ORIGINATOR OF AEROPLANE DEAD

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Octave Chanute, the father of the aeroplane died at his home in Chicago today after an illness of several weeks. His death was not unexpected as he had been in feeble health due to advanced age.

Widely known as an engineer of many accomplishments, Mr. Chanute also was recalled as the originator of the heavier than air craft.

When, several years ago, he began experiments with horizontal kites, he was considered at least eccentric. His persistence resulted, however, in the Chanute glider, which was nothing more or less than the modern biplane without an engine. Mr. Chanute was able to glide several yards in a strong wind by manipulation of its wings. An engine mounted on this gave the Wrights their machine, and others followed.

Octave Chanute was born in Paris in 1832, arriving in America with his parents in 1838.

Besides being the author of many engineering papers, he made public his ideas of the conquest of the air in a volume published in 1894, entitled "Progress in Flying Machines."

Why Pay $6.00 For Coal

When you can buy coke for $5.50, delivered, and by mixing the two, cut down your fuel bill nearly one-half. Coke is a very lasting fuel when mixed with coal, because it burns much slower.

The cost of living is demanding our attention, and "Economy" must be our watchword. The cost of warming our houses during the cold months is an expensive item. Try coke mixed with slack coal to reduce the cost of cooking and heating during the winter months.

The coal dealers say they have plenty of slack coal at $2.50 per ton delivered. This coal mixed with coke will reduce your fuel account 40 per cent. If the coal is very dusty, moisten it a little; that will prevent it from working through the grates and it will burn better.

OGDEN TO JOIN BASEBALL LEAGUE

According to a decision reached at a meeting of baseball enthusiasts held in the Weber club yesterday afternoon an effort will be made to finance an Ogden club in the recently organized Union Association which was launched by W. H. Lucas.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one and was addressed by L. S. Thiel, owner of the Salt Lake franchise in the new league. The plan of organizing a stock company to finance the Ogden club will be followed in this city and an effort will be made to put an all-salaried, high class team in the field.

Interest in the Movement.

As a result of yesterday's meeting the matter has been taken up with several well known player-managers who have signified a willingness to pilot the Ogden club through the season. These men have money to invest in the club and after one has been chosen and required to put up one-fourth of the amount necessary to finance the undertaking, the stock company will be formed and the local business men will be asked to purchase stock sufficient to make up the remainder required.

At the meeting yesterday it was decided that a sum not less than $7,000 would be necessary to properly finance such a club and those interested in the proposition believe that this amount of stock can be sold in Ogden with confidence. It is the new league will be a success. L. S. Thiel has already contracted for an investment of approximately $18,000 for grounds, etc., at Salt Lake.

Other Cities Have Joined League.

According to the Salt Lake magazine Ogden is one of the last cities to fall into line on this new league proposition. McCloskey, of Butte, Mont., has financed his club already and there seems to be no question but what the necessary funds can be raised in the other cities on the circuit. The cities which will compose the league are Salt Lake, Twin Falls, Boise, Butte, Helena, and Ogden.

"If Ogden is ready to give its support I am ready to produce a man who will put up $1,000 of $1,500 as a starter on the funds necessary to establish a team in this city," said Mr. Thiel. "It will be necessary for the local organization to deposit a bond of $500 when the league is organized and another $500 before the first game of the season. This makes a bond of $1,000 which will be held by the league association and will bind the team to abide by the league rules during the period of five years. Every team of the league, of course, must make this same deposit and all of the towns have signified their willingness to come into the league except Ogden.

"There will be a maximum salary limit, so that one team cannot pay players more than another can afford. Should any of the teams be found paying a player more than the maximum stipend the management will be fined any amount seen fit by the commission up to $500."

Butte, Mr. Thiel states, has fully organized its organization and Boise is also in line. Great Falls has a subscription list of $5,000 for a team in this city and Twin Falls claims that it can raise $15,000 if that amount is necessary in order to secure a berth in the league. Salt Lake City under the personal guidance of Mr. Thiel is ready to enter the league and the site for the league park has already been selected. It will be located just across the street from the site of the wrecked Salt Palace.

Chin Favors League Ball.

Dad Chin accompanied Mr. Thiel to Ogden from Salt Lake City and expresses himself heartily in favor of Ogden having league ball for next season. T. E. Kelly of Salt Lake City also accompanied the Salt Lake magazine to Ogden.

Joseph Bailey, manager of the Ogden Rapid Transit company, Walter E. Anderson and Angus Kennedy, who had charge of the baseball team in this city last year, were present at the meeting and will take an active part in the organization in a local baseball association.

According to the plan laid down by President Lucas, of the new league, each team will play six days in succession with each of the other five teams of the league, or play on its home grounds for five weeks solid and then go out on the circuit for a week's series with each of the other teams. By this system there will be five weeks of baseball with games six days a week and then no baseball for five weeks. The extra day each week is allowed to permit of teams making jumps from one city to another.

If a club is organized in this city the manager will be a player of long experience in one of the major leagues and he will participate in all games. His financial interest in the club will be an incentive to make the team one of the best possible and get the greatest effort out of the players.

While this detail has not yet been given serious consideration by those interested, it is very probable that the Fair grounds will be used as the plant for the local club.

proof was on the railroads to show whether they have put into operation economies which he did not believe existed, and that those economies should first be practiced before making advances.

Charles B. Going, managing editor of an engineering magazine, told how the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe made a net saving of $5,300,000 in five years in its road and machine shops.

Harrington Emerson, engineer, factory manager, investigator and business instructor, described the application of scientific management to the railroads. He testified that it was by no means settled that larger locomotives meant diminished cost, while on the other hand, it was quite certain the railroads could not haul as much business with the smaller engines and other equipment of twenty years ago. He did not think very much of those railroads which had nothing in the way of scientific methods.

He referred to the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific several times in responses to questions by Com. Prouty, who asked him how it was that those two enterprising roads had not seen fit to adopt those principles, if they had not done so. He said that he talked with James J. Hill, and he knew that Mr. Hill's road moves more power for a less amount and hauls a larger tonnage per locomotive than does the Union Pacific.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23.—Today's session of the Interstate Commerce commission consisted mostly of discussion of the scientific management of railroads by expert witnesses. This line of testimony was closed late in the afternoon and the commission adjourned until Friday.

Scientific Management.

Attorney Louis Brandeis, for the Atlantic seaboard shippers, in summing up the scientific management testimony, reiterated his request that the commission conduct an independent investigation if it believes that the railroads have not introduced such scientific methods and he believed that he had produced evidence to show they had not. He said the use of the recent wage increases as an excuse for a rate increase pointed to an increase of the burdens of the American people.

He described as a prediction of the heats of the great trunk lines that the pending increases were only an earnest of what is to come—that the public is to expect and become accustomed to a progressive rise in rates throughout the country.

ROBT. ANDERSON UNDER ARREST

City Attorney of Provo Again Charged With Offense of Grave Nature.

Salt Lake, Nov. 21.—Robert Anderson, city attorney of Provo, was arrested in that city yesterday afternoon upon a complaint filed in this office of County Attorney Job P. Lyon of Salt Lake, in which he is charged with a statutory offense against a young woman under the age of consent. Ann Phillips, a young woman under the age of 17 years, whose home is at Provo, is the complainant. It is alleged in the complaint that the crime was committed in Salt Lake City, July 25, 1910.

According to information obtained by County Attorney Lyon yesterday, Anderson brought the Phillips girl to Salt Lake from Provo after he had ingeniously formulated plans for her downfall. It is claimed by the county attorney's office that Miss Phillips is of a lamentable character.

Anderson Gives Bail.

"Anderson had sought young women inclined toward the reading of certain kinds of literature bordering upon classics," said County Attorney Lyon after the complaint had been filed in his office. "He tried to interest his victims in this kind of literature, which, according to his arrangement, tended to poison their minds. On July 25 he brought the Phillips girl to Salt Lake and is alleged to have mistreated her."

Furnishes Bail.

Anderson gave bond in Provo last night in the sum of $2,000 and was released until the date for his hearing in Salt Lake is set.

This is the second time that Anderson has been arrested for an offense against Miss Phillips. Recently he was made defendant in a suit for divorce by his wife, who alleged illicit relations between her husband and Miss Phillips.

Miss Jesse Knight denounced the attempt in a public speech at Provo, and this was followed by the filing of a $50,000 damage suit against Mr. Knight in this city by Anderson.

Close upon the heels of this action Anderson was arrested in Provo upon a complaint signed by Miss Phillips' mother, charging him with a statutory offense against her daughter. Anderson was released under bonds in the sum of $2,000 and is still awaiting a hearing on that charge.

led by revolutionary leaders until he left the city, although he disclaimed warlike intentions.

He came to Mexico disguised as a peon, having forfeited bonds for his appearance on a charge of sedition growing out of a speech delivered at San Luis Potosi, May 29, prior to the election in which he was a candidate for the presidency against Diaz.

Madero was met here by Juan Sanchez Ascona, a former member of the Mexican congress who also is a brother-in-law of Juan D. Casasus, former ambassador to the United States, and by Enrique Bordez Manuel, an orator for the anti-Diaz party in Mexico.

Both are graduates of Colleges. Ascona is a graduate of Harvard and Madero of Ecole Centrale, Paris.

Madero seldom showed himself and claimed to be opening his campaign for the presidency six years hence. He has close friends here and through them he was able to purchase large quantities of arms and ammunition—this fact not being known until after the revolution broke out.

The arms were smuggled into Mexico largely by fording the river south-west of here in a remote ranch region. The Madero estate of Coahuila extends many miles along the Mexican side of the river at the point where the crossing was made.

Denies Any Connection With Junta.

In the course of his operations he made public his opposition to the Diaz regime, but spoke of a peaceable revolution and denied any connection with the revolutionary junta that has existed here for two years.

The Madero family is the wealthiest in northern Mexico. It owns thousands of acres of good land in Coahuila and Nuevo Leon and carries considerable bank accounts in New York and Paris. The leading banks in the states named are controlled by the Maderos and their ability to raise ready money is said to be great.

The loyalty of other members of the family has never been questioned with the exception of the father and brothers of Francisco. The vast resources of this branch of the family are supposed to be available for the use of the leader in the present outbreak.

Received Shipment of Arms.

During more than forty days that Madero spent in this country he was in constant consultation at one of the hotels here with visitors from all sections of Mexico, who came and went, usually remaining a few days. His family is still at the hotel.

Just before Madero left to join the insurrectionists in Mexico shipments of arms to a friend of his in this city were apprehended and it became known that he was actively leading
