A RAILROAD FROM OGDEN TO NORTHWEST.

Surveyors are running lines north from Promontory Point and a persistent rumor has it that the Oregon Short Line is to build a road into Idaho and Oregon which will be a shorter line to the northwest than the present route from Granger to Pocatello and on west.

This news, if confirmed, would do much to stimulate the growth of Ogden, as the building of a cut-off from Promontory Point would be equivalent to building the road out of Ogden.

The surveying gangs have been in the field for some time and one line has been staked up the west side of Promontory Point, skirting the lake.

Those who have investigated the movements of the surveyors have been informed that a preliminary survey shows that a line of low gradients, with no mountain ranges to cross, can be constructed which will reduce the distance over the Harriman lines to Portland, Seattle and the Northwest sixty miles as compared with the Granger route.

The present Oregon Short Line, starting at Granger, goes through a desert region where heavy grades are encountered in crossing the mountains to Montpelier, Idaho. With a cut-off out of Ogden to the northwest passenger travel coming this way would avoid the desert and slow mountain climbing and make better time than is now made on the Granger route.

If a railroad is built out of Promontory Point, the Ogden-Lucien cut-off will be double tracked from Ogden and trains for the Northwest will be diverted at this point.

The Harriman officials apparently see enough merit in this proposed cut-off to warrant the keeping of a large surveying party in the field.

With the building of such a cut-off, Pocatello would be reduced in activity as a railroad terminal and shop center and Ogden would be correspondingly made more important.

A road to the Northwest from the edge of Great Salt Lake would help develop a vast empire of rich land awaiting the coming of transportation facilities and the line would help to keep out a road which already has been surveyed by the Goulds.

others brought in contact with the affliction admit there is spreading something in the nature of a scourge, which eventually must receive the attention of those who hope to keep the American people above the worst form of degeneracy.

OPENING OF THE CANYON TROLLEY LINE.

The opening of the Ogden Canyon trolley line is an event of more than passing importance. The electric road makes possible a trip in the canyon, one of the scenic wonders of the West, and a return to town within an hour, if such a quick journey is desired. It opens to local people, and travelers an outing at a minimum of expense. Tourists can stop over between trains and view the beauties of a mountain gorge where cliffs, trees, brooks and wild flowers make up a wonderland. Ogden canyon is brought nearer to the overland trains than any equally attractive wildwood or rustic spot in the country.

Over in Colorado they have the Garden of the Gods which travelers visit in countless thousands. There you see a splash of water and grotesque outlines in the rocks which your fancy is expected to fashion into strange figures. Compared with Ogden canyon, the Garden of the Gods is a dry, eye-wearing spot. But the Coloradans make the most of their attraction by boosting persistently. With the same boosting Ogden canyon, now that the trolley is well into the gorge, should bring thousands of strangers to this city to ride out to the most beautiful of nature's wonders.

BANKS OF OGDEN AS STRONG AS GIBRALTAR.

Friday this paper published six bank statements, covering all the banks of the city, in which the figures prove that there is no city in the west the size of Ogden with banks so strong and prosperous.

The First National and the Pingree show big increases, mention of which was made yesterday. To those increases should be added the resources of the following:

Ogden State Bank, $1,717,599.93.
Ogden Savings Ban, $1,184,800.31
Utah National Bank, $980,268.52.
Commercial National, $750,988.00.

The total resources of the six banks, less than a year ago, were $7,333,988.99 and on last Wednesday they were $9,596,283.85, or an increase of $2,262,294.86, which is over 30 per cent.

The banks now hold a reserve found double that required by law and are so fortified with cash as cause outsiders to pronounce the local banks among the strongest in the west.

If the bank statements foreshowed the city's growth, then Ogden is at the beginning of a great building and industrial awakening.

THE BOY WHO KILLED HIS BROTHER.

(Morning Examiner.)

That is a distressing story which comes from California of a boy of twelve years old, who shot his brother six years of age and buried the little fellow alive in a pig pen.

Crimes of that kind have no preventive other than the precepts taught in the nursery. Murderous thoughts seldom manifest themselves in young children, and when they do, the child's mind almost invariably is found to be weak or early misguided by wrong teaching and example.

There is nothing of the hardened criminal in a child and the promptings of a murderous act can come from only one of two sources—a failure to understand the consequences coupled with impulsiveness, or a deranged mentality caused by a deformity which has unbalanced the mind.

The parents in the case of the living and dead children are certainly afflicted to the extreme of human endurance.

CAPACITY OF FISH HATCHERY IS DOUBLED.

State Fish and Game Warden Fred Chambers returned to Ogden yesterday and reports that the proposed capacity of the new hatchery at Murray will be doubled from one to two million spawn. He says that the commission has been boring wells, and that a 90-gallon well was struck Friday.

Deputy Commissioner Jacklin also arrived here yesterday from Fish Lake, bringing news that an additional two million spawn had been planted in the Mountain Trout company hatchery. Between now and September, Mr. Jacklin will place 3,000,000 fry in the various streams of the state. At Richfield the hatchery will be used for 1,000,000 spawn, according to Mr. Jacklin.

Psychological Mystery.

New London has a haunted house in which dried beans fly about recklessly. That's the ghost of a small boy easy enough. But the ghost of a bean-shooter presents greater psychological difficulties.

THOMAS IN HIS OWN DEFENSE

PRACTICALLY DENIES ALL THE CHARGES AGAINST HIM.

Several More Witnesses Testify in His Favor—Investigation Adjourned Until Tuesday.

At the industrial school investigation Friday Joseph Burdette was the first witness called in the afternoon session. He is a parole officer, and related methods used by the parole committee to obtain affidavits from the inmates. He declared that the questions were asked the inmates and answered voluntarily, and that no coercion was used in the matter.

Burdette identified the affidavit of Miss Ada Swenson, a former inmate. Miss Swenson swore that the statement of Mrs. Hillard that she had been asked improper questions in regard to an escape in the canyon was entirely false. The woman is now married and lives in Bingham canyon, and claims that the gnostic science taught her in the state institution has proved highly beneficial to her as practical housewife.

An affidavit of a Mr. Anderson, an instructor in education at the institution, was next introduced. Anderson claimed that the conditions prevailing at the school were highly commendable and favorable.

Affidavits of two former employees of the school were read. They showed that several boys had been severely punished in their presence.

W. H. Ackaret, who was employed for four years in the farming detail at the school, was the next witness. Ackaret entered the employ of the state at the institution before the appointment of Superintendent Thomas. He declared that he had from four to six boys on his detail, and that they were whipped only when they attempted to run away or when they committed some unmentionable crime.

Affidavits of two former employees of the school were read. They showed that several boys had been severely punished in their presence.

On cross-examination Ackaret was forced to admit he was released from his duties at the school on June 1st of this year, but was reinstated on June 15th by Superintendent Thomas at the salary which he had been receiving before his dismissal. He declared he did not know the reason for his discharge, nor the cause of his reinstatement.

Ackaret stated that the boys were not spared when punishment was meted out. He admitted that on one occasion, seven boys who were to be whipped, were forced to run around in a circle and receive their beatings in turn as they came past the manipulator of the whip. One boy, he testified, fell to the ground, apparently from exhaustion, but he declared that the youngster was "faking" to be excused from the whipping. The school band, Ackaret said, played popular airs during the whippings.

The witness declared that one of the boys, a lad named Hudson, spoke to Mr. Thomas after the whipping, and thanked the superintendent for the beating, saying that he believed that he deserved it.

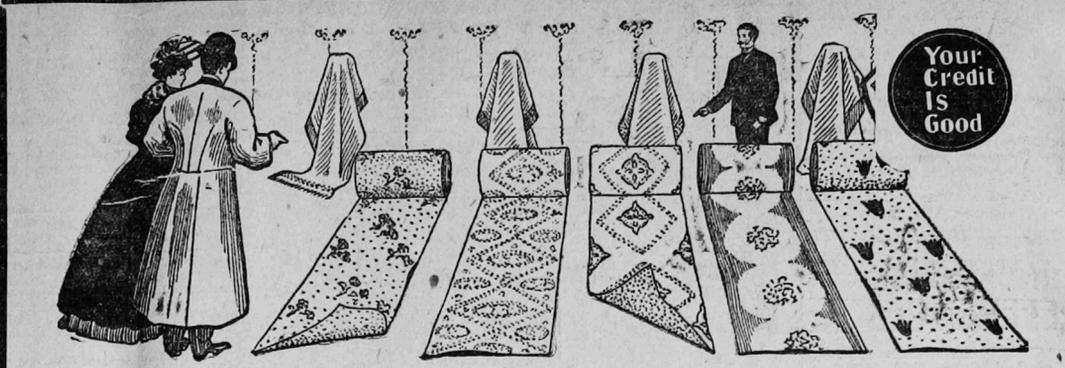

Ackaret admitted that he used to see, but did not see, the boys before the whippings, but declared that he lectured the boys often on the ill-effects of such indulgence. He was asked if he had ever taken the Lord's name in vain, and said "he supposed that he had," but added that the boys were beaten when they did either of these things.

Mrs. N. I. Ives of Salt Lake was called to the witness stand. She said she had a boy at the school some time ago but he is now out on parole. Mrs. Ives declared that he was taken ill with scarlet fever and she came to see him on Castilian eve, 1909. While she was sick he was given the best of attention by the nurse and employees, and Superintendent Thomas did everything possible for him. She observed that the sick inmates were all well treated. Her boy has improved 90 per cent, she said, as a result of his treatment in the reformatory.

She said that from her observations boys were well fed and had plenty to eat. The witness said that in her opinion Thomas is a thorough Christian gentleman and that his treatment of her son and others at the school was unquestionably good. Witness said she is a Scientist.

Mrs. H. H. Thomas, wife of Superintendent Thomas, was the next witness. Had been the matron of the school since November 1, 1905. Her work is chiefly in the boys' department. She explained her duties to be the supervision of the housework, looking after the clothing for the boys and a general supervision of the nursing, cook room, food supply and the household help. The menu was prepared by her and submitted to the superintendent for approval. Witness used on the tables of the inmates the same as on the superintendent's table. It had been reported to her at one time that the syrup at the school was sour. She ordered the steward to put it aside and use no more of it on the tables. This he did. Currants were wormy at times and when found so were destroyed. When she came to the school the bedding was very poor, declared the witness. A number of blankets have been purchased because they can be easily laundered. Mrs. Thomas said she had some experience as a teacher, having taught in the Third ward in what is now known as the Grant school. Very rarely had any trouble with the boys; witness never had them whipped as the result of any friction between themselves and the matron. Witness said some of them have to be taught that they can not run the institution, but the great majority are tractable. Whipping at the school, she said, was rare. For several months, some times, there is no whipping at the school. Witness says each of the boys are given a change of linen and are required to use the bath each week. Ministers of the various churches of the city are frequently invited to the school on Sundays and deliver lectures to the boys and girls. Witness said she considered Mr. Brown, formerly a cook at the school, entirely competent, but that he was high tempered and extravagant.

Thomas Myers was recalled and testified that the work done on Thomas' residence by J. H. Scott, the school

AN AFFLICTION WHICH IS UPON THIS COUNTRY.

Chief of Police Thomas Browning has returned from a meeting of the chiefs of police held in Buffalo, New York. While east he had a rare opportunity to study the regulation of the liquor traffic, as enforced in large cities, the control of the social evil, and the smaller vices of those places, and he comes home with a feeling of pride in local conditions.

He says Sunday closing is a farce in nearly all the large cities. Liquor is sold in disregard of the ordinances and women of all classes visit the saloons.

Street walkers swarm through the main thoroughfares of New York, Brooklyn and other cities after ten o'clock at night and they and their casual acquaintances are welcome to wine rooms and other quarters where their clandestine acts are winked at by owners of the houses to which they resort.

In some cities the women of the underworld are isolated and held within bounds; in other places they are scattered. Detroit, in its restricted district, has accomplished more than any other city. There are detention homes and hospitals within the district where the best medical aid of the city is extended in an effort to reduce to a minimum the plague of foulness.

In other places, where the defiled are scattered, disease is alarming in those in authority. In one city in New York state, not as large as Salt Lake, the doctors, comparing notes, found there were 400 cases of the worst form of private diseases, and in New York City itself the cases of this kind are increasing so rapidly as to be beyond the capacity of the hospitals where they are admitted.

This subject is not openly discussed and seldom referred to except in a veiled way, but the police of the large cities, the medical men and

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, soothes inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps.

carpenter, who took eight or ten days to complete the work, could have been done by a capable carpenter in four to five days. Since the investigation began, the witness declared, the boys under him have shown a rebellious temperament and have become almost unmanageable. Parley Griffin was recalled and declared that Thomas talked kindly to the boys before and after they were whipped last summer. The spring wagon used to convey Rosetta Coyle to the hospital, where she died of appendicitis, was at this point shown the committee.

At the evening session the investigating committee inquired if any member of the citizens' committee pressing the charges against Thomas desired to make a statement. Mrs. Kate Hillard, chairman of the committee, availed herself of the invitation and on behalf of the women's clubs of the state declared that the investigation was begun as a result of a mass meeting held at the Weber academy several weeks ago. This meeting, she said, was called after Miss Lucy Van Cott of Salt Lake had voluntarily offered to make an exposure of the conditions at the industrial school, which she had visited on her recent tour.

At this meeting, the speaker declared, Miss Van Cott "flunked" and failed to tell what she said she had found at the school. Chairman Joseph then declared that the committee had attempted to get Miss Van Cott to attend the hearing but that she had refused to do so. Mrs. Hillard said she is opposed to capital punishment and that this, with the use of the cells at the school, should be abolished. Competent instructors, ladies and gentlemen, should be obtained to assist in the reformation of the inmates of the school and the lash and other means of punishment should be laid aside. Solitary confinement, the speaker said, will not reform any boy. Asked to explain what she meant by the term "flunked," as applied to Miss Van Cott, Mrs. Hillard said she meant that a promise had been made which was not kept.

Dr. G. A. Dickson, the present physician of the school since June 1, said that the sanitation at the school is good; the fare is good but not ideal, and suggested some changes.

H. H. Thomas, superintendent of the school, was the last witness called. He said he had been superintendent since September, 1905. All experience in the work had been acquired since that time. In February and May, 1908, he had visited similar institutions of the east and west to get ideas how to run the school. President T. B. Evans of the board of trustees was with him. He exhibited telegrams from eight similar institutions stating that in each some form of corporal punishment is in vogue. The witness said corporal punishment was administered at the school only for serious offenses, such as using tobacco, stealing and unmentionable crimes. The superintendent admitted that he directed the punishment of the seven boys for committing an unmentionable offense while on a camping trip. Said he thought then they deserved the punishment meted out and thinks so yet. Never heard until the investigation started of the injuries said to have been inflicted at the time upon the boy Bacon. Regarding him in building his residence with assistance from employees of the school, the superintendent said he obtained permission from the board of trustees to use Scott and Myers and Griffin; that they were

HANDY CLOTHESHANGER

Clamp That Fits Over Coat Bar Holds Trousers or Skirt.

A useful little contrivance that will save tailor's pressing bills by keeping garments in shape is the garment-hanger designed by a New York man. This contrivance is nothing more than a simple wire attachment to the ordinary curved wooden bar on which coats have been hung from time immemorial. The attachment consists of a wire bent in such shape that it passes over the bar and forms two long clamping jaws below. The device is resilient and the jaws grip the bottoms of trousers or the tops of skirts firmly. A whole suit of clothes, either man's or woman's, can thus be hung on this hanger, the trousers or skirt depending from the clasp and the coat draped over the bar. If the trousers are carefully folded into their original crease before the legs are inserted in the spring jaws, they will be kept in such good shape overnight that the owner will find little or no necessity for having them pressed anew.

GEORGE P. BOWMAN IS INJURED IN RUNAWAY

George P. Bowman, superintendent of construction for the Utah Construction company at Oroville, Cal., on the Western Pacific railway, was injured late yesterday afternoon in a runaway. Two ribs were broken and internal injuries resulted from the accident. Although the medical profession of that part of California has been called to his aid, there is said to be no hopes of his recovery.
