CURED BY HER FAITH.

Crippled Girl Made Well by Visit to Shrine of St. Anne.

REAL MIRACLE, SHE SAYS.

Miss Ellen Keefe of Glens Falls, N. Y.,
Tells How, After Eight Months of Helplessness, She Threw Away Her
Braces and Walked.

Miss Ellen Keefe of Glens Falls, N. Y., is a very happy young woman. She claims to have miraculously recovered the use of her limbs and, after being crippled for eight months, is able to walk again through her devotions at the shrine of St. Anne in the Church of St. Jean Baptiste, 159 East Seventy-sixth street, New York city.

"Eight months ago," she said, "I had a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. Complications followed, and I became unable to walk. Physicians in Glens Falls were called to attend me, but after four months advised me to cope to this city and consult specialists.

"This was done. Two specialists were visited, and each said that it would be impossible to cure me without an operation, and this would leave me deformed.

"I would not consent to undergo such an ordeal. My relatives then secured a physician of excellent reputation from Washington Heights, and under his careful treatment I was enabled within a short time to stand. This was very encouraging, and after another month, with the assistance of crutches, foot braces and ankle supports, I was able to move my feet along the floor an inch or two to each step.

"I made no further progress until I began attending the annual novena of St. Anne at the Roman Catholic church of St. Jean Baptiste, a block from my home. I attended the novena first I had to be half carried to the door by my cousin, Miss Alice Roarke. She it was who carried me before the shrine of St. Anne, where the relic was exposed. I prayed earnestly to be restored to good health. I had absolute faith my prayers would be heard.

"The visits were repeated each day without any change in my condition until Saturday afternoon. I had been to church in the morning, assisted, as usual, by my cousin, but in the afternoon when I arose from the divan in the parlor I noticed, to my amazement, that I felt stronger and was able to increase the length of each step.

"My cries brought my relatives to me, and they were overjoyed to note the change that had taken place. 'It's the novena and the supernatural assistance of St. Anne,' I told them. 'Take off those braces. I believe I can walk without them,' I said.

"They did as I requested, and, much to their amazement, I walked unaided the full length of the apartment. I almost fainted with joy when I realized what I had done and apprehended that I once more was able to walk.

"I have been walking every day since," continued Miss Keefe, her eyes beaming with happiness, "without any assistance, and I hope, with the help of God and St. Anne, to improve every day until I am entirely well. I am still making daily visits to the shrine."

All Miss Keefe's relatives and several of their neighbors spoke of her miraculous improvement and believe, as she does, that her faith and prayers effected the cure.

Swallowed Six Inch Snake.
Thomas Jefferies, member of the Rough Rider club of Cincinnati, who had been camping on the Ohio river near Lawrenceburg, Ind., got up in the night and took a drink from a spring near by. This was at 1 o'clock, and in a few minutes after he retired he awoke his companions with his groans. A doctor was summoned, but before the physicians arrived the man had died. Jefferies was given an emetic, and he coughed up a green snake six inches long. Jefferies has now entirely recovered.

Sentenced to Bed.
A man named Transfer of Bennington, Kan., was fined and ordered by the magistrate to remain in bed for seven days for intoxication. A policeman escorted him to his home and helped him retire.

THE MODERN WOMAN.

Must Be a Stimulating Companion For the Up to Date Man.

"It is rather difficult being a modern woman," remarked a matron the other day. "We are expected to be clever, active, well informed and interested in the world we live in. If we fail in these things men consider us stupid and indolent and 'no fun to talk to.' But when a woman does possess the qualities that make her a stimulating companion for the up to date man immediately croakers arise and call her a 'new woman,' with a disparaging accent, and sigh dolefully about the way their grandmothers kept house.

"Yet with all the tendency there is to make jokes about the modern woman or condemn her as too studious, too athletic, too independent, there is no doubt that she is fast mounting the pedestal which the other type of woman has so long occupied alone, or if not a pedestal, she is taking a position which is on the whole more secure and more desirable. There has always been a theory that the ideal mother is the one who sticks to her own fireside and mends her children's stockings. This theory still lingers in spite of the fact that so many college girls and girls who have not been to college, but are nevertheless bright, keen and well informed, are marrying and proving that a mother may have outside interests and be a better mother because of them. But it is merely a theory and does nobody any harm.

"Frank Stockton's 'Squirrel Inn' there is a scientific nurse! When it is hinted that her college studies may have kept her from learning as much about babies as a nurse-girl ought to know she exclaims: 'Not know about babies? Why, I know all about babies! I have dissected one!' While this degree of education will never, perhaps, be demanded of the modern mother, the world is beginning to see that the better informed a mother is, the larger in her views, the broader in her interests, the better mother will she be."

WEDDING FEAST SALAD.
An Old Family Recipe For This Indispensable Relish.

Chicken salad is the most dependable relish to serve at the wedding feast. It never holds the possibilities of potatoe poisoning, as fish may, and it does not wilt, as a green salad would, if the reception runs for some length. Here is an old family recipe:

This quantity should make very nearly two quarts of salad, sufficient for twenty people, if served with sandwiches and ices. Select two plump fowls not too old; simmer in boiling water until tender. Do not cut them up before cooking, and do not cook in cold water, as this draws out the juice. When tender remove from the liquor, cool and cut into dice. Add one pint of celery cut in dice, mixed lightly, sprinkled with a little salt. If you do not like oil, use this dressing: Beat the yolk of seven eggs, seven pinches of mustard and seven teaspoonfuls of sugar, place in a porcelain steppan; add slowly seven tablespoonfuls of boiling vinegar; cook slowly until thick, mix with the chicken, and a cupful of good sweet cream whipped light and salt and pepper to taste. If you like oil, use this dressing: Beat into the well beaten yolk of one egg add drop by drop one pint of olive oil. Boil two eggs hard, rub into the yolks a dash of cayenne pepper, one half spoonful of salt. Add this to the yolks and oil. Now add finely chopped whites of the eggs and juice of 1/2 lemon, mix well, then add the well beaten white of the uncooked egg, and the dressing is ready for use.

HOUSEWIFE HINTS.
When making mashed potatoes into cakes rub the hands with flour to prevent potato sticking to them.
Grass stains may be removed by dipping them in molasses and then washing this out with clean water.
If the fat in the dripping pan catches on fire, pour in at once a little milk, and the flame will be instantly quenched.
A wooden spoon should be dipped in boiling water immediately before using. This will prevent discoloration and absorbing of flavors.
When you have occasion to use plaster of paris wet it with vinegar instead of water; then it will be like putty and can be smoothed better, as it will not set for half an hour, while plaster wet with water hardens at once.
An odd but palatable dish is made by frying onions a nice brown, then adding a can of tomatoes; season with pepper and salt and one teaspoonful of allspice; cook all together a few minutes. Serve plain or on toast, as desired.
If ink is spilled on a carpet, run for the salt bag and put on salt, renewing it as fast as the ink is absorbed by it. Where this is done promptly and plenty of fresh salt used it is frequently so effective that no ink spot whatever remains.
Value of Example.
To have your child truthful, be truthful. To have him kind to others, be yourself kind to others. To have him honest, present to him in yourself a living example of honesty. The chief part of a child's knowledge comes through observation. Acts mean more to him than speech. To have him temperate, be temperate in all things. Prove to him by your life that a good name is to be chosen before great riches. Teach him that riches are not to be despised, but should never be got by doing harm to others; that when acquired should be treated as a trust, not as a hoard.

SAVED FROM THE POT

Sailors Barely Escape Being Made Into a S.e.w.

SOUP KETTLES WERE READY.

And Cannibals Were Gloating Over the Coming Feast When Ingenuity of the Second Mate Snatched the Crew of the All's Well Away.

Second Mate J. B. Foster of the British steamship Glyceric, which sailed for north China ports from Seattle recently, has had many hairbreadth escapes during a long and checked career on the sea, but he swells with pride at the thought that never has been in a wreck, a circumstance peculiar to few sailors addicted to relating their adventures.

"But I was near wrecked once," said he when in a reminiscent mood as the boat was taking on cargo in Seattle. "I was on the bark All's Well, and we were out from London delivering supplies for missionaries along the west coast of Africa. Funny places they were that we called at—awful names, regular jaw breakers, like the Alekszawaguesse and the like.

"It was a case of having to lay off shore while a bunch of Kroo boys paddled out from the low lying beach and carried the supplies ashore in their queer canoes. Slow lighting it

THEY WERE GETTING THE KETTLES READY, was, and good and sick of the job we were, I can tell you. Once I went ashore with the niggers, and the sight of the mission station, with its bunch of pot belled, stinking converts and the hyena-like dogs round that compound, completely diverted me from any idea of enlisting in the ranks of the sky pilots in those latitudes.

"I couldn't make out which was the more fool, the men who lived there or the people at home who sent them out their grub stake; but, as it turned out, it was those selfsame supplies that kept yours truly and his mates from being fricasseed by the cannibal savages of the locality.

"After a stretch of good weather it darkened over and blew great guns, and then some more. When the storm was over we found ourselves drifting on to shore, with the tide running in furiously. There wasn't a breath of air after the hurricane we had just been through, and the ship was helpless in the calm.

"On the beach, rapidly getting nearer, we could see the savages lighting fires and getting the big soup kettles ready, and there were big lumps in our throats as we watched the preparations for our reception.

"Suddenly I was seized with an inspiration, and it was due to that blessed thought that I'm here in Seattle today. 'We had on board several little stern paddle wheel steamboats for the missionaries. They were built in sections for transport. Like a flash we got out two of the sections with the wheels on and rigged them on the stern of the All's Well. We had a donkey engine on board for loading cargo, and, with our usual sailors' ingenuity, we rigged up a gear to turn the paddles and so steamed away from the dangerous shore.

"It was a close shave, though. We could hear the man enters fighting among themselves as to who would have the fat one, and as that individual was myself you can fancy the sigh of relief I heaved when our vessel began to make way."

Almost Eaten Up by Mosquitoes.
Bridget Collins, eighty years old, who wandered from her home in the Bronx, New York city, was found in a swamp, ten miles away half buried in the mud and almost eaten alive by mosquitoes. Mounted Policeman Flynn was riding past the swamp when some boys called his attention to what appeared to be a bundle of rags, which they declared had moved. By means of several boards the policeman got to where the woman was lying and carried her out. She was taken to the Lebanon hospital, where it is said she could not live.

Carried Union Idea Too Far.
Mark Twain might take a few lessons from Moses Nero, an Indian who tried to introduce a new fashion in evening dress at Muskogee, I. T. The other night and was hauled up in police court and fined $10. He was charged with being drunk, disorderly and undressed. He attended a church lawn party attired in a suit of blue union underwear and a sack coat. The police believed the Indian was carrying the union idea too far.

LIKE OLD FRIENDS.

The Longer You Know Them the Better You Like Them.

Doan's Kidney Pills never fail you. Clarksburg people know this. Read this Clarksburg case. Read how Doan's stood the test for five years.

It's local testimony and can be investigated. Mrs. E. J. Anderson, living at 370 Clay street, says: "Kidney complaint troubled me for three or four years, characterized by severe pains across the small of the back and a kidney weakness which was annoying and distressing at all times. It was very hard for me to perform my household duties on account of this weakness across my back and whenever I stooped or attempted to pick anything up, the pains would always be aggravated. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, for such trouble, and had my husband procure a box for me at Wells & Haymaker's drug store. They benefited the pain and greatly relieved the weakness in my back. (From statement given No. 25, 1902).

Twice Told Testimony. On July 5, 1907, nearly five years later, Mrs. Anderson confirmed her previous statement, saying: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on some occasions since I recommended them when feeling miserable from kidney trouble, and they have never failed to banish the annoyance. I always keep them on hand and value them very highly."
