn, which was followed by an invocation.

Dr. Cannon then preached a service apropos of the occasion and was followed by Mr. Winne, who gave a short talk on the history of the Mormon church, and stated that he had lots of literature he wished to distribute to those present and after the baptismal was over he wished all would remain and receive one for they were free like the Gospel of the Latter Day Saints.

The aged Dr. Cannon then led Mrs. A. W. Anthony to the waters of Bering Sea and when she laid off her robe was dressed all in white to receive her acceptance into the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

A cold north wind was blowing at the time and the majority of those present were shivering from the cold, but the doctor enacting the role of the high priest of the Mormon church took the young mother by the hand and led her into the waters, where the breakers were beating upon the shore and in a clear voice went through the service given just before the immersion then he dipped the young woman below the waters and all was over. The crowd dispersed and went their respective ways shivering from the cold wind and out of sympathy for the young woman who had pledged her faith to the church of Latter Day Saints, by braving the crowd of curious spectators and allowing the retirement of the church here in Nome who has long since passed the mile stone of three score years and ten, baptize her in the icy waters of Bering Sea.

CAMPAIGN LEADERS ACTIVE

At a meeting of the Democratic central committee last night, W. W. Browning, was selected county chairman and it was decided that headquarters for the campaign be opened next Monday morning. Another meeting of the central committee will be held in the office rooms of C. C. Richards, Saturday afternoon, when it will be definitely decided where the chairman will establish quarters for the transaction of political business.

At the meeting last night, the chairman was given the power to select his own secretary, an executive committee and such other committees as he may deem necessary to appoint.

Chairman Dye, of the Republican central committee, expects to open headquarters in the early part of next week, when the political ball will be started rolling in dead earnest.

MURDERER IS BEING TRAILED

The police have been looking for a murderer, wanted in South Dakota, who is supposed to have boarded a freight train at Cache Junction bound for Ogden yesterday afternoon. The fugitive's name is Gant, but he has a number of aliases, one of which is Cashborne.

Yesterday evening a special officer, George Benson, from South Dakota, called at the police station and stated that he was trailing Gant and asked the assistance of the local police in locating the man.

According to the special officer's description, the murderer is about 28 years old, light complexioned, five feet eleven inches in height and is wearing corduroy trousers, soft shirt and leather-banded hat. He appears to be headed for Reno, Nev. There is a reward of $200 for his apprehension.

Some of the police are inclined to doubt the story that the man came to this city on a freight train from the junction, as they have been able to get absolutely no trace of him.

property, was out there and knocked off a sample weighing three or four ounces silver and $250,000 gold to the ton, taken from the property by Salt Lake parties. These are choice pieces but show how values make in the white quartz streak.

Since the discovery by the Indians, numerous parties have attempted to get control of the property. The Indians demand a large sum in coin of the realm paid down in their hands before they will permit white men, outside of Mr. Ray, who has their absolute confidence, to strike a pick into the rich vein. The indications are now that Salt Lake people will secure the property, and Mr. Ray came from there this week to close the deal, having recently gone over the property with Louie Jeffs, who made an inspection in behalf of local talent.

The Salt Lake people interested in the deal are Joe Lipman, George Wilson, George Woods, William Keating, George Raymond and others.

Deepest Hole Ten Feet.

"There is not a hole on the entire property 10 feet deep," said Mr. Ray yesterday, "but still some wonderful showings are found. There are but two claims, the Pierson-Winap and Lizzie Cinnabar. The rich stuff is found in white quartz in a rhyolitic porphyry. The vein seems to be running north 150 feet toward a blue dolomite time. Indian Ike when he made the discovery took out a canvas sack of ore weighing 40 to 50 pounds, for which he received $500, but it was probably worth more than that. Later he got chunks from the surface which went $8,000 to $10,000 to the ton. The vein can be traced 200 feet across, but the rich streak is from six inches to two feet wide. This shows $2 to $3 gold and a little silver eight to ten feet across. I brought in a little chunk weighing three and one-half ounces which contained $52 in gold."

Historic.

The Indian owners of the property are Ike Winap, Ben Lancaster (a Carlisle Plute student), Lizzie Cinnabar, Aunt Sally Cinnabar, Runery Johnnie and Blind Bill. All are Shoshones, except Lancaster. Ike's father, Mike Winap, had lived in those parts a long time. A year and a half ago he died at the age of 110. He ever warned his son Ike to let gold mines alone. This was on account of an experience with white 60 years ago. He, with some other Shoshones and friendly Plutes, conducted a party of whites up toward what is now the camp of National to show them where they might find "heaps" gold. No sooner had the Indian guides pointed out the treasure than the whites turned and slew most of the Indians. Mike Winap and one other made their escape. The story is confirmed by Judge Bonfield and other old residents of that part of Nevada who got the first hand from the Indians and others. But Ike, when he made the gold find two years ago, could not resist the temptation to dabble, and now he is asking $10,000 gold for his two claims.
