Coal Mines in This Section Will Be Operated On An Extensive Scale and Work Will Be Lively Remainder of Summer.

The big strike by the pilots on the great lakes has been virtually settled and by the middle of the week freight shipments all over the country will have extensively resumed. Railroads everywhere are actively preparing for the rush that is expected to follow the settlement of the strike and many employees who were laid off on account of the strike will be put back to work.

In this section there has not been the usual amount of work the past month or so at the various mines, although most of the operators have aimed to keep their men together and give them all the work possible under the circumstances. At other places where the men were laid off, preparations are making for a resumption of operations and the mines where there has been more or less work will also resume on the old scale of output and the prospects are that mining will be very lively in this section the remainder of the summer.
