BUSY

Are the Executive Committees Preparing for the Citadel Campaign Next Week.

The various committees identified with the campaign to raise $20,000 for a Salvation Army citadel building for the city of Clarksburg are meeting at different periods during this week, effecting final organization preparatory to the active work of the campaign next week.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the "fallers" committee, under the leadership of Vice-Chairman A. H. Cyndell, met at the campaign headquarters, 307 Oak Hall building. Tonight after supper the physicians committee, under the leadership of Dr. H. E. Sloan, will meet. The lawyers committee will meet sometime Saturday. The jobbers' committee met Wednesday night, under the leadership of J. W. Williams, and held an enthusiastic meeting in his office, and things will be doing all along the line next week.

There possibly has been no appeal made to the citizens of Clarksburg of more merit or worth than this proposition.

Fifty of Clarksburg's representative citizens, men who are busy, but they are the men that do things, will find time during next week to spend a couple of hours each day, prompting this campaign, with no hope of reward other than the sense of having tried to do their duty toward humanity, helping the other fellow who is unable to help himself, the widow and the orphan; this is the work that makes all the manhood and virtue in a man respond to the call, and as long as men are built along the lines of humanitarian and brotherly inclinations, one will find that the things worth doing are those things which take the other fellow into consideration.

My how a cheerful bed-room makes a cheerful wife.

Dear Amy:—

When people spend nearly one-half of their time in their bedrooms, I don't see why they don't fix them up cozily, and for the life of me, the one most necessary thing in a home is a pretty, comfortable bed.

I just know John can work harder, because I make for him a restful place to sleep. You just ought to see our bedroom, Amy. I'm proud of it. Come soon.

As always,
Lou.
