The manual training display is superb. The boys at the school have drawn plans and worked them out in the wood and the finished article is hard to distinguish from factory-made goods. Cabinets, paper racks, chairs, etc. make up the display. The boys made a library table and work bench which is entered for the special prize. The girls in the cooking department have an excellent exhibit of preserved fruits and pickles and vegetables.

The domestic arts department is showing the work done by the students in each year. The course is varied into groups for each year. These groups are shown and there are people in attendance who explain the various articles.

The Ogden High school exhibit is under the supervision of Prof. O. J. Stillwell, and it is worthy of the school. The commercial department of the school is exceptionally well brought to the front.

The manual training or wood work shows careful preparation and much hard work and on the whole is meritorious.

The public school display is better than ever. The drawings by the young pupils are original and behind them there can be seen traces of developing talent.

The Deaf and Blind exhibit is characteristic of the school. There are tools of all kinds shown in the display and the wonderful thing is that the instruments were made by the students. Among the things shown were wheelbarrows, chisels, hammers, axes, chains and horseshoes. The wood work is fine and two much praise can not be given the boys who are so severely handicapped.

The girls of the school have been represented by clever work with needle. They have made sofa pillows, scarfs, executed difficult stitches and have woven some nice warm shawls.

In art the deaf and blind students are doing as well as their more fortunate brothers. They have the only pottery display at the fair.

Among the exhibitors in the main building, C. D. Ives, the McDonald Candy company, the Superior Honey Co., and Hewlett Brothers Co. have the best displays.

C. D. Ives has a full line of men's wearing apparel, artistically arranged in a grand show-case.

McDonald, Salt Lake, has his candies put up in a style which makes one's mouth water to pass the booth. There are Dutch girls and Dutch windmills made of chocolate, there are also Merry Widows and every kind of candy imaginable.

Probably the most interesting exhibit is that of the Superior Honey company. A small house is built of the products of the factory and in front of the house six hives with glass covers are filled with bees which are ever giving an exhibition of how honey is made.

Other exhibitors are Blackman & Griffin, with butter and cheese and other dairy products.
A. L. Brewer is demonstrating the good qualities of the Sharples Cream separators.
The Singer Sewing Machine company keeps four or five girls busy darning stockings on sewing machines—quite a novelty in itself.
Paine & Huret has the booth that holds the attention of the ladies. The firm is exhibiting beautiful gowns and have their exhibit attractively arranged.

The others who have exhibits are: Becker Brewing & Malting Co., Glen Bros. Piano Co., Wasatch Orchard Company, Utah Knitting Company, Koffette Company, Ogden Pressed Brick Co., Klester Ladies' Tailoring College, Ogden Shirt & Overall Co., Pierce's Pork and Beans, Salt Lake Mattress Co., Peery Bros. Milling Co., DeLaval Separators, Jensen Creamery Co., Hewlett Brothers Co., Z. C. M. I., Thomas Bros. Saddles & Harness Co., Maxwell Vinegar Co., Cache Valley Condensed Milk Co., Western Bottling Works, Ogden City Stock Foods Co., Taysum Salve Co., Ogden Milling & Elevator Co., Ogden Packing Co., Standard Bottling Co., Sylvia Therapeutic Co., U. S. Cream Separators, Manhattan Stock Food Co.

ENTRIES FOR THURSDAY'S RACES

JOCKEY THOMAS STRUCK BY SHRINER WITH A WHIP.
Two Jockeys Are Indefinitely Suspended by Judge Blum—Virtually Ruled Off the Track.

(By F. J. Slattery.)
The old saying about "sending the pitcher to the well too often" had an illustration at the Fair grounds races yesterday. Jockey Shrinier, whose work in the saddle has often, during the past two seasons, caused much dissatisfaction and a lot of adverse comment, probably reached the end of his tether with the running of the mile handicap, third on the card.

After that race both Shrinier, who had the mount on the public choice, and J. Henry, who was riding Merlingo, played for a good thing by a wise set-aside called into the stand by Judge Blum, and were notified of their indefinite suspension, which virtually means that they were ruled off the track, according to the official ruling, was dealt with for rough riding, while Shrinier got what, in the opinion of many, has long been coming to him ostensibly for striking Jockey A. Thomas, the rider of Buckthorne, over the head with his whip. There was probably something back of all this, however, to some shrewd judges and close observers it looked as if Shrinier, as well as Henry, was trying to ride Merlingo to victory and that to bring about this result foul tactics were resorted to by both. Jolter had the speed of the quartette which made up the field, and, in his opinion, as well as Henry, was trying to ride Merlingo to victory and that to bring about this result foul tactics were resorted to by both. Jolter had the speed of the quartette which made up the field, and, in his opinion, as well as Henry, was trying to ride Merlingo to victory and that to bring about this result foul tactics were resorted to by both.

Merlingo, who had trilled his company the first five furlongs, closed with a rush and was lapped on the other pair when they straightened for home. It was then the rough riding occurred, but as much as possible, Buckthorne was not to be denied. Merlingo was plainly beaten and then Shrinier tried hard to get Jolter going again, but it was too late and, as a last resort, he used his whip over Thomas' head. Buckthorne, however, was the fresher horse at the end and was going away from Jolter by half a length. With different handling the favorite could have won by a safe margin.

The action of the officials in the matter meets with general approval and affords further evidence of the fact established at the spring meeting that Manager Murray and those associated with him in control of local racing are determined not to permit of anything that savors of sharp practice or crooked work.

PRESIDENT'S STAY IN OGDEN

TIME TO BE DEVOTED TO SHORT SPEECH AND A DRIVE.
Special Train Will Be Sidetracked at Ogden and President Will Leave Here in Private Car.

Governor Spry and Senator Smoot, in Ogden last Monday, met with Mayor Biewer to consider the plans for the entertainment of President Taft on his visit to the city, September 26. Nothing definite could be decided upon owing to the fact that the general committee of the state has not yet definitely arranged the President's itinerary in Utah, and it is impossible to say whether President Taft will remain in Ogden one hour, or three or more. The general committee will meet this week, after which, it is expected, a definite program will be arranged for Ogden.

The issue prevails, however, and it is the advice of Governor Spry, that the program should be very brief and the President be given an opportunity to spend as much time as possible in the canyon. The distinguished visitor will more than likely be called upon for a short address to be given either in the Tabernacle or in the Orpheum theater. The Tabernacle choir, it is understood, will furnish vocal music for the occasion and the home band will give a program of instrumental music.

As soon as the state committee holds its meeting, the local committee will get busy and make ample preparations for the reception of the President. It will be a great day for Ogden and it is anticipated that the city will be festooned with the national colors.

In the President's tour of the country he will travel 12,750 miles, will visit thirty-two states and two territories and ride over twenty-two rail-word was received today that Madam Yale is to visit Ogden in the early part of October.

MADAM YALE IS COMING TO TOWN

Madame Yale—the most wonderfully preserved woman in the world—she appears at The Orpheum in the near future under auspices of Wright's store.

This will be good news to the hundreds of ladies who failed to see her upon her last visit.

The Madam will be at the new Orpheum Theater one afternoon only.

Orders for tickets are now being distributed at the drug dept. at Wright's, and as every seat will be in demand, those who wish to attend should secure tickets soon.
