An Evening Echo.

Fine sense and exacted sense are not half as useful as common sense. These are forty men of wit for one man of sense.

A Water Bridge.

"When the waters of the two oceans are blended in the soil of Panama," exclaimed Secretary Knox in the speech inaugurating his notable mission to the Central American republics.

of the Panama cabinet minister who spoke on the occasion, "the deep, blue waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific will be united for all eternity."

National Chairman McCombs

Recently at the dictation of Woodrow Wilson Norman E. Mack retired as chairman of the Democratic national committee and a man named McCombs was appointed at the suggestion of Wilson.

The idea of Champ Clark never having expressed an opinion on any issue of national importance except the kickin' roun' of houn's."

Governor Wilson is badly in need of being rescued from the hands of his friend, Mr. McCombs, who is stupidly essaying to play the role of campaign manager for a presidential aspirant.

Educating Foreign Intmigrants.

Education in American standards of living is being given the immigrants of Buffalo by a group of fifteen women, working under the Buffalo committee of the North American Civic League for Immigrants.

"The 'domestic educators' go directly into the homes of such families as are willing to receive them. There they show the housewife how to keep her home clean, how to cook, how to vary the diet, how to get the most for her money, how to prevent sickness, how to sew, how to take care of the children; in fact, all or nearly all phases of home making are taken up and thoroughly demonstrated."

"It has been found that the teaching given to the mother of a family is passed along to her neighbors and relatives, especially the teaching of food principles.

ies, instead of buying a most inferior quality at the nearest bake-shop. Some families who were left as hopeless by several other philanthropic agencies have been induced to clean up their homes under the educators' instructions.

West Virginia and the Tariff.

The following cold facts regarding the protective tariff and its relation to West Virginia products are set forth in an editorial broadside by the Wheeling Intelligencer.

Gradually it becomes more apparent that the tariff will be the leading issue of the coming campaign. The Democratic platform boldly declares for a tariff for revenue only.

Our coal enjoys a protective tariff duty of forty-five cents a ton. Wipe out that duty or seriously lower it, and West Virginia coal will lose the seaboard market, which takes more than half of all the coal produced in this state.

West Virginia wool enjoys a protective tariff duty of eleven cents per pound. The cost of growing merino wool in West Virginia and Eastern Ohio is from nineteen cents to twenty-two cents a pound.

Pottery products are now protected by a tariff duty of forty-five per cent to sixty per cent. Even with the stimulus of this protective rate, the pottery industry in the United States languished until the last two years.

"Cereals are now used in fifty homes where a month ago they were unknown. The use of coffee in all the homes the educators are visiting is on the decrease, and cocoa is used in its stead, while fresh milk has been substituted for canned milk.

West Virginia produces over $6,000,000 worth of lumber every year. Lumber is protected by a tariff duty of $2.00 per thousand. The protective duty adds to the value of the lumber production in West Virginia, possibly $10,000,000 a year, and adds millions of dollars to the value of the standing lumber on the hillsides and mountain sides of this state.

Before the Senate committee such recognized authorities in the steel business as John A. Topping, president of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, submitted facts and figures showing that any material reduction in the more important iron and steel duties would practically cut all interior iron and steel makers out of the markets on the Atlantic coast, the Gulf coast and the Pacific coast.
