DAYTON MISSED IT

Congressman in Second District Might Have Had Some of Judge Goff's Oil Lands.

Representative Dayton, of West Virginia, is one of the men who can tell a story of how they might have become millionaires, says a Washington paper.

Some years ago Judge Goff, who lives at Clarkburg, owned a large tract of land from which the timber had been cleared.

It was not a very attractive proposition at that time, as the land did not promise much in the way of agriculture, and no one thought of it as desirable for any other purpose.

Goff, on an occasion when Dayton was visiting him, suggested that he buy it and develop it agriculturally. It was a big tract and Goff would have been glad to sell it for $2 or $3 an acre.

He would have taken almost anything, as it was impossible for him to personally put it to use and he could not see any prospective profit in holding it.

Dayton didn't see any reason why he should buy the tract of land and Judge Goff was obliged to hold on to it.

After some years oil was found on it and eventually the property became worth about $3,000,000. Now Dayton occasionally gets into that part of the country and looks at the $3,000,000 tract of land which might have been his for a few hundred dollars.

Va., one of the managers of the Geneva county fair at Waynesburg, Pa., where they met in 1897, while she was selling tea for a New York house.

THORNBERRY FOUND DEAD

West Milford Mechanic Passes Away Suddenly and Whole Community is Sad.

I. O. Thornberry, aged 33 years, was found dead Friday at his home at West Milford. His death is ascribed to heart trouble.

In his death that community loses one of its most useful men. In his dealings he was honorable and upright. In intellect he was above the average, being a self-made man. He was courteous and kind to all who came in contact with him. He had no enemies and all mourn alike over his sad demise.

He was a fine mechanic and there is none there to fill his place. All the people here are sad today. Their sympathy is with the widowed mother, his sisters and brothers, and all other relatives and friends.

Dr. Vankirk Is Dead. Word has been received here of the death of Dr. William F. Vankirk, which occurred Thursday evening at the family residence in Grafton. Dr. Vankirk was 60 years of age and is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Mary Chaudhock and Miss Belle Vankirk, both of Grafton. The funeral will occur on Monday morning at 9 o'clock at the Catholic church in Grafton.

When the fight began an immense crowd was present, but as soon as the shooting began they dispersed and the Munday boys went home. Their father rushed down town and told the officers he would bring them down and surrender them in half an hour. But, it appears he was only giving them an opportunity to escape, as the neighbors say he opened the back door and commanded them to run for their lives and they went.

Mr. Sutton and a posse started in pursuit of them. Some went afoot and others rode hard on horseback as far as Indian run, three or four miles distant, but the fugitives had passed that way some time before they arrived and made good their escape.

The posse heavily armed scoured the country for hours but without result. They went in the direction of the Short Line railroad and Sutton and two or three others rode during the night to Folsom, hoping to intercept the desperadoes, but so far they have not run across them and will abandon the search.

POSSE SCOURS COUNTRY

SEARCHING FOR THE THREE MUNDAYS, WHO TURN TO BE DESPERADOES.

ONE ATTEMPTS TO SHOOT CHIEF OF POLICE SUTTON, AT SALEM, AND FIGHTS OTHERS.

Father Aids Them in Their Flight and They Successfully Elude the Crowd Pursuing Them on Horseback—Are Headed Toward the Short Line.

Harry, Green and Charles Munday, aged 20, 22 and 27 years, respectively, terrorized the town of Salem Friday evening.

They reside with their father in a suburb of the town and came down into the heart of the city, where, after tanking themselves with fire-water and a mixture of booze, they started to paint the town red. Chief of Police J. E. Sutton placed Garles under arrest and he pulled a gun on him and would have shot him, if Upholsterer McCullison had not rushed in and knocked the gun out of the desperado's hand. The fellow recovered possession of the gun and struck the upholsterer over the head with it, making a very ugly wound.

When the fight began an immense crowd was present, but as soon as the shooting began they dispersed and the Munday boys went home. Their father rushed down town and told the officers he would bring them down and surrender them in half an hour. But, it appears he was only giving them an opportunity to escape, as the neighbors say he opened the back door and commanded them to run for their lives and they went.

Mr. Sutton and a posse started in pursuit of them. Some went afoot and others rode hard on horseback as far as Indian run, three or four miles distant, but the fugitives had passed that way some time before they arrived and made good their escape.

The posse heavily armed scoured the country for hours but without result. They went in the direction of the Short Line railroad and Sutton and two or three others rode during the night to Folsom, hoping to intercept the desperadoes, but so far they have not run across them and will abandon the search.

MAGNIFICENT

Interesting and Absorbing Was the Bible Play, "The Holy City," Presented at the Traders Grand Opera House Friday Night.

Gordon & Bennett's presentation of "The Holy City," at the Traders Grand opera house Friday evening was one of the most interesting and absorbing productions that Clarkburgers have ever witnessed. In point of magnificent scenic effects and costumes and good actors the play far exceeded many of the very good productions that have visited Clarkburg. The play itself, however, was different from the usual dramatic productions of the present, in that it was an essentially religious drama. It is the story of Jerusalem during the time of Christ and all of the characters are taken from the Bible. It is the story of the Apostle Joan inseparably woven with the life of the Saviour.

There were many scenes, each sumptuous and magnificent, giving excellent representation of the Holy City during the time of Christ. The period of government and civil life is pictured historically true showing care in that point of the play. The different actors were good and rendered their parts admirably. The sacredness of the play is not profaned as the theme is handled with delicacy and care so that even the most devout person cannot take exceptions to the production. Those who witnessed this production no doubt learned many things in connection with the life of Our Saviour of which heretofore they have known not but not realized with the clearness and cogency it is brought out in this play. There was a moderately large audience and their appreciation was marked in sincere applause and the curtain was raised many times in answer to it. The play merited a larger audience than was present.

GOOD WORDS FOR TELEGRAM

Chairman Northcott Praises the Telegram For Its Work in the Campaign Just Closed.

The Telegram is in receipt of the following letter: Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 11, 1904. Editors of Telegram. Clarkburg, W. Va.

Dear Sir:—The fight is over and we are about to close headquarters with an assured majority for Dawson of over 10,500 and for Roosevelt of over 31,000; with all five congressmen elected and a majority of 52 on joint ballot in the legislature.

Many circumstances connected with this campaign were adverse and the fight that was made by the party in the state was made against odds.

In the winning of this contest the committee feels that nothing was more potent and that no one thing had a greater effect than the newspapers of the State.

They were diligent, self-sacrificing, earnest and true and on behalf of the committee and myself personally, I want to extend to you our sincere thanks for the great aid you gave us.

Very respectfully, ELLIOTT NORTHCOTT, Chairman.
