

contributing to the production of the necessities of life so badly needed in these times of high cost of living.

The farmer will be benefited in another way, by bringing the demonstrator of the newest developments and proficiencies in the science of agriculture to his door, there to be taught by practical demonstrations. When these new ideas have been put into practice, he will be amazed to find that the farm he has depended upon for years for a mere existence, will not only furnish a comfortable living, but will guarantee an excess income which may be laid away for the inevitable rainy day. This can only come after we have transformed the paths which we point to as our highways into a network of thoroughfares ramifying every section of our commonwealth.

"We should open our jails, penitentiaries and prisons, and solve this great problem by the labor of those who violate our laws. Bad men on bad roads make good roads, while good roads make good men. The value of convict labor on the roads is the same as the value of his labor in prison factories. It makes little difference to the taxpayer which he is taxed to maintain—prisons or roads. Prisons are deemed a necessity, and no community can get along without them. Bad roads are a habit, and the community is accustomed to get along with them; with a slight tax maintaining prisons and de-competition of free labor, you more surely guarantee to our workmen steady employment at the standard of wages, which he is worthy to receive. The experience of men who have been associated with the working of prisoners, have demonstrated the advantages of employing able-bodied convicts to the betterment of the convict himself, transforming the sallow, ghostlike prisoner from the prison pen into a rosy, happy specimen of humanity; under God's own sky; with the fresh air of heaven to breathe; freed from the shackles and living on his honor; with a few guards to do no more than supervise; the prisoner has better environments; governed under methods which are sane, and at the same time you are enabled to segregate the hardened criminal from the young and inexperienced, who is still in the bloom of life and give him every advantage of seeking a reformation. With these methods adopted, we will have assumed the position of the good Samaritan and at the same time, by these reforms, have accomplished wonderful achievements for the happiness and comfort of the farmers—those who live in our rural sections—and develop the land which is now lying idle and going to waste.

Other Progressive Enterprises.
 "Our farmers must expect relief only after the good roads movement has been accomplished. Then, and then only, will the dawn of better days and more independence, as well as the interest for which the voters are expecting a satisfactory solution. One is: Nomination of all officials—including United States Senators—by popular vote. The time will soon arrive, if not already here, when every man who is an aspirant for office will have to take a position on all the important questions which interest the people. He must submit his views to the entire people for their consideration.

"Those who toil in our mills and mines are looking to our Legislators for the enactment of a law which will guarantee to them more expeditious and equitable consideration of the claims of those who have met with misfortunes, and this with the minimum of expense to them.

"Economy has been the watchword of our State government for the past sixteen years. An analysis of the yearly reports, as well as the expenses incurred by the legislature in its biennial sessions, would indicate that we are more saving and more economical, and that we are absorbing the true principles of the New Englander who has long been noted for his thriftiness and economy.

"A Public Service Corporation Commission has been discussed since the beginning of the administration of Governor Wm. M. O. Dawson. The measure which was presented to the last legislature failed of its passage, on account of the lateness in reaching the Senate, and from doubt as to the constitutionality of the bill a-and grant to the public, in consideration which they have not heretofore been able to receive, thereby relieving the necessity for special acts of the legislature to correct existing faults."

HUSBAND'S CAPTURE SHATTERS DREAMS

Mrs. Felix Diaz dreamed that she would become the first lady of Mexico. The dream, however, was of short duration, for her husband, General Felix Diaz, leader of the latest Mexican revolution, was captured by the Federal forces before his revolt was a fortnight old. A traitor's death awaits Diaz, who is a nephew of the former Mexican president.

Down a Gypsy is Now Being Planned by the Traction Company.

In traction circles it was stated Saturday that plans entered into by the county court, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company and the Monongahela Valley Traction Company, would result in a new overhead bridge being constructed over the West Fork river. This means so it is said that the proposed line of the local traction company from Gypsy to Lamberport and Haywood a distance of over two miles will be constructed in the near future.

The enterprising citizens of the section which will be affected by the new road have already made a trip to Baltimore where they talked the proposition over with railroad officials and on the site of the bridge they have held a conference with the three sets of officials interested and the result has been it is stated here that it has been decided to construct the structure and that the traction company has decided upon the construction of the line from Gypsy to the towns mentioned.

Mr. Husband, if you happen to be a millionaire, just get your wife an ostrich plume like this. It falls below her knees so much the better for its modishness; and when the breezes blow too strenuously, it may be twisted around her neck to make a becoming feather boa. For this is the last whim of Paris in the way of hat feathers—the Dornier 'C' in millinery. If one has to economize a trifle a long plume may hang from the back of the hat; if expense is absolutely no object there is no reason why it should not encircle the hat before starting on its downward journey. The plume pictured here is a soft, rich green shade and is attached to one of the stiff-brimmed derby shapes of black velvet.
