DANCING PARTY.

A beautiful Christmas scene attracted the attention of 200 guests as they entered the New Colonial last evening in response to the cordial summons of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Boyd. Festoons of evergreen, holly berry, mistletoe, Xmas trees, Xmas bells, hundreds of red candles in brass and golden candlesticks and a profusion of red carnations were used in carrying out the cheery Christmas decorative plan. Cozy corners, with rugs, davenport and easy chairs, large mirrors adorning the walls, were nicely arranged. Red and white incandescent lights, effectively placed, added to the charm of the lighting effect. In the supper room the same color scheme prevailed. Small tables, daintily laid with handsome embroidered linen or chuney lace covers and adorned with red carnations and mistletoe, were presided over by five attractive and daintily attired young girls. They were the Misses Phyllis Brown, Dorothy Wright, Ruth Dickson, Marion and Louise Wright. Salads, hot rolls and steaming hot coffee were nicely served. Punch, from a handsome cutglass bowl in dainty cut glass cups, was served throughout the evening. The punch table was prettily laid and adorned with mistletoe. Over the table large red Christmas bells outlined the musicians' balcony.

A fine musical program and a delightful absence of formality made the evening an evening of happy and thoroughly enjoyable one. Handsome evening gowns worn by the ladies enhanced the beauty of the scene. The hostesses were very becomingly gowned. Mrs. Brown wore a delicate shade of pink charmeuse satin with overdrapes of lace in white and gold, with fringe trimming and a touch of pink and white pearls adorning the hair and diamonds while Mrs. Boyd made a striking contrast in an elegant imported gown of black spangled net over chiffon silk, with corsage outlined with real old lace, a handsome diamond ornament fastening the velvet bow at the waist line in the back, beautiful pink roses adorned the corsage and ropes of pearls, with bow of tulle confining the hair.

Among the Salt Lake guests were Miss Adeline Jacobs, Miss Erma Brown, Miss Dorothy Watson, Mr. Ansel, C. F. Farr, ack Hammond and James Collins.

Judge J. A. Howell this morning granted a retail and wholesale liquor license to Thomas Foley, the place of business to be in the room formerly occupied by the "Jole" theater in the Utah National bank building on Washington avenue, near the corner of Twenty-fourth street. The wholesale license is good for one year while the retail license will remain in force only six months, beginning January 1, 1912.

The Geo. H. Tribe company, on Twenty-fourth street, between Washington and Hudson avenues, was granted a retail liquor license, the company already having a wholesale license. This license will go into effect January 1, 1912, and remain in force for a period of six months.

A retail license in these two applications applies to bottle goods trade, it being specifically stipulated that there shall be no drinking in the places and that no liquor shall be consumed on the premises.

MUNSEY WILL NOT TESTIFY

Los Angeles, Dec. 15.—J. E. Munsey, the Salt Lake City labor union leader, declared here late last night that if the power of the United States government forces him into the grand jury room he will refuse to give any testimony, upon the ground that such testimony might incriminate him. A few days ago Munsey had a long conference with Special Prosecutor Lawler and it was announced then that he was ready to tell whatever he knew about the case. Now he insists that he will not give testimony.

"I have made no confession," declared Munsey last night to a newspaper correspondent at the Chapman hotel. "I have not confessed anything. I am not going to testify before the United States grand jury."

"I am going to stand upon my rights and I will declare that testimony that I might be asked to give would tend to incriminate me and will refuse to answer questions. They may indict me, but they cannot make me testify. It is possible that I will be adjudged in contempt of court, but I can stand for that. I have nothing to tell and I will not testify."

The successful transatlantic voyage of the Toiler, an interstate combination motor ship which was built at Wallis-end-Tyne, for carrying grain on Canadian canals, has given impetus to the building of similar craft by British shipyards. The Toiler was especially designed as a large cargo carrier and the saving in engine room fuel by the installation of gas engines made for economy in space. The vessel will carry 57,000 bushels, or an increase of 15,000 bushels over a steam-driven ship of her dimensions. In addition to the savings in stokers' wages here is the reduction in fuel costs, the boat running on two tons of oil per day in comparison with a steamship's eight or nine tons of coal.

BACHELORS TAXED

(Continued from Page One.) those states would have the advantage of water communication with the sea. Hamburg's consent was obtained by a trade of territory necessary for extending the city's harbor area. In one important respect the new law fails to meet the expectations of the agrarians. In order to obtain the support of the other states for la plans, Prussia was obliged to agree to fix the tolls at a very low figure, and hence they will not prove a very strong check to foreign grain. It is freely predicted by the opponents of the plan that the rates as fixed will not yield nearly so much revenue as assumed by the government and that they will have to be considerably increased if the promised improvement of the affluents of the Rhine is to be carried out.

Before this law can take effect it will be necessary for the government to secure an agreement with Holland and Austria, with which countries Germany has treaties guaranteeing the freedom of navigation on the two streams mentioned. As both countries are strongly opposed to bartering away their treaty rights, it is by no means certain that the law will ever be put into operation.

JURY DISAGREES IN FRAUD CASE

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 15.—The jury disagreed and was discharged today in the case of Arthur M. and Clarence A. Moore, officers of the Alaska Investment company, charged with using the mails to defraud. The final vote was 5 to 4 for conviction. The case was set for retrial in March.

The company had agencies in various cities, promising employment to purchasers of stock. A large number of stockholders were sent to Nome, Alaska, in 1909, to work on the company's Eldorado mining ditch, and, being unable to get pay from the company, they were stranded in the far north with winter coming on. Urgent appeals caused the United States to send a revenue cutter to rescue them.

THE JUDICIAL NOMINEE.

When there is but one judicial officer to be elected his name appears alone on the general election ballot. If he receives a majority of the votes cast, if there be more than one judicial officer to be elected there is no provision for a ballot of any kind on the general election mark that any candidate at the primary election received a majority of the votes cast. Assemblyman Joel believes that this should be remedied, as under a decision of the Supreme court of this state a judicial officer cannot be elected at a primary election, although when there is but one judicial officer to fill the name of the candidate receiving a majority of the votes is the only name to appear on the ballot at the general election. The amendment

TRUST FOR INDIA.

According to the Calcutta newspapers, a movement exists to combine the scattered sugar interests of India into a local trust with outside capital, establish a modern central mill and place the sugar business of the country on a national market basis. The local trade is to be handled by a central agency, but the agency will be under the control of foreign sugar interests, which will find a market for all available sugar not used in India.

India's area is great, and with the aid of modern business and industrial methods it should become one of the foremost sugar producing countries in the world.

Ready Permission.

As an uptown manufacturer and his wife were motoring through the country in Bucks county the wife saw an apple orchard with several trees laden with bright red fruit. Her mouth watered for apples, and she induced her husband to stop the car and go into the orchard.

As he put his foot inside he encountered a man. "May I have some apples?" he asked. "Sure, half yourself," replied the other.

"How much will I owe you?" "Oh, nothing, nothing at all I don't own the orchard," said the man.—Philadelphia Times.
