STENCH FROM THE DEAD BODIES

Officers of the Union Portland Cement company state that since the calamitous explosion at the cement plant in Weber canyon, about a month ago, a force of men have been constantly at work with a steam shovel clearing away the great mass of earth that piled in the tunnel at the quarry, covering seventeen men.

It has been a heroic struggle to exhume the bodies ruthlessly hurled to eternity and buried under thousands of tons of earth. Up to this time only four bodies have been unearthed. Hope still fills the hearts of the rescuers, and the friends and relatives who have waited patiently for the recovery of the dead bodies of loved ones.

A WOMAN FALLS DEAD AT DEPOT

Passenger From Evanston, on Her Way to See a Daughter in Salt Lake City, Drops From a Passenger Train and Expires Before Medical Aid Can Be Summoned.

As train No. 3 of the Union Pacific stopped at the depot this morning, Mrs. Susan Bryan, who had been a passenger from Evanston, stepped off and fell to the ground in what was thought to be a fit, but which, upon investigation, proved to be serious.

The woman was carried into the depot and an ambulance called, but before aid could arrive she expired from heart trouble.

HOLDUPS PUZZLE THE DETECTIVES

Three Railroad Men, Arrested as Suspects, Are Released After Proving Their Innocence—Officers Are Left Without a Clue—Strange Withdrawal of Posses From the Field.

The officers investigating the hold-up of an Oregon Short Line train Sunday night apparently are on the dark side as far as the real culprits themselves are concerned, as there seems to be no trace of evidence which would connect any of those already under suspicion or those whom the police have gathered in from the surrounding country, and as to the three men who were reported to be under arrest at Brigham City, Sheriff Josephson of that place states that he does not know anything of a suspicious nature against them.

But so far as the real work on the case is concerned, both the railroad officers and the city police and detectives are working overtime. Officers Mohlman and Crompton arrested three men yesterday, all of whom were railroad men and who gave their names as W. J. Garvin, 125 Poplar avenue, A. F. Knowl and B. K. Dale. These men were spending a lot of money yesterday in the red-light district and their spending freed them from suspicion.

When Miller came out of his place of business, the officer asked him as to the fellow who went down in his place a short time before, whereupon Miller told him that he had come out the back way. Miller accompanied the policeman around the different streets in an endeavor to again locate Dale.

Miller was told that if he saw the fellow to phone to the station, but a short time after he left the policeman he again espied Dale and followed him to the Central rooming house and informed the police station, and Mohlman and Crompton were sent over. Dale did not resist in any way but accompanied the officers.

It later developed that these men could give a good account of themselves and that nothing could be proved against them in any way, other than that they were spending money freely, and they were ordered released.

Not the Men.
When Garvin, Knowl and Dale, the three men who were being held in connection with the hold-up, were brought before Baggageman F. M. Reed this afternoon he stated positively that they were not the men, and also said that he would know the men who compelled him to hold the bag in which the passengers had to deposit their valuables, among a thousand. This point is considered very important and it is thought Baggageman Reed will be called on in the course of another twenty-four hours to identify other suspects.

Mr. Reed said further that there were only two men. He was positive as to this. After they had completed their work he stated that they went towards town and this statement upsets the buggy theory. It also substantiates the statement of Hattenbrack, that there were only two men.

Pinkerton detectives, special agents of the railroad companies, home officers and detectives are at their wits end to solve the mystery of the robbery. That there were but two men connected with the robbery has tended to explode the theory of the rubber-tired rig, and the failure of the train crew to identify any of the men arrested as suspects has placed the officers in a state of bewilderment.

Brakeman Hattenbrack states that the two men who robbed the train started toward Ogden about on the railroad track, after the train had been released, and young Wheeler of Slaterville says there were only two men in the buggy he saw driving from the scene of the robbery and that at that time the hold-up, in a circuitous route, turned back toward the settlements, and that the rig has not been seen nor heard of since it made the turn toward Slaterville.

The officers are wondering why those who were driving it do not appear and clear up the rubber-tired rig mystery. The officers are not giving out much information. It may be that they do not care to do so at this time, and it may be that they have nothing new to give, or may be that what they are giving are misleading statements, hence the apparent muddle of things.

the force of the blow and the nose was healed.

The court was brought face to face with Borkweg's facial disfigurement, as mute evidence of the encounter. Checketts did not deny the attempt at stealing the man's cabbage, or that he struck him in the face, but he said he would not have struck the man had he struck him in the face, but he said he would not have struck the man had he "acted like a man," and let him pay for the cabbage.

Judge Bagley sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of $10.

LEAF WEEVIL DOING DAMAGE TO CROPS

Immense damage is being done the alfalfa crop by the leaf weevil, according to Dr. E. G. Titus of the agricultural college. For years the pest has ravaged Salt Lake county, and Dr. Titus says the effects of its destructive work are now apparent from the North Davis county line to three miles below Provo, and from Tooe City to Park City and Coalville.

In all the canyons in Salt Lake and Summit counties the pest is prevalent, and the insects have now grown to such a size that they are taking wing and spreading all over the district affected.

The farmers of the state are doing everything possible to prevent the spread of the pest. They have secured street sweeping machines, it is said, and are using them in sweeping farms and killing millions of the insects. Scientific men of the state are doing all they can to help in the fight, but they have not yet been completely successful in arresting the spread of the pest.

DOG MEAT AND A BAD MIX-UP

Josie Warwick and Susie Jones, colored women, stated in police court this morning that they were guilty of the robbery. The court fined them $15 each, in default of payment of which they will have to serve fifteen days in the city jail.

Susie said she had been in the city only a few hours when arrested, and that she had not committed any offense. She pleaded with the court to permit her to leave the city, but her pleadings were all in vain. The court felt that there are "too many colored women in the city committing depredations."

Josie's case was rather an extraordinary one, in which Chief Detective James Pender figured conspicuously. Mr. Pender stated on the witness stand that as he went home last evening he carried a little meat for the dog, and that in some unaccountable way he dropped it on the pavement. Miss Warwick was near and she picked up the parcel and started away with it. The detective called to her, telling her that the parcel belonged to him and that it was meat for his dog. The lady did not at first heed him, but she finally stopped and entered into a conversation with the detective in which she made unbecoming proposals to him.

The detective placed the woman under arrest and brought her to the city jail.

When asked whether she had anything to say to refute what the detective had said, she replied that she did not care to speak.

"I don't care what Mr. Pender says about me. There would be no use for me to deny it. Just give me my sentence and let it go at that," Josie mumbled.

Peter Fisher was charged with violating the bicycle ordinance yesterday and he deposited $5 with the desk sergeant for his appearance in court, but when his name was called this morning he failed to respond and the bail was forfeited.

ORGANIZING THE RETAIL CLERKS

William A. Piggott of the State Federation of Labor is organizing the retail clerks of the city into a union that is expected to become a part of the state organization. He states that he is meeting with success and that during the past day or two over 100 clerks have applied for membership in the new union.

Mr. Piggott states that the Ogden Retail Clerks' union will be the largest union in the city. The organization will likely have 200 to 300 members. It is stated that most of the merchants of the city favor the organization.

college, has completed his junior year at the Northwestern medical school and has been appointed assistant surgeon in a large hospital of Chicago. The hospital has an average of fifty cases a day.

AN EXTRAORDINARY DIVORCE NOTICE

Los Angeles, Cal., June 29.—A document, which the judge himself classed as extraordinary, was filed yesterday in the divorce division of the superior court. It was an advance notice, served by Frank Holyoke, a wealthy Pasadenaan, that in one year he would apply for a divorce from his wife.

The instrument was a petition to the court to order the taking of depositions now. Holyoke explained his request was prompted by the fact that a physician, who was to be one of the chief witnesses, is of such an advanced age that he is likely to die before the case comes to trial and that a hotel proprietor, also a prospective witness, may not be within the state when called. Holyoke withheld his reason for delaying his action for a year.

FITZ PICKS WHITE MAN

Says Jeffries Will Bore in and Defeat Johnson

Victoria, B. C., June 29.—Bob Fitzsimmons, who arrived on the Marama from Sydney last night, picks Jeffries as the winner of Monday's battle for the world's championship. He thinks the fight will go over twenty rounds. Johnson, he believes, while clever, has not the punch.

He met Frank Slavin, his old opponent, and also an Australian, who picks Johnson. The two argued the case pro and con, but parted still of their original opinion.

"Any fight is uncertain as a horse race and this one particularly, but my own opinion is well known. Johnson won't stand long before the massive strength and bear-like tenacity of Jeffries, providing he is in shape," said Fitzsimmons, who is en route to Reno. "I haven't seen Jeffries yet, nor have I had a chance of sizing up Johnson, but I believe that the negro will wilt before the big fellow."

Mrs. Fitzsimmons is like her husband a backer of the big fight. "Oh, I am sure Jeffries will win," she said in answer to a query.

Then Fitzsimmons went on to tell how he thought Jeffries would win. Johnson was a splendid defensive fighter. He was rather a hard man to get, but he never went to the fore with hostilities. Jeffries, on the other hand, was one who bored right in to the thick of it, who shut his jaws and took what was coming to him and gave just a little bit more. Everything depends on Jeffries' condition and he had confidence that he was in proper shape.

"I've retired," replied Fitzsimmons in answer to a query, "no more for me." Of his defeat in his engagement with Lang in Australia, the ex-heavyweight champion talked volubly. "I should never have been put out," he remarked. "Lang is something of a joke. I wasn't feeling well. All my training was in the optin and I got a touch of rheumatism. When I stepped into the ring I was sore and stiff. If I had been in anything like shape there would have been nothing to it."
