FAILS TO PUBLISH LETTERS.

The Examiner publishes only one out of three letters that passed between the City and the Ogden River Reservoir company. Why? Yet the Examiner does much crowing about publishing all the news.

AN EXCELLENT PAPER.

One of the best papers in the state is "The Citizen" of American Fork, and one of the best features of that wide-awake paper is the progressive stand that marks its editor as fearless and outspoken. "The Citizen" is pioneering the way for better conditions in the politics of Utah and is deserving of support.

CAN STATE WATERS BE FILED ON.

The morning Examiner people act as if no one has a right to file on water in the South Fork of Ogden river. The state law gives that right to anybody who will pay the fees. The law permits water to be filed on for five purposes, for domestic use, for municipal use, for power use, for irrigation use and for mining purposes. The city filed on the South Fork water for municipal use, and for that purpose the city has the first right. The president of the new reservoir company filed on the water for irrigation use and he is entitled to all the water the city does not use; and, for irrigation storage, he has the first right to store all the water the city does not use for city domestic purposes.

Every lawyer will tell you the above is absolutely correct, and that no one can prevent the new reservoir company from storing the water. Yet if the company should store ALL the flood water in the South Fork canyon, then the city, if its first right is fully preserved, can force the reservoir company to let the city's share of the water run free for city use.

The city need not fear; if its water rights are protected, no one can steal them. The constitution protects cities in their water rights. If the reservoir company shall be liberal enough to build a dam big enough to store its own and the city's water too, why object? The city will be ahead on the deal.

QUESTIONS PUT TO ROOSEVELT.

Colonel Roosevelt Spoke in Boston on Saturday. The Associated Press, in reporting the meetings, said:

"The Progressive campaign in Massachusetts was opened today by ex-President Roosevelt with scenes departing from those traditionally associated with a political rally. Some of those who took part in it compared it rather to a huge revival meeting.

"Supporters of the new party gathered in throngs, sang hymns and cheered Colonel Roosevelt, the central figure in it all, made four speeches. He mixed politics and morals, now exhorting his hearers to set up a high standard in public and private life, again speaking bluntly in his conception of political procedure and criticizing his opponents sharply. At each meeting of the Progressives, they sang the battle hymn of the new party, "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

At the meeting on Boston common, Roosevelt was interrupted with questions and his answers are well worth repeating:

"I am delighted to tell you about Mr. Perkins," the colonel said. "Mr. Perkins is a rich man. He came into this movement, not at my request, but of his own initiative. I felt just the same curiosity that the man in the crowd who asked me about him felt. I said to him, 'Mr. Perkins, why are you supporting me?' Mr. Perkins flushed and said he did not know, but that he ought to be offended, but I told him he should not be and that I was both surprised and pleased to have his support.

"The prime reason why I am with you," he told me, "is because I have children. I have come to the conclusion that this country will not be a good place for my children unless we have substantial justice, unless the relations between capital and labor are on a better basis. I wish to support any movement which will bring that about. So far as I can see," Mr. Perkins told me, "you are the only public man who in good faith is supporting those views."

"I have told you literally what Mr. Perkins said. Curiously enough it was almost exactly what Mr. Flinn said to me later. I have immensely appreciated the support of Mr. Perkins and Mr. Flinn. Their support has been given in the open. Mr. Perkins and Mr. Flinn both heartily approve of the Progressive platform adopted at Chicago.

"I said to Mr. Perkins: 'You are in the steel industry. Before you support me, I wish you to understand that I intend to work for regulation of the big industrial concerns, including the steel industry.' Mr. Perkins said that was all right and that he believed in it.

"Mr. Flinn and Mr. Perkins have supported this movement without asking a thing and with the assurance given to me personally that they are not seeking a thing."

"Tell us about Taft," shouted a man in the crowd.

"I never discuss dead issues," Colonel Roosevelt shouted back. Replying to another question as to whether the Progressive party was to be permanent, he said:

"If this movement concerned only me, I wouldn't be in it myself."

In speaking of the moral issue involved he said: "Our whole movement is based on the theory that no political life is worth living if it is not based on the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule."

A LIE WELL STUCK TO.

The Morning Examiner believes that a lie well stuck to is better than the truth. Sunday morning it said:

"William Glasman found bedrock with the city's money, and then filed on the rights for his own private and his own corporation use." There is just enough truth in the statement to give a good liar a chance to lie. Now what are the facts? Here they are:

Mr. Glasman made an agreement in 1911, by and with the advice and consent of the City council, to sink to bedrock with city money with the understanding and agreement that Ogden City should be paid back by the reservoir company in water rights.

This paper offers to donate to the Crittenton Home $100 if the Examiner can furnish the legal proof that the said statement is false.

By the way, the Examiner is continually crowing about giving all the news, yet it publishes a letter from Mayor Fell to Mr. Glasman but refuses to publish the answer. A great newspaper, eh? Yes, for the "interests."

"STICK TO THE TEXT," BECAUSE IT HURTS TO CHANGE.

Saturday the Examiner said it was a crime for any one to make a second filing on water after the city had filed for the first right. Then Saturday evening The Standard pointed out that Mr. M. S. Browning, one of the principal owners of the Examiner, filed on the Willard Creek water, after the city bought the first filing from Frank Moore and others, and that the city lost the filing and Mr. Browning now owns a splendid power plant at Willard creek furnishing electricity.

Now, the facts are, that Mr. Browning under the law had a perfect right to make a second filing on Willard creek and he had a perfect and legal right to push the city aside, when the city refused to comply with the law. Now, Mr. Glasman also filed on a stream of water on which stream the city filed first about four years ago, Mr. Glasman's filing being a secondary right. The Examiner calls Mr. Glasman many names and says he is guilty of a crime for doing just what Mr. Browning did. Of course, if Mr. Glasman did wrong, then M. S. Browning did wrong. We object to the Examiner calling us names when its own owners are more guilty than we. The owner of the Examiner took all the rights in Willard creek while Mr. Glasman placed a document on record that he would not take the city water and that the city could have its water stored at actual cost in the reservoir Mr. Glasman is to build. Now, we are willing for the Examiner to call us criminals, but we insist on the Examiner's owners being placed in the same class.

Is there one law for the Examiner people and another for the Standard people?

Does it not make you sick to hear the Examiner say "stick to the text." What does that mean? It just means that only Mr. Glasman must be criticised. If others rob the city or steal the city blind, that is alright, but as to Mr. Glasman, why that's a horse of another color!

Mr. Glasman is building a reservoir that will double the population of Ogden and double the taxable property of Weber county. Why not let him do it? David Eccles, Judge Dee, John Pingree, John Watson, H. H. Spenser and M. S. Browning spent a whole summer debating whether to build or not to build and they finally abandoned the scheme.

Why not let Mr. Glasman make the venture? Surely he is entitled to all he can make out of it, if the above men, all careful, shrewd investors, could not see sufficient profit in the enterprise to risk their money.

THEIR WEAK REPLIES.

The Provo Post evidently is on the pay roll of Governor Spry. There are four or five papers in Utah showing similar symptoms of the special pleader. Those papers, when they comment on the campaign for better conditions in state government being made by this paper and its publisher, instead of attempting to reply with argument, resort to mean personalities, which is evidence of weakness.

Neither this paper nor its publisher has said anything derogatory of Governor Spry as a man, the criticisms have been directed against his policies and the abuses which have crept into the state government under his administration. It is our right and our duty to place the stewardship of the governor under review.

It is no answer to the statements made by this paper to reply that the publisher of this paper is ambitious.

The Post, as usual, is wrong when it states that William Glasman is a candidate for any office this fall. There is no office Mr. Glasman is seeking.

The Post is also in error when it says that Mr. Glasman has "personal prejudice" against Governor Spry, as his personal relations with the Governor are of the best. Neither has the Ogdenite found any fault with William Spry as an individual, but as governor, Mr. Spry has done things that are not for the best interests of Utah, and as such we have a right to criticize him without being accused of wishing to supplant the governor.

The following letter, addressed to the Salt Lake Tribune, explains itself and shows just how Mr. Glasman has criticised the governor. If that is attacking the governor, then we plead guilty. Many more such attacks will be made. This paper and its publisher, Mr. Glasman, has no political ambition. But we do think the time has come when the people should know the truth about how the State of Utah conducts its business affairs and who are responsible for the same.

The splitting up of the federal bunch is a by-play and it is done to fool the people. It is claimed that the federal bunch is against Governor Spry for re-election, yet the federal machine will renominate him. Just watch the Republican convention and see how Spry is re-nominated.

Here is the letter addressed to the Tribune, which that paper failed to print:

"Editor Salt Lake Tribune. I notice an article in this morning's Tribune, in which you state that, while my speeches are ostensibly in the interest of the Progressive party that the same are 'largely devoted to attacks on Governor Spry.'

"Much of what you say in the article is true, but the last line does me an injustice. I am not opposed to the capital being located in Salt Lake City, and I never said so in my public speeches. I told the people in Southern Utah that Governor Spry had set aside one million dollars in cash and had a million dollars in bonds appropriated for the building of a state capitol, since he had been Governor; that I was convinced that the two million dollars would not build the capitol and that probably as much more would be needed to finish the same.

"I have said that I did not believe the State of Utah was ready to build such an extensive capitol and I wanted the two million dollars of capital money used in the building of about ten reservoirs in different parts of the state in order that more land might be placed under cultivation; that we should adopt that policy in order to keep our young people at home instead of forcing them to leave for other states in the union, as well as depart for Canada and Mexico; that if such a policy was adopted for five years, the money from the reservoir water sold to the farmers, would be returned to the state treasury and could then be used to build the capitol in Salt Lake City; that I believed it was a mistake to exhaust the resources of Utah in building a capitol at the present time; that I believed it was the best interests of Salt Lake City that the country around it be built up, if Salt Lake City were to plan for the future; that the building of ten to twenty reservoirs in the different counties in the state would do more to make Salt Lake grow than the building of a capitol building at this time.

"I said that I did not wish to have it understood that I simply proposed such a plan to injure Salt Lake City, because I was willing to have a binding law made that not only two million dollars should be used to build a capitol for Utah, but twice that amount might be used, if the reservoir propositions were first put through; that such a plan would give more taxable land to the state; would increase the population; would make the railroads more prosperous, make Salt Lake City grow and make the burden less on the state when the capitol is finally built.

"I ask the Salt Lake Tribune to study this plan and see if it is not for the interest of Salt Lake.

"I know the people of Salt Lake want their city to grow. The building of the capitol will not do it, but the starting of a dozen or more reservoirs within five hundred miles of Salt Lake City would give Salt Lake City such an opportunity for prosperity that I believe, instead of unfavorably criticizing my plan, the people of Salt Lake City should be willing to adopt it. "Very truly yours,
(Signed) WILLIAM GLASMAN.

LABOR NEWS OF ALL COUNTRIES

The German co-operative societies are holding their annual exhibition in Berlin. They have taken the largest building available for the purpose in the city and filled it with samples and exhibits of all kinds. At the present time they claim a membership of 1,325,000, a figure which has doubled itself in the past seven years and is increasing at the rate of 12 per cent annually. The turnover for 1911 amounted to $126,500,000, a sum sufficient to affect materially the general retail market.

It is the intention of the Western Union Telegraph company to institute a pension system, which shall automatically extend to all the 40,000 of its employes, it is announced. How soon this plan is to go into effect is not stated. All employes of twenty years' standing who have reached the age of seventy years will be given pensions. Disabled employes, whose disability is not their own fault, may also be pensioned.

Alarmed at the growth of labor unrest throughout Japan, the mikado's advisers are urging the speedy passage of the diet of an amendment to the factory law designed, as it is expressed in Japan, to prevent future "outbreaks of dangerous thought." By the amendment's provisions large manufacturers are required to set aside a percentage of their profits for their employes in addition to their regular wages. The employes will receive this money, however, only upon completion of specified terms of service.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—Mrs. O. H.
