BLOOD STANDS STILL

PILES CAN'T BE CURED UNTIL CIRCULATION IS RESTORED.

It is useless to try to cure piles by operating or use of salves or suppositories—as long as the blood is stagnant in the lower bowel, new tumors will continue to form. Clean the blood—free the circulation. Then piles will leave for good. A successful, scientific, internal remedy is Dr. Leouhardt's "Hem-Roid" sold under guarantee by BACDON'S PHARMACY, Ogden, Utah. STATE'S WITNESS DIES SUDDENLY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 18.—Scarcely had the state completed its opening statement in the murder trial of Dr. B. C. Hyde today when Dr. G. T. Twyman, one of the prosecution's most important witnesses, died at a local hospital.

He was stricken last Saturday. Acute diverticulitis caused death. Dr. Twyman was for years the Swope family physician. When the nurses struck at the Swope residence and accused Dr. Hyde they carried their complaint to Dr. Twyman. He called Dr. Hyde to his office and told him he was suspected. In other matters than those pertaining to his duties as a physician Dr. Twyman was in the confidence of the Swope family. Upon him the state depended largely to prove Dr. Hyde had killed James Moss Hunt to death. He was also expected to testify regarding the alleged attempt of Dr. Hyde to poison Miss Margaret Swope. Miss Swope was Dr. Twyman's patient when, it is said, Dr. Hyde tried to kill her.

When Mr. Hyde's attorneys took a deposition from Dr. Twyman he refused to criticize Dr. Hyde. Without going into detail, Dr. Twyman said he approved, in general, Dr. Hyde's work in connection with the illness of various members of the Swope family. So valuable did the state consider the testimony of Dr. Twyman that at one time Prosecutor Conkling thought of dismissing the jury, which had been chosen but not sworn, and awaiting the recovery of the physician before beginning the trial.

Wife Remains Loyal.
Dr. Hyde sat calmly between his wife and his father in the criminal court room today and heard himself described as a man whose greed for gold made him a poisoner and a murderer.

It was Attorney James D. Reed, who, in the course of his opening statement for the prosecution, thus painted the physician.

Throughout the long ordeal of the excruciating address Hyde listened at times, too, but paid attention to the signs of perturbation. When Mr. Reed closed Mrs. Hyde turned, patting her husband on the shoulder, and said: "You did fine."

Many Clashes Occur.
A few feet behind the Hydes sat Mrs. Logan O. Swope, mother of Mrs. Hyde, and employer of Attorney Reed. She, too, paid strict attention to the address, but displayed no emotion.

Many members of the Swope family were present when court opened. The state objected to the presence of Mrs. Hyde, and Judge Latschaw ruled that all witnesses in the case except Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Swope should be excluded from the room.

Clashes between attorneys kept the spectators alert. The defense made early and active objection to the state telling the jury of any incidents in the Swope home not directly connected with the death of Colonel Swope. The court decided to admit all circumstances the state avers will tend to show a plot existed to exterminate the entire Swope family. But although this ruling was made early in the morning session, counsel for the defense never ceased to make strenuous arguments against such procedure. At one time Frank P. Walsh, chief counsel for Dr. Hyde, became so exercised over the point that he made a vicious attack on state's witnesses, characterizing some of them as "liars" and "cheats." As a result of the court's decision regarding introduction of this testimony the whole panorama of incidents in the Swope home, from the first illness of Colonel Swope, was displayed. Every death in the house, every illness of members of the Swope family and others which the state alleges Dr. Hyde caused were reviewed.

GARFIELD MAKES A STRONG PLEA

DENVER, Colo., April 18.—Declaring all the elements which go to make up a water trust are in existence today and a tendency toward such centralization is growing stronger, former Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield tonight made a strong plea before the Colorado conservation convention for co-operation between the federal and state governments in the federal and state water power reservation.

Mr. Garfield was preceded by Governor John F. Shafroth, who, at the morning session of the meeting, declared in unqualified terms for exclusive control by state governments.

DENVER, Colo., April 18.—In a lengthy address delivered before the Colorado State Garfield former secretary of the interior, spoke upon the subject of conservation of water rights, the state and federal control of water power sites and the general principles of conservation.

Mr. Garfield pointed out the dangers of monopolization of the water power of the country and declared that a "water trust" was not already in actual existence, all of the elements going to make up such a trust are present and the tendency toward such centralization is growing stronger every day.

He defended the course of former President Roosevelt in making use of a broad executive authority to make withdrawals of water power sites and consent withdrawal from the state and sought to show by quotations from the constitution and from the decisions of the United States Supreme Court that the chief executive was fully empowered to conserve such public interests under the broad rule of "the general welfare."

State Lines Ignored.
"In brief," said Mr. Garfield, "the condition is this. Then federal government owns property essential for the development of water power. The states control the use of water within their respective boundaries. To bring together the two elements necessary for water power development the nation and states should co-operate."

"The private interests that are developing and using water, are despoiling, ignore state lines and nothing will be more acceptable to these interests than to have a federal government withdraw from all attempt to control their transactions."

"Unless the federal government retains and exercises such control the interests of the people of one state may be seriously jeopardized by the action of an adjoining state."

Public Control.
"During the last ten years the great possibilities for the use of water have been appreciated. Every where private interests are attempting to gain control of water power for their own gain without regard to rights and needs of the public. It is certain an intolerable water monopoly in all its uses. There are those who will be fastened upon our people unless the public in both nation and state asserts its authority and control of the use of water."

"The use of water for the development of power for storage and for irrigation means, of necessity, exclusive use in particular places and such exclusive use is readily turned into oppressive monopoly unless regulated by the public. It is not enough to deny a water trust exists today. All elements which go to make up such a trust are in existence and the tendency toward such centralization grows stronger day by day."

Conservation of Water.
"The conservation of water applies attack conservation, alleging conservation means non-use, non-development, but no such proposition has been put forward by the leaders of the conservation movement. As has been defined over and over again, it means wise use and development of water for domestic purposes, irrigation, water power and navigation in accordance with the needs of the present generation but with due regard for the future and under control of public authority."

"During the last few years both nation and states have been attempting to deal with the problem. In many minds there seems to be a necessary conflict between these jurisdictions, but such is not the case. There are duties upon both nation and state. There is work enough for all and there is a common ground for co-operative control and regulation. The great danger that threatens our federal and state governments today is that special interests, private interests, property interests may, individually or unfairly dominate legislation. It is not just to arraign individual or special interests for this condition. We must likewise condemn the indifference of our citizens. We, as a people have been too busy making money to give proper heed and attention to the actions of our legislative representatives. We have been willing to calmly sit by and see great property rights, great special privileges, granted to private interests and individuals without regard to the public welfare."

There was great latitude for executive action within the law, he said.

SUFFRAGETTES OUT IN FULL FORCE

WASHINGTON, April 18.—With banners aloft, fiery utterance and occupying a procession of taxicabs nearly a mile long, the suffragettes in convention here moved on Capitol hill today, and presented to congress 400,000 individual demands for votes for women. The mammoth national petition was divided into little ones, each tied with a bit of yellow ribbon and grouped into little bundles of convenient size for a suffragette to carry under her arm.

Senators and representatives from every state received some part of that petition. Representative Wiley of New Jersey announced he would refuse to present the petition of the New Jersey delegation because of the hissing of President Taft at the suffrage meeting. So Mary D. Hussey just marched up to Mr. Wiley and thrust the petition upon him with the invitation to do as he liked with it.

Catch the Admiral.
Admiral Schley passed by during the parade.

Two suffragettes hopped out of a taxicab and pinned a "votes for women" button on the admiral.

"Thank you, ladies," he said, "I will co-operate."

Dr. Anna Shaw, who had been re-elected president of the National American Suffrage association a few minutes before noon in the first automobile. About 75 others followed in single file down Pennsylvania avenue and on to the capitol.

It had been expected the suffragettes would advance on the senate side, but all went to the house side.

Miss Fola La Follette, daughter of the Wisconsin senator, hustled up to the senate side to present Wisconsin's petition to her father, but found the senate in session, and according to order of business the petition could not be received until later. Some other suffragettes construed this delay as indicating opposition, and made quite a noise.

The senators placated them by giving assurances that the petition would be taken under the order of "new business" later.

Borah was Favorite.
Senator Borah was the favorite in the senate chamber. He was presented with petitions from the District of Columbia, Idaho, New York, Kansas and Hawaii.

"Senator Root is our fiercest enemy and we could not ask Mr. Depew," declared a leader in the New York delegation.

"So we had to go way out to Idaho to get a senator to introduce our petition."

One of the petitions of 702 persons, all famous in the world of literature, was headed by William Dean Howells. Another was signed entirely by Astors and another was by persons in educational work.

Mrs. Deming of the New York delegation applied for admission with some other suffragists at one of the senate galleries.

Mrs. Deming was pleasing to look upon.

AT THE THEATRES

"COUSIN KATE."
A small, but appreciative, audience at the Ogden Theater last night extended a cordial reception to Miss Jeanne Russell, a rising young Utah star, assisted by Willard Mack and a well-balanced company in Hubert Henry Davie's play, "Cousin Kate." The piece was well presented, the scenic effects being carried out in detail.

As "Cousin Kate" the young spinner, who finally finds the love in her heart to awaken for Heath Desmond, a young Irishman, Miss Russell was good. She read her lines well and gave an interpretation that was pleasing. Miss Russell possesses an originality and should be provided with a play of a different order than "Cousin Kate."

Willard Mack gave a most acceptable interpretation of the role of Heath Desmond. He read his lines well in his usual pleasing manner. Regardless of his good appearance last night, it was noticeable that it was not the same Willard Mack that appeared here about a year ago. The change in him is apparent to the casual observer. Nevertheless, he is still Willard Mack and cleverer than most men found in stock or road shows.

The support of Norval McGregor, Elinore Gibson, Dorcas Matthews, Lolla Lamb and George Jefferson was acceptable.—E. T. S.

CALIFORNIA TO STOP ALL PRIZE FIGHTING.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 19.—The Methodists' association yesterday adopted a resolution calling upon all ministerial associations of the state to join a movement against prize fighting with a view that at the next session of the legislature a law be passed prohibiting the sport. A section of the resolution reads:

"To become a divorce clearing house for the nation like Nevada and some other states is bad enough, but for the great state of California to be made one, as the Coliseum for the exhibition of these most brutal sports, is a disgrace and a degradation to which we ought no longer to submit."

FRENCH YOUTH OF ROYAL BLOOD IS MISSING

Bakersfield, Cal., April 19.—Robert de Colmar, a French youth whose family claims kinship with the king of Saxony, is missing and his mother told the sheriff she fears he has been robbed and slain.

De Colmar came here with his mother a short time ago and procured work in the oil fields. He disappeared last Thursday after telling his employer he was going to meet his father at a local hotel.

A sister of the young man, Countess Marguerite de Colmar, was sent to prison in 196 for participation in the troubles that attended the separation of church and state in Franco.

Three Private Yachts Bringing Titled Guests to Gould-Drexel Wedding

THE DREXEL YACHT
THE GOULD YACHT
ANTHONY DREXEL, JR.
MARJORIE GOULD

NEW YORK, April 18.—Three private yachts are on their way to New York, carrying guests from various parts of Europe for the Gould-Drexel wedding, which will be held April 19.

Princess de Sagan, Miss Marjorie's aunt, will be among the guests. New York has had some famous weddings, but the plans for the uniting of two of the wealthiest families in the country by marriage promises to eclipse all other events in a social way.

George Gould, the father of the bride, has sent his private yacht to Europe, as has Anthony J. Drexel, while Howard Gould, uncle of Miss Gould, has turned over his famous steam yacht, the Niagara, for the use of the titled guests of London, Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg and Madrid. It has been estimated that it will cost $150,000 alone to bring the guests from Europe to the wedding, and this will only be an item in the lavish plans being made for the wedding.
