GOOD ACTORS IN THE CAST

Of "A Chinese Honeymoon," which appears at the Traders Grand Opera House on Tuesday, Sept. 13.

"A Chinese Honeymoon," which is the attraction at the Traders Grand opera house on Tuesday, Sept. 13, comes to us fresh from London, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago and San Francisco, and is headed by John L. Kearney, and the role of Mr. Samuel Pineapple seems to fit that comedian better than any part he has yet played. The leading opposite character, Mrs. Pineapple, is being played by Miss Regina McAvoy, the clever prima donna from the New York Casino. A notable person with "A Chinese Honeymoon" is Miss Georgia Bryton, who is said to be irresistibly funny as Fifi, the slave girl, and the songs, "Twiddledy Bits," and "I Want To Be a Lady," are some of the hits of the performance. Other well known people in the cast are "A Chinese Honeymoon" Bridesmaid.

Geo. Broderick, Robinson Newbold, Albert Froom, Jos. E. Miller, Mabelle Baker, Winnie Carter, Helen Latten, Evelyn Dunmore and a grand ensemble of seventy-five voices, making it one of the most expensive attractions that has visited the city in recent years.

The story of "A Chinese Honeymoon" relates to a certain Mr. Pineapple, who is desirous of spending his honeymoon in the Orient and is attended by eight bridesmaids, who join the party to watch over Mr. Pineapple. The Emperor of China wants a wife and Admiral Hi Lung, in trying to find one for the Emperor, meets Mrs. Pineapple and she, angered by her husband's flirtations, allows the Emperor to kiss her. A royal kiss in Ylang Ylang is as good as a betrothal and as Mr. Pineapple imprudently kisses the Emperor's niece, another wedding is imperative and out of this situation plenty of innocent fun is extracted.

Mr. Howard Talbot, who has written the music, which is graceful, tuneful and catchy, is by no means new at producing stage music. The book and lyrics are the work of Mr. George Dence and are said to be uncommonly clever.

UNCLE SAM'S CIGARS.

Flight of a Man Who Tried to Get the Best of the Customs.

The customs regulations permit a person to bring in for his own consumption 50 cigars or 300 cigarettes, the ruling of the department being that for customs purposes fifty cigars are always arriving who do not know the regulations or who try to evade them. Nine times out of ten the traveler at once wants to make it a personal matter with the inspector and acts as if he thought thrashing the official would get his cigars in free. They are always arriving and take them all. There is a strike a new cause of rage. The smallest number of cigars that can be imported is 3,000. All under that and over fifty are seized. The inspector endeavors to explain that he did not make the law and is responsible only for its execution as he finds it, but that seldom works, and the traveler goes away breathing fire and mud with desire for vengeance.

A man came in from Havana recently with a box of cigars out of which he had smoked fifteen. There were eighty-five left. The inspector who examined his baggage told him he could have only fifty. The man declared that it was an outrage and intimated that he believed it to be perpetrated for the inspector's personal amusement.

"Who gets the rest?" he demanded.

"They are seized for the government," was the reply.

Thereupon it was evident to the man that the outrage was for the benefit as well as the amusement of the inspector.

"Don't suppose you smoke?" he sneered.

"Not on duty," snavely replied the inspector.

"Well, you won't smoke these off duty," cried the man and began to break them up.

"Hold on," said the inspector. "You mustn't do that."

"Why not?" demanded the man.

"No, they are not," replied the inspector. "They belong to the government."

No words would fit that situation, and the man went away. A little later he charged into the office of the law division, prepared to tear down the custom house. He wanted to know, and he wanted his information quickly.

"Not my cigars, eh? Well, they hadn't been brought in yet."

"Oh, yes, they had. They were considerably inside the three mile limit when you had them on the pier."

A little argument cooled him off, and he finally said:

"Well, I'll take my fifty, and you can have the rest."

"You haven't got fifty now," said the official.

"Haven't got fifty?" he screamed.

"I'd like to know why I haven't. You've said all along I could have fifty."

"Yes, but you broke them up."

"I didn't do any such thing. I broke up the extra thirty-five!"

"Oh, no. Those are Uncle Sam's. You were breaking up your own. But I don't think you destroyed them all. There are about fifteen still left for you."

And he had to do the best he could to seem content with fifteen. All of which shows again how foolish it is to kick against the pricks. Most men do it, however, and sometimes they beat Uncle Sam out of his cigars. There have been instances where men so situated pitched the whole supply overboard in their rage.—Century.

An axiom which I am sure has not been in active use ever since gloves and boots were invented and which has been indelibly impressed upon the mind of every growing girl is that a lady is known by these adjuncts to her toilet. If they reach the standard of what they should be, a gown of last year's cut and a jacket whose sleeves are models of a vanished style may acceptably pass muster.

To the well fitting, spotless boots and gloves woman, with her desire to improve on and supplement old tradition, has added the hat—a fresh and becoming hat—as the supreme requisite of an admirable appearance. And what a prominent part the hat plays in the drama of a woman's beauty, which is in many respects the drama of a woman's life! It really holds the center of the stage to a remarkable degree.

Women think so unceasingly about clothes and discuss the subject so intently that it is one of the eternal puzzles why the majority of them are so destitute of artistic sense in the selection of a wardrobe. Considering the hours that she spends before a mirror, the entire failure of the average woman to apprehend the relation of clothes to that dominating, subtle something which we call individuality is very curious.—Twentieth Century

A good liniment and one that is fast becoming a favorite if not a household necessity is Chamberlain's Pain Balm. By applying it promptly to a cut, bruise or burn, it allays the pain and causes the injury to heal in about one-third the time usually required, and as it is an antiseptic it prevents any danger of blood poisoning. When Pain Balm is kept at hand a sprain may be treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a quick recovery. For sale by Stone & Mercer.

"THREE FISHERS."

The Incident Which Moved Kingsley to Write the Poem.

Charles Kingsley wrote the "Three Fishers" as a result of the many sad sights he had seen in Clonsley. One day of horror in particular lived in his memory, as day, as he described it, "when the old bay, darkened with the gray columns of the waterspouts, stalking across the waves before the northern gale, and the tiny herring boats fleeing from their nets right for the breakers, hoping more mercy even from the pitiless howling waste of spray behind them, and that merry bench beside the town covered with shivering women and old men, casting themselves on the pebbles in fruitless agonies of prayer as corpse after corpse swept up at the feet of wife and child, till in one case alone a single dawn saw upward of sixty widows and orphans weeping over those who had gasped out the night before in the fullness of strength and courage." These scenes lived ever in his mind.

But the "Three Fishers" was written as a result of one of the strangest incidents in the stormy career of the preacher-author. In 1851 he preached a sermon in a London church on "The Message of the Church to the Laboring Man." At its close the vicar rose and denounced him. Bishop Blomfield forbade Kingsley to preach again in his diocese until having read the sermon and seen its author, he withdrew the edict. The same night upon which he delivered his discourse Kingsley went to a riot in the church. Sick at heart, he retired to his study. When he reappeared he handed to his family his immortal song, "as though it were the outcome of it all," as his wife said.

THE BLACK PANTHER.

So Fierce That Even Lion Trainers Dare Not Handle Him.

Of all the big, dangerous cats, none is more unapproachable and more treacherous than the black panther, fleeing from the heart of the deepest African jungle, lithe and supple of body, alert and nervous, this stealthy marauder exceeds in ferocity even a Bengal tiger. He is the only big feline that train, and he is the only cat so absolutely distrustful that he shuns even the light of day. Often he will lie all day long in a dusky corner of his cage, his yellow slaty eyes shifting and gleaming restlessly.

Even the feeding hour, when pandemonium breaks loose among the big cages, when hungry roars and squeals mingle with impatient snarls and imprecations of heavy bodies against steel bars, is apt to have no effect on him. He may be eying his chunk of raw beef suspiciously and not venture forth until day has waned and the last visitor left to tear meat from bones with his long, white fangs.

In fact, so ugly and vicious is this beast that frequently he turns on his own kind, and in many instances it is impossible to cage him, even with a mate.—McClure's Magazine.

UNTIMELY CHEERS.

The Mispicered Enthusiasm of an Ex-Coroner in Ireland.

It was the rule in Ireland at one time that after an execution the body should hang an hour, but the sheriff, from mistake or lenity, would on some occasions look away after the prisoner had been turned off, while the friends of the culprit would hold up their comparison by the waistband of the trousers so that the rope would not press upon his throat.

When the hour was expired the deceased was put into a cart, which was driven at a gallop along the stony road. The jolting generally brought the prisoner to. One such recovery was so complete that the resuscitated man sat up in the coffin and gave three cheers.

One of his friends who he looked at this indecent conduct that he hit the ex-coroner on the head with his shillalah and finished him. The question then arose whether the assailant could be tried for murder, but it was ruled that no man could be successfully charged with the murder of a man who was already dead in law.—Pearson's Weekly.

Are Women Really stingy?

Are women meaner in giving than men? It cannot rightly be urged that they are. Women, after all, in buying or in giving are commonly making use of money that others have earned. They have been trustees of other people's money for 2,000 years, and long use has made them careful of their trust. Of course the petty meannesses of a certain kind of woman have afforded infinite opportunities for men's jests and contempt, but these petty meannesses are nothing in comparison with the great meannesses of really selfish men.—London Spectator.

Mrs. Chas. Spach, of Fifth St., New Philadelphia, O., says:—For three months I had rheumatism in a very severe form. My feet were so badly swollen that they felt as if I were standing on needles. I could walk only with great difficulty and severe pain. The pain was so severe as to give many sleepless hours at night. I was a great sufferer. Could find no relief until I took LIFE PLANT. Two bottles cured me. I cannot say too much for it.

PREPARED ONLY BY THE LIFE PLANT CO., CANTON, O.

Sold by C. D. Stumm & Company.

NOT A PATENT MEDICINE. Hyomei, the Guaranteed Catarrh Cure, Prescribed by Physicians.

No one should confound Hyomei with patent medicines that are advertised to cure catarrh. It is as far superior to them all as the diamond is more valuable than cheap glass. Their composition is secret, but Hyomei gives its formula to all reputable physicians.

It is not foolish to try and cure catarrh by swallowing tablets or liquids! The only natural way to cure this disease and all other diseases of the respiratory organs is to breathe Hyomei.

This treatment has been so successful, curing 99 per cent. of all who have used it, that Hyomei is now sold by Stone & Mercer, under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. You run no risk whatever in buying Hyomei. If it did not possess unusual powers to cure, it could not be sold upon this plan.

A Chance for Northern Farmers. Are you tired of our cold northern winters, with their sickness and disease? Are you tired worrying over the danger of a crop failure and consequent financial ruin?

Are you tired of working hard all season without a fair financial return on your efforts?

Do you want to avoid all this, and live in a country where the air is always balmy and the climate healthy; where crop failures are unknown and financial troubles vanish; where land can be bought cheaply and taxes are almost nothing; where churches and schools are plentiful and the country thickly settled?
