REPUBLICAN CALL.

Ogden, Utah, Sept. 17, 1909. A convention of the Republican Party of Ogden City is hereby called to meet at the County Court House at 11:00 o'clock a. m., Thursday, October 7th, 1909, for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for Mayor, Recorder, Treasurer, Municipal Judge, Attorney and Auditor.

Said Convention will be composed of 121 delegates apportioned among the various voting districts of this City in the proportion of one delegate to every 30 votes or major fraction thereof.

Table with 2 columns: District and Delegates. Lists districts from 1st to 17th and their corresponding number of delegates.

Total in City.....121 The Primaries will meet on Friday evening, October 1st, 1909, at 8:00 o'clock p. m.

The districts comprising the First Ward will meet in the City Hall. Those of the Second Ward at the Amusement Hall on Grant Ave., near 22nd Street.

Those of the Third Ward at the Firemen's Station, Five Points. Those of the Fourth Ward at the County Court House.

Those of the Fifth Ward at the Amusement Hall on Madison Avenue, near 26th Street.

The districts comprising the various Wards will meet together in each ward and will select one candidate for city councilman and the Chairman and Secretary of said Primary shall certify to his nomination.

Each district is then requested to select one member of the City Central Committee and also the number of delegates to the convention to which the district is entitled and each district shall select a chairman and secretary who shall certify to the officers of the convention, the delegates and the committees selected.

It is requested that voters be appointed in each district and that the voters present be counted before balloting begins.

E. T. HULANISKI, Chairman Republican Central Committee. DAVID JENSEN, Vice Chairman. JOHN V. BLUTH, Secretary.

WHAT IS THE POPULATION OF SALT LAKE?

Salt Lake claims to have 100,000 population, and is ambitious to reach 200,000. This boasting of population figures just on the eve of census-taking sometimes results in chagrin.

In the Northwest ten years ago, the cities of importance were claiming great things in the size of their municipalities when the government census takers, after a careful canvass, took the inflation out of their figures and left them explaining for five years thereafter as to how it happened.

For years prospectors and oil men have reported heavy seepages of oil and asphalt on Great Salt Lake, north of the Ogden-Lucan cut-off and six years ago, when the oil fever spread over the country, at the height of the Beaumont, Texas, excitement, a number of companies were organized by local people to prospect the synclines of the Great Salt Lake fields, but nothing was accomplished and no important discoveries made.

Within the past summer the California Asphalt Development company, made up of men with a keen appreciation of the value of a large body of liquid asphalt, has been quietly sending down a pipe line and a few days ago, at a depth of 130 feet, the large eight-inch casing broke into a subterranean lake and sank 30 feet into

THE EXAMINER FOR SALE AGAIN.

This morning, on the front page of the Morning Examiner, there appeared an announcement that the paper was for sale. The present publishers set forth that they held a five-year lease on the paper with a privilege of renewal for a second five years and that they are also owners of the Wasatch Printing Company and can not conduct both enterprises.

We took a lease on the Morning Examiner six months ago. We expected the Democrats of Ogden to support us, but up to date the Ogden Democracy has not only refused us support, but has not even taken sufficient interest in the paper to recognize our existence.

Of course we have no authority for making such a statement, but we believe the foregoing are about the facts in the case. The Democrats of Ogden have been bitten so often, and have been worked as suckers by so many propositions for a Democratic sheet, there is little wonder that they hesitate to take hold of the new venture.

But the facts are that the Democrats never had a better chance to get a newspaper than the Morning Examiner under its present management. Ogden, Utah, cannot support two daily newspapers conducted from independent plants for the reason that the expense is too great, but where two newspapers can be conducted, as at present, from the same plant each paper can save from $1,000 to $1,500 per month.

Just what the result of the announcement of the sale of the Morning Examiner will be we do not know, but the Democrats will make a serious blunder if they fail to take hold of the morning paper.

We understand the present owners can show from their books that the paper has not been a losing venture in the last six months, and that they are ready to sell the lease they have for $1, pay up all the debts and collect all the money due them. Such a proposition should not go begging.

This paper conducted the Morning Examiner for several years in connection with the Standard, and even then it was not a losing proposition.

The people of Ogden make a mistake if they allow the Morning Examiner to die. It will be a long time thereafter before Ogden will see the Associated Press dispatches for a morning paper in Ogden, if the Examiner franchise is surrendered.

This paper has no objection to assuming the publication of the Examiner again, but when we published the Examiner there was a feeling among the people that we were trying to monopolize the newspaper field. We have, therefore, preferred that someone else take the Examiner.

We think it is only a question of time until someone will come in and buy the Morning Examiner and pay a good price for it. The Associated Press franchise alone is worth $25,000, if it is worth a cent. We know the paper can be made a paying proposition. All it needs is sufficient money to carry the paper for the first fifty or sixty days.

As a matter of self-preservation this paper may be forced to again publish the Morning Examiner, though we do not want to.

The present people have a bona-fide lease on the paper for five years with a renewal option on the paper for another five years. They can print the Morning Examiner from our plant and save $1,000 to $1,500 per month or they can pay that much more and print from their own plant. It makes no difference to us.

We hope the people of Ogden will take hold of the Morning Examiner and keep it an independent paper, insofar as the Standard is concerned.

OPENING AN EXTENSIVE BODY OF ASPHALT.

For years prospectors and oil men have reported heavy seepages of oil and asphalt on Great Salt Lake, north of the Ogden-Lucan cut-off and six years ago, when the oil fever spread over the country, at the height of the Beaumont, Texas, excitement, a number of companies were organized by local people to prospect the synclines of the Great Salt Lake fields, but nothing was accomplished and no important discoveries made.

Within the past summer the California Asphalt Development company, made up of men with a keen appreciation of the value of a large body of liquid asphalt, has been quietly sending down a pipe line and a few days ago, at a depth of 130 feet, the large eight-inch casing broke into a subterranean lake and sank 30 feet into the liquid mass which filled the pipe and oozed out at the top. Ira Haskins, in charge of the drilling, who is in Ogden today, states that his company will put down steam pipes and proceed to draw off the liquid asphalt and place it on the market. And this, he thinks, is directly a good thing for Ogden, placing, as it does, an unlimited supply of the finest quality of paving material at the very door of the city.

Six years ago a test strip of the raw material taken from the lake was placed on Washington avenue, opposite the alley north of Wright's dry goods store, and it is today a mute testimonial to the value of the material for paving purposes.

A Chicago chemist, who made a test for Charles Wheat, one of the original locators of the seepage, pronounced the asphalt the finest ever brought to his laboratory and stated that the walls of Jerusalem were in part cemented with similar asphalt and the binding material had so well withstood the elements that in excavating today great difficulty is experienced in freeing the stone from the asphalt.

The Asphalt Development company experienced some difficulty in opening the asphalt body. A raft was built 60 feet by 40 feet and pushed out 1,000 feet from the shore, to a depth of six feet of water. On this was established a power plant, with standard rig, coal bins and fresh water tank, the whole weighing fifteen tons or more.

This new oil and asphalt territory is located 10 miles south of Rozell, on the old north-of-the-lake road, and from one to four miles from the survey made for the road north from Saline to near Burley, Idaho.

Having proved the field to be a valuable one, the California Asphalt Development company has opened to prospecting a country which may add great wealth to Ogden's resources.

A FREE PRESS ANTHOLOGY.

Theodore Schroeder, formerly of Utah, but of late a resident of New York, has published a book of 280 pages in which he makes a defense of free speech and free press, quoting liberally from the works of John Milton, John Locke, Voltaire, Spinoza, Rev. Robert Hall, John Stuart Mill, Herbert Spencer and others.

Mr. Schroeder states that he was prompted to write the book when, on examining the catalogue of a library of 250,000 volumes, only two books were indexed under freedom of speech and press. In smaller libraries nothing under the subject was found. "Such conditions," Mr. Schroeder says, "evidence a supine and lethargic security which is ever the best possible encouragement for the destroyers of liberty."

Mr. Schroeder, in his introduction, says: "Liberty of speech and of the press, in some parts of the United States, is now abridged to a greater extent than it is in England, or was even a century ago. While the cruelty of the penalties has been much relaxed, the number of penalized ideas has been increased. Now, as then, these repressive laws are not generally enforced, but are always readily and successfully invoked against persons who have otherwise made themselves unpopular. Furthermore, the uncertainty of the criteria of guilt, in these censorial laws, has been materially increased, in spite of our constitutional guarantees against constructive crimes. The arbitrariness of the lawless suppression of free speech by ignorant, hysterical, and tyrannical police officers, and through the extension of executive process and government by injunctions, and the unjust discrimination manifested in the exercise of a lawless discretion on the part of municipal executives and our quasi-official moralists-for-revenue, should be apparent and abhorrent to all who value liberty."

Being a State official and authorized to authenticate documents, I have been called upon in my official capacity to authenticate hundreds of statements that are so at variance with the popular beliefs, and the evidence of the text books, as to the curability of chronic kidney disease, that the unhealed patient was taken to have them authenticated with an official seal.

Text books declare that inflammation of the kidneys is the chronic form of kidney disease, that the incurable forms of kidney disease have disappeared. To my mind there is no escape from the latter view, and chronic kidney disease, even in its worst forms, is no longer an incurable malady. I further certify that the recoveries certified to as above were made by Fulton's Renal Compound.

In attestation of the foregoing, I hereby attach my signature and official seal at my office in Montgomery Block, San Francisco, California, this 28th day of February, 1908.

(SEAL) THOMAS S. BURNES, Notary Public in and for the City and County of San Francisco.

Fulton's Renal Compound is the first successful renal emollient thus reducing renal inflammation, and kidney disease is now curable for the first time. Even serious supposed incurable forms yield as above.

LAKEVIEW AS SEEN BY KEENER

OGDENITE WHO IS PLEASED WITH THE COUNTRY.

Describes the Land Included Within the Tract in Which Local People Are Interested.

H. H. Keener, who represented many Ogden contract holders of land in the Lakeview district of Oregon, makes the following report as to what he saw on his trip to the land drawing or auction.

On arriving from Reno on the skid road, at the southern end of Goose lake, a body of water confronted me 15 miles in width and 35 miles in length and navigable. By the time Lakeview, Oregon, was reached, by the east side of this wonderful lake, I had passed through a valley of no small proportions, part in California and part in Oregon. The valley shows all great agricultural activities in diversified farming. Grains of all kinds; alfalfa and meadow grass lands; fruit orchards in which I saw apples in varieties, peaches, plums, pears, grapes, vegetables of all descriptions—all of which was grown by dry farming and yielded profitably, much to my surprise.

On arriving at Lakeview, I found two and three-story brick business blocks, the residence part of which showed elaborate dwelling houses. The houses are painted white, fences and well grass lawns well kept; waterworks supplied from pure mountain springs; electric lights, flour mill, planing mills, brewery, newspaper offices that would be a credit to any city of its size; express office, Western Union telegraph; all lines of business well represented—in fact an up-to-date little city, with municipal form of government.

Lakeview is 75 miles from railroad transportation. Can you beat it? No, nowhere in the United States.

Mountain valleys to the east, north and west sustain herds of cattle and flocks of the choicest quality. On the lakes there are wild ducks and geese and in the rivers and streams abundant brook trout and in the mountains timber and deer, bear, and our wild game.

From Lakeview looking to the west and southwest, the Golden Goose valley is dotted with large hay stacks. On passing over some of the Oregon Valley Land Co.'s contract holders' land and making personal inspection of some of the holdings, I found it rich with alluvial black sandy soil, and from the size of the sagebrush, I should say very productive. Meadow grasses from 10 to 40 inches in height. In this valley the Oregon Valley Land Co. has about completed a great reservoir, ditches and laterals, costing $1,000,000. This is for the purpose of irrigating the well named Golden Goose valley.

To the east of Klamath Indian reservation tributary to Bly is a small valley well irrigated. Leaving the valley and proceeding east one passes through the finest timber in Oregon.

When I found the finest of all valleys in the entire tract of land. The Oregon Valley Land Co. can be well proud of their allotments.

Immediately to the east of Lakeview one enters the heart of the Warner range of mountains. Here I also found an abundance of timber. Reaching the summit and passing down on the east side, one looks directly into the Surprise and Warner valleys, the same being separated by Warner lake. These valleys show a tremendous growth of cereals and grasses. Being lower in elevation than Goose Lake, they are not subject to frost as much as the Golden Goose Lake valley.

Passing east through Harney country, a high rolling stretch of country covered with grass in the northern end of the land grant, one passes again through timber. Having passed this timbered country, the valley reached, large in proportions and very fertile. Here is where the Pacific Cattle Co. has had years of prosperous seasons. There is also Wild Horse Valley to the east of Andrews.

The tracts of land now in possession of the Oregon Valley Land contracted holders is of excellent value as a whole.

As is true of all new land offerings, some will reap the cream. This has been demonstrated. It was also shown in the drawing held at Lakeview, beginning with September 9th, one of the largest land sales in the history of the United States (and no doubt will be in the drawing held here) was closed, having sold three farms per minute to the highest bidder, or 11, 520 farms and an equal amount of city lots in six days.

Again I state that no contract holder in this drawing need lose a cent of his investment and in course of a few years will double his investment. The climate is ideal, abundant of water with purity, and when the meadow-lark sings his merry tune in the spring there will be work for many willing hands in southern Oregon.

HIGHWAYMAN IS GIVEN TEN YEARS IN PRISON

Salt Lake, Oct. 5.—Ten years in the state prison at hard labor was the unexpected sentence imposed upon Judge Lewis' division of the third district court Monday morning.

Donnell was convicted by a jury in Judge Lewis' division last week of having held up at the point of a revolver and robbed Frank B. Crocker.

TAKEN SERIOUSLY ILL WHILE ON THE TRAIN

Salt Lake, Oct. 5.—Former Gov. George A. Blaine, a member of the state board of equalization and who was designated by Governor Spry to attend the meeting at Louisville, Ky., to consider matters pertaining to a more uniform system of taxation, has returned home. On the trip east the ex-governor was attacked with ptomaine poisoning due, he says, to eating canned asparagus. When he reached Chicago he was removed from the train and ordered to the hospital, but he insisted upon going to the home of his sister, who resides there. This was done and after two weeks at her home he had improved so that the physicians in charge permitted him to start home, and he arrived Saturday.

a cook, of $4, on the night of March 29 last, but the passing of sentence was postponed until Monday.

When Donnell was presented for sentence, his attorney, Samuel A. King, moved for a new trial, which was denied. Donnell then asked for leniency, but his record was against him, and none was shown.

Donnell began a career of crime early in life. It is said, serving three years in the California state industrial school. Following his release from the institution he was arrested several times, charged with felonies, but this is the first conviction secured.

Several other robberies have been laid to him here, and in connection with this case he was charged with holding up the robbery of Bettlynn of $6 in cash the same night. When he was found guilty of robbing Crocker, though the Bettlynn information was dismissed. The robbery of Crocker occurred near Third South and Second East streets.

It may be that Donnell will carry his case to the supreme court.

CONTRIVERSY OVER SITE OF SHAKESPEARE'S THEATER

London, Oct. 5.—A burning controversy is raging among those interested in the matter, who are more numerous than might be supposed, concerning the site of Shakespeare's Globe Theater. Evidence in favor of the traditional site, and the site claimed by Professor Wallace, is being marshaled and defended with ardor.

Dr. William Martin, designer of the Shakespeare tablet at Barclay's brewery, which up to a few days ago was supposed to have been the site of the Globe theater, refuses to accept the professor's documents as proof, not because he distrusts Wallace, but because he thinks all previous research goes to show quite obviously that the Elizabethan clerk who transferred documents carelessly used "up north" and "south," and if these words were transposed everything would be clear.

On the other hand, Prof. Wallace is supported by many of the most noted Shakespearean scholars, including F. J. Furness, editor of the Oxford dictionary and honorary secretary of the Philological society.
