NO DOUBT AS TO WEST VIRGINIA.

Because of the fact that the vice-presidential candidate of the Democratic party is a West Virginian the eyes of the country are focused upon the state in things political and national interest is being displayed as to the probable result of the fall election. However, to a person who is thoroughly acquainted with the situation in the state the nomination of Henry Gasaway Davis will not seem to be such a drawing card for the Democratic party as politicians and newspapers in other states would be inclined to think.

West Virginia is a Republican state and anyone who has a knowledge of the situation locally throughout the state will scoff at the idea that the selection of the Democratic vice-presidential candidate from within its borders will change the sentiments of true Republicans towards the patched-up platform of the mistaken Democracy. The metropolitan Democratic press says that if the Democratic party is successful in West Virginia it must be by securing the Republican votes. But if these same metropolitan newspapers knew the situation in the state they could very easily discern what a ridiculous fallacy it is to entertain the idea that the true and staunch Republican voters of West Virginia are going to renounce their party, betray their principles and be false to their promises simply because a rich old man who is too old to be excited to any great interest or to do any arduous work for his party and too opulent to care whether he does or not, has been selected as the vice-presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket from their state.

The old Democratic majority in West Virginia faded away with old time conditions. The state has grown phenomenally in population and its development has been proportionately advanced. The new population has proved to be Republican. The people have progressed with the new conditions of a more prosperous era politically as well as socially and intellectually. The Republican party is a party of progress and development, and its record of successful administration so greatly overshadows the mistakes and blunders of the Democracy and presents such a substantial guarantee to the citizen, that he will not waver or show any sign of hesitancy when he goes to the polls next November as to what party he will cast his vote for.

THE SUN BEAMS BRIGHTLY.

The New York Sun has not flopped; it has merely spoken. It says that it will not support the Parker and Davis ticket, which it says represents a radical party with an infinite capacity for mischief and a stupendous record of mischief actually accomplished presenting for president a conservatively inclined candidate and for vice-president one whose extreme age is the sole but sufficient reason for apprehension in case of his succession to the presidency. It says that Judge Parker is yet the unknown quantity that he was throughout the preliminary period of silence prescribed by judicial dignity and that instead of rising above his platform he has crawled pretty ignominiously beneath it. The Sun says:

"To state the Sun's position and its reasons therefor requires no metaphysical subtlety of explanation. The main consideration is as broad as the nation's interests. As the case is now made up, we prefer the impulsive candidate of the party of conservatism to the mildly conservative, temporizing, opportunist representative of the Hun vote in the background. We have more faith in the distinct promises of the Chicago platform, not ignoring the many serious defects of that document, than we have in the miserable fall-broth of diswater and dynamite concocted at St. Louis a month ago by a party afraid to renounce its criminal follies, and tasted yesterday at Escopus by a respectable candidate who declares with gusto that its flavor is admirable!"

AVOID THE DUST.

The method of cleaning the streets can not be too severely condemned, but it is not the fault of the street superintendent. The city council got him the sweeper and instructed him to use it. He does so but it is unnecessary to say here that he does, for every man, woman and child knows that, or ought to, when they see not a cyclone of dust but an ocean fog of it coming their way, and, if they happen to be ahead, when the sweeping is done, they know next morning from the layer of dust on the sidewalks, porches, windows and in other people's lungs that the streets were swept during the night. The Telegram has heretofore given a gentle hint or two about the matter, but without effect. Now, for the benefit of the people, who pay the bill, we insist that something shall be done to remedy this. It is an outrage that any civilized community should have to put up with it. It matters not at what hour the sweeping is done, the dust is there all the same. It enters bed rooms. It gets down people's throats. It stirs up disease. It makes the sidewalks dusty. It makes store doors and entrances dirty. It causes windows to lose their clearness. It does many things that are bad. The remedy is a sprinkler, so far as the dust is concerned, and that should be tried. The citizens generally should demand of the council that something be done, and the council itself should take upon itself without being asked, the matter of seeing that this bad feature of our street cleaning system is corrected.

CORNWELL'S CASE.

The Wheeling News, whose editor has always been a prominent Democrat, takes another whack at Cornwell, the Democratic nominee for governor, in the following fashion, which shows the deceit attempted to be practised by the Democratic party this year on that live and burning issue known as tax reform:

"Mr. Cornwell takes occasion in a recent interview to deny that he is against tax reform, but asserts that he is opposed to the tax commission bills, which, he says, propose only 'bogus ax reforms.' Let us see. The Hon. Henry Gasaway Davis, whom Mr. Cornwell probably intends to support for the Vice Presidency of the United States, and whose support for governor Mr. Cornwell certainly desires, was one of the authors and sponsors of the tax commission bills. Is Mr. Davis a 'bogus' tax reformer or is he a fool? According to Mr. Cornwell he is one or the other. According to Mr. Cornwell, Mr. Davis either deliberately gave his name and sanction to bills that were designed to hold out the promise of tax reform, while really making no reform, or he was deceived and misled into doing so. Will Mr. Cornwell kindly arise and say which?"

"Is Mr. Davis in Mr. Cornwell's able judgment a knave or a fool?"

NOT A CONSISTENT LIAR.

Editor Herald—Wallace, W. Va.

"Do you mean to INTIMATE that a man who believes in prayer and believes in acting or voting as he prays, would, if he voted for what you designate 'The Ring' vote with the lawless and boodle class of this county?"

No, we do not mean to INTIMATE that if a man voted for the Ring that he would be voting with our worst citizens and for their interests.

In another column we find the following:

"The man who votes for the Court House Ring votes for bossism, boodle and corruption, and any man who regards his vote as a responsibility, will investigate what his man stands for, or represents, before he votes for him."—Herald.

The above articles taken from this week's Herald must have been written by the editor who recently swore before a magistrate that I never wrote anything for the Herald or knew what went in it, and then admits in another article that he reported the Prohibition convention.

A Democratic paper says tax reform is the product of the governor of this state. And following that announcement it says in speaking of Dawson's contest for the nomination for governor that real tax reform won out. Then in addition to this that paper says that tax reform is the leading issue of the state as to Republicans, which is the truth, and it is with many Democrats as well. To convince that paper that that is the case, we refer it to the Wheeling News on the question, a paper owned and edited by a man who has been a prominent Democrat all his life. But the clique sheet, in making the statement that the movement is with the Republicans plainly admits that the Democratic party, after Henry G. Davis was out of the way, concluded to have none of it and is today bitterly opposed to it. Since it does this, it is not necessary to farther argue the question to prove that the Republican party stands for tax reform and the Democratic party does not. Its own admission settles the argument.

The Democratic clique sheet seems to be fighting Cornwell with tooth and nail. It howls against the Republican party because it has not taken all of the Tax Commission's bills as yet and made laws out of them, but at the same
