A PLAY THAT IS FULL OF FUN
The play "A Warning Bell" is a cracker jack. It has a new flavor. It is as full of fun as a May day is full of sunshine, as rich in fine dramatic situations and really good acting as the best. It is original in everything from its locality—Cape Cod Bay—to its foundation story or its dramatic treatment and the peculiar characters, who work out the plot. Even the comedy is unlike that of any others. You will see something that is a change from the old eaten track. You will remember this play when you have forgotten a whole season of others. If you see it at the New Grand Nov. 21 you will take it away with you, in your memory, and enjoy it over again a hundred times. It is a play that you will go back again and again to see, enjoying it more each time.

Notice to Advertisers
The management of this paper will change its dress with the issue of Monday, November 19. As this will require a great deal of time and labor, advertisers are respectfully requested to hand in any changes that they may desire in their advertisements, now running in this paper, not later than Saturday, November 17, as it will be impossible to change any advertisement on Monday, November 19. On this date a thousand extra copies will be issued, advertisers desiring to take advantage of this extra edition are invited to do so.

The management of the Bijou family theatre on Main street has made arrangements for special exhibitions of the moving pictures of the championship prize fight between Battling Nelson and Joe Cans, at Goldfield, Nev., next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. after the regular show. This film is one of the few originals and is taken from the negatives made right at the ring side. The views are clear and distinct and the foul knock-out blow delivered by Nelson, which decided the fight is shown very clearly. This series of pictures is interesting both to women as well as men and all should see it.

THE TELEGRAPH
Opposition and Rebutts With Which Morse Had to Contend.

The Morse telegraph invention lingered for years in the hands of the starving inventor, because capitalists were indifferent or incapable of appreciating his genius.

It was several years before congress voted an appropriation to allow its inventor to make a practical test of it, and burlesque bills were offered to provide means for communicating with the man in the moon.

"He's a very good, but shiftless painter, if he would only stick to his job," some one said of Morse. "The idea of telling by a little streak of lightning what a body is saying at the other end of a wire!"

His instrument, it was said, was all very well as a mantel ornament or for a mistress to call her maid, but this wires couldn't cross rivers, oceans and deserts.

Even after the line was up between Washington and Baltimore and Silas Wright sent a dispatch to the Democratic convention at Baltimore declaring his resignation of him to the vice presidency, which he had accepted, and a committee went to Washington and returned with the confirmation of the report.

There was similar though less objection offered to the overhead telegraph. Senator Benton declared that it would be impossible to operate it, because the Digger Indians would cut the wires to make hooks for digging up the roots and beetles on which they lived.—Sunday Magazine.

BULLIOT'S BET.
A Banker's Wager on St. Swifth's Day Rain Legend.

There were few frenzied financiers in England at the beginning of the eighteenth century if the banker Bulliot, of whom the following story is told, can be taken as an example: The feast of St. Swifth, July 15, 1725, was a particularly wet and stormy day.

Trusting implicitly in the old superstition, which says that if it rains on St. Swifth's day it will rain for forty days thereafter, Bulliot opened a pool for every one who was willing to bet against him. The pool attracted so much notoriety that the wager was repeated to wit:

"If dating from St. Swifth's day," reads the memorandum, "it rains more or little during forty days successively Bulliot will be considered to have gained, but if it ceases to rain for only one day during that time Bulliot has lost."

For two weeks it continued to shower every day, and so confident did the banker become that he accepted as stakes not only money, but gold headed canes, jewels, snuffboxes and even clothes. When his cash gave out he offered notes and bills of exchange. Another week passed, and Bulliot's star was still in the ascendant.

But when the twenty-second day sank into the west bright and cloudless the unfortunate banker was ruined.

A Good Reply.
During the Apache war in Arizona in 1880 a Maricopa Indian rode a hundred miles between sun and sun to warn a party of well to do emigrants that the Apaches had planned to ambush them at a certain pass. The young Indian volunteered to guide the wagons by another route, and when he had done this he mounted his horse to go home.

"See here," said the leader of the train to the young Maricopa, "you have done us a good service. What is your price?"

"My price?" repeated the astonished Indian.

"That is what I asked." "I have no price. Had you been my object I would have joined the Apaches and met you in the pass." And so saying the brave wheeled his horse and rode proudly away.

The Best Beloved.
William Stitt, beadle at Durrisdeer, in Nithsdale, Scotland, was a man of about six feet two inches in height, with broad, heavy shoulders. There had been a succession of ministers during his official career, says a writer in the "Ray," a Magazine, among them the Rev. Mr. Morrison, who was subsequently translated to the Tron church, Edinburgh, a minister of decidedly larger build than his predecessors. One of the farmers in the parish said to the beadle one day:

"Will you have served under a good many ministers. Which of them all did you like best?"

"Morrison's does fitted me best" Will replied curtly.

ANNA DAY IN "WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER."

STUDYING MUSIC ABROAD.

The Money Young Women Students in Milan Must Spend.
Young women who think they are gifted with a voice and are building air castles about a career in opera will do well to read a report to the state department on what it costs to study music in Milan and some of the dangers and temptations surrounding those who go to Milan to study by United States Consul Dunning, at Milan.
Mr. Dunning gives warning that no single young woman should attempt to study in Milan without at least $1 a day for living expenses. Teaching English to the natives is an uncertain means of support. The only safe way is to have $75 to $100 coming from home every month. Daily music lessons alone cost $30 a month. Then Milan's two cent car fares are delusive. There are no transfers. Theaters are expensive, and clothes cost as much as in America.
And when, after long and impatient preparation, it comes to the triumphant event of a debut, Italian "dressmakers" are quarrelsome and avicious. In other words, unless you can afford to "don't"—Argonne.

Life on the Farm.
Real life on the farm means corn in abundance, hogs a plenty, cows enough to keep every vessel on the place overflowing with milk, horses for every member of the family, chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, fruit in season and out of season, babies and good cheer all the year round.—Houston (Tex.) Post.
