KILLED BY RIO GRANDE ENGINE

An engine on the Denver & Rio Grande railroad exploded this morning near Soldier's Summit, killing three men.

The dead:
W. A. GOODALE, engineer.
ARTHUR B. SPEAR, fireman.
E. C. MATTHEWS, brakeman.
Bodies Found.

The force of the explosion was such as to hurl the unfortunate engine runner 300 feet from the scene, tear the enormous seven-foot boiler from its 4 1/2-inch wrought iron frame, and send the great mass hurtling through the air 100 feet, with the back head and crown sheet torn to shreds and spreading out the flues in all directions.

The fireman's body was found lying dead to the left, where the downward force of the explosion had excavated a hole ten feet deep and destroyed the roadbed. The brakeman's body was discovered underneath the overturned tender. The right of way was demoralized for some little distance, obstructing travel, and it was difficult to communicate by tapping the wire with sources of help, as the concussion had blown down all the wires. In fact, it was 7:50 this morning before wire connections could be sufficiently restored so that a wrecking outfit could be summoned from Helper, arriving at the scene by noon. Tucker also sent out a full wrecking outfit with a force of men, so that the roadbed was sufficiently repaired for trains to pass on the west track at 9:30. Trains Nos. 1, 5 and 7 were delayed only forty minutes, but No. 62 was held for nearly four hours. Master Mechanic Bennett went down on No. 6 this morning.

The bodies were expected to arrive about 2 p. m., on extra Western Pacific engine No. 18. Undertaker Evans was notified to take charge of the bodies.

Probable Cause.

As all the men who were on the engine were killed, and the engine completely demolished, an investigation can hardly more than establish the fact that it was a crown sheet explosion. From the nature of things, suspicious point toward carelessness born of sleepiness as the cause of the disaster. With the engine running up hill, there is a maximum depth of water on the crown sheet, so that chances of trouble from this source are reduced to a minimum. But after an engine has pitched over the divide the water's depth over the crown sheet tends to a minimum, requiring watchfulness and care on the part of the runner. It is then that he must watch his water gauge, frequently test his gauge cocks on the backhead of the boiler, and have his injectors in prime working order ready to instant response. It is thus probable that the engine runner must have dropped off to sleep, the engine was making steam rapidly and working hard up the grade, and before they were aware the evaporating water left the crown sheet unprotected, the tremendous steam pressure made the burning sheet of steel yield the sooner, and then the explosion came, sending three souls into eternity without notice.

NOTES OF THE WEBER ACADEMY

Judge Geo. D. Alden, the third member of the academy lecture course, will appear next Monday evening. He is recommended as an orator of great ability and an earnest teacher of reform.

Last Thursday, in general assembly, President James Witherspoon of the North Weber stake addressed the school. He made a very inspiring talk, his special theme being a plea for cleanliness in person and character.

The Weber Academy band is doing good work. Professor Nichols says they can play at the lecture next Monday evening. The professor's little boy, Ernest Lorenz Nichols, aged five, will render a cornet solo.

In answer to an invitation from Mr. Ryan, Mr. Hansen took his class in banking through the new Trust and Savings bank. Mr. Ryan was very courteous and liberal in showing the class the workings of the new safe and in explaining the new time locks. He also went into some detail in explaining the handling of big banking concerns of this kind.

OGDEN ELKS' MEMORIAL DAY

The Ogden Elks will hold their annual memorial services in Ogden theater this afternoon at 3 o'clock and a very impressive and beautiful program has been arranged for the occasion.

The speakers of the afternoon will be Rev. F. G. Brainerd of this city and Frank Nebecker of Salt Lake City. Music will be furnished by Mrs. Bessie Dean Allison, Miss Rosalie Holberg and A. R. White. The musical program will be carried out under the direction of Prof. Squire Coop. The ritual services, in themselves very pretty, are to be rendered by the officers of the lodge.

It has been customary to hold the memorial services in the lodge rooms, but owing to the continued increase in membership and the growing interest which has been taken in the services by the general public, it has been considered best to secure a larger hall. The lodge is extending a cordial invitation to the public to be present and witness the ceremonies.

NELLIE PAGE IN JAIL AGAIN

Nellie Page was yesterday sentenced in police court to serve her sixth successive term in the city prison for drunkenness.

Miss Page, who made her debut in Ogden police circles about three months ago, has in this comparatively short time, become one of the best known of all the habitués of the woman's department. She left the city prison only Thursday morning, after having served a ten-day sentence, and was rearrested Friday afternoon. On a number of occasions the woman has been given a suspended sentence on her promise to leave the city, but has in each instance lingered in the downtown districts until she was again in an unavailing condition, necessitating the use of the patrol wagon to convey her once more to her berth at the city prison.

When arraigned yesterday she asked for a "float", but the judge decided that it would be better for her to remain in the city and the peace of the city to confine her in the city bastille for another five days.

Biliousness is due to a disordered condition of the stomach. Chamberlain's Tablets are essentially a stomach medicine, intended especially to act on that organ; to cleanse it, strengthen it, tone and invigorate it, to regulate the liver and to banish biliousness positively and effectually. Mr. Smalley has also filed a cross complaint in the matter, asking judgment from James Stanley-Dee and Rosalea Dee for $6,000 general damages, and $1,500 special damages. A separate trial will be had in the Smalley case.

OBJECTION TO JAPAN WIDENING RAILROAD GAUGE.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 3.—Strong objection is being made by Japanese newspapers to the government's plan to widen the gauge of Japanese railroads. The work, which will require sixteen years, will cost $65,000,000. Including Japanese and Manchurian tracks, the total cost will be $125,000,000.

For railroad work, flood prevention and other public works, a domestic loan of $35,000,000 at four per cent is proposed.

The Jiji Shimpo, opposing the railway program, says it illustrates how the military authorities dominate the government.

Mrs. Holmes testified that on September 11 last, after returning from

EXCAVATING FOR CLUB BUILDING

The contract for the excavation and foundation of the Weber club building has been let to the J. P. O'Neill company, and it is likely that the work of excavation will start within a few days.

The building, which is to be erected on Twenty-fourth street on a site adjoining the property of the Church of the Good Shepherd, will require an excavation 60x100 feet and eight feet in depth.

The foundation is to be of concrete. All of the construction work will be done under the supervision of Leslie S. Hodgson, the architect whose plans of construction were accepted in an architectural contest some weeks ago.

The construction work on the building proper will not be started until spring.

DEFEATED BY DEAF TEAM

The basketball team from the School for the Deaf returned from the game at Brigham City Friday, with another victory to their credit. The game was hard fought all the way through and was exciting at every stage.

Burt, the star center for the Boxelder boys, received an injury to his ankle in the second half that put him out of the game. The first half ended with the score 11 to 10 in favor of Brigham, but the deaf boys came back strong and landed on top with a score of 25 to 20. The line-up follows:

GAMBLER IS HEAVILY FINED

Charged with assaulting Link Lush on the night of December 1, W. H. Hill, a gambler, was arraigned in police court yesterday and fined $60 or sixty days.

Hill pleaded not guilty to the charge against him and produced two witnesses to tell the story of the trouble which occurred in front of the Turf saloon, on Twenty-fifth street. While those witnesses swore that Lush was drunk at the time he was assaulted and had drawn a knife with which he struck at Hill, their testimony proved that the assault was largely provoked by the defendant. The witnesses also testified that Hill, after he had felled his victim to the sidewalk with his fist, kicked him in the face and body.

Hill is considerably larger than Lush and this fact may have been taken into account by the judge in inflicting the penalty. While Lush admitted that he was very drunk at the time of the assault and could not tell just how it occurred, his face was a mute witness to the viciousness of the attack. Both of the defendant's eyes were blackened and his face and head severely cut and bruised.

OBJECTS TO THE ADMINISTRATOR

In the estate of Richard Flint, the oldest son, Ellis Flint, yesterday filed a petition asking that letters of administration be issued to him.

The wife of the deceased petitioned the court a few days ago to appoint James Pingree of the Pingree National bank administrator, but the petition of the son relates that his mother cannot choose as to who shall be administrator of his father's estate, because she was a joint owner of the property of the estate.

Richard Flint died intestate at Santa Cruz, Cal., Nov. 11, 1910, at the age of 73 years, leaving an estate in Weber county valued at $20,000.

WILLIAM FAVERSHAM

TO APPEAR AT THE OGDEN THEATER NEXT THURS. DAY EVENING.

William Faversham will be the attraction at the Ogden theater next Thursday evening. He will present Charles Froedric Nirdlinger's great play, "The World and His Wife," an adaptation of Jose Echeagaray's Spanish masterpiece, "El Gran Calco." Mr. Faversham presented this play at Washington, Cincinnati, Chicago and at Daly's theater, New York. In taking his company to Ogden, Mr. Faversham's high aim and purpose and to chronicle his success rather than the exploitation of himself as a star. If more actors would imitate his self-repression and his laudable purpose to produce fine plays in a fine way, he will have joined the ranks of the actor-managers with admirable results. Another curious feature of Nirdlinger's adaptation is this: The play was made for Mr. Faversham at his order, and with explicit instructions to the dramatist that no role in the piece should be built up at the expense of the other, and that while "The World and His Wife" was to be used by a "star" the leading role should not be given any undue advantage over the others. This wise and admirable scheme brought forth a happy result, and one speedily recognized in New York. Mr. Faversham is supported by a fine company, Julie Opp, Etta Cooper Gifford, Lionel Bolmore and Harry Redding. Seats Monday next at 10 a. m.
