GRACE GEORGE

Is Seen at Fairmont by a Special Party of Local Playgoers.

Between thirty and forty city people took advantage of the special car run to Fairmont Friday evening for the play, "Sauce for the Goose," in which Grace George appeared at the Fairmont Grand opera house last night. Quite a number of people from other nearby towns were also in attendance and the house was crowded.

The play has to do with the infatuation of John Constable, an author, for Mrs. Alloway, with whom he secretly associates, ostensibly to get inspiration for his work on the subject of woman's emancipation. He endeavors to instill into his wife, Kitty, some of the bold ideas advanced by Mrs. Alloway, and when she hears of his conduct, acting on the principle that what is "sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," she puts a few of the ideas into practice, and enjoys the opera and a midnight lunch with Harry Travers, an old friend. The husband's consternation on finding himself taken literally creates a sensation that affords opportunities for delightful rallery and merriment.

The play was to have been presented at the Grand here last Thursday night, and Clarksburg playgoers were much disappointed over the forced cancellation of its presentation here. In view of this fact Manager Deshon provided special accommodations for those who attended from this city.
