Singing Party Is a Great One

Last Number of Ministers Course Here This Season is to Be Fine One.

The Kellogg-Haines singing party, one of the best on the lyceum plat-form, is coming to Clarksburg as the last number on the ministerial lecture and entertainment course, Friday, March 10, at 8 p. m. Much of its program is given in elegant costume.

In the Kellogg-Haines singing party there is an attraction which has no superior in its particular line of work on the lyceum platform to-severest type. As some one has truly said: "They have discovered just what most audiences want in the way of musical entertainment. Some real good things in music and then some of the light and catchy with a big allowance for humor and melo-dious rhythm." Their solo work is excellent, but their claim to recog-nition is in their quartet work. It is doubtful if any other mixed quar-tet in America can approach them in that sinking and individuality work and perfect blending of voices that realizes ideal quartet work. It is heard in the singing of the foremost day. There are five in the party. Much of their program is given in elegant and appropriate costume. Some of these costume numbers are the best example of humor and wit that good musical literature has to offer. Scenes are also given from grand opera. The chief claim that is made for this company is that they give an entertaining concert of such solid musical character and fresh, wholesome humorous power, that is sure to captivate the musical laymen, while winning admiration from the musical critics of the maie quartets but almost unknown in mixed quartets. The quartet is made up of two ladies and two gentlemen.

Prof. Charles A. Prosser, superin-tendent of the New Albany, Ind., Chautauqua, says: "The Kellogg-Haines singing party has given, in the opinion of our patrons, the greatest satisfaction of all the mu-sical organizations that have ap-peared at our assembly in the last four years." Many other similar quotations could be given, if space permitted.
