DATES

Of "Every Elk" in the Elks' Home Are Soon to Be Announced.

"Every Elk," a moral dramatization by A. J. Smith, to be presented by Douglas Williams, with the aid of promising local amateurs, will soon be presented at the Elks' home in this city. While the date is not definite as yet, from present indications it will be presented about the middle of this month.

All preparations and rehearsals are coming along nicely and those in charge expect to present the most pleasing drama, by local talent, ever staged in this city. The drama, a moral one, carries a good lesson but also along with it is to be witnessed much mirthful comedy and a special diversion still further in the second act of the presentation where a complete vaudeville program will be introduced containing many songs, with happy and laughable jokes, with some rapid fire repartee.

The fact that Clarksburg has been without an opera house this winter will be the occasion for a great demand for seats to the performance of "Every Elk" as the show loving populace of this city, hungry for a good performance, will not see this presentation pass without packed houses each night it is given.

Watch for the dates of the performance and be sure to get your tickets, at Gill's jewelry store, early and avoid the rash, as a real treat is in store for all who attend the presentation of "Every Elk."
