According to the report of the Federal Bureau of Mines covering the first eight months of the present year, there were 271 men killed in and about coal mines in West Virginia. That number is just 271 more than the Telegram hopes will be killed the ensuing eight months.

If that Socialist mayor had fined himself for violating city ordinances and then remitted the fine, he probably would have complied with a part of the propoganda of his own party. Like many other members of his party, he probably does not know very much about his party creed.

Governor Glascock certainly has his troubles. He had Colonel Roosevelt on his hands. Then came the coal strike in the southern end of the state and now comes a renewal of hostilities there. He will go down in history as the great warrior's governor and the state's war governor. Whether that makes him feel good no one knows.

Fewer than half of the people of the United States voted for Woodrow Wilson for president. The larger portion divided its vote between men who stand for tariff protection. While Democratic leaders are urging an extra session of Congress to revise the tariff, they should remember that more than half of the people of the United States voted nothing to lead them to the belief that the people wanted any tariff tinkering done by Democrats.

Man of Real Merit.
 Charles Brooks Smith of Parkersburg, very interestingly reviews the political situation in this state in an article in this issue of the Telegram.

Mr. Smith is easily the leading political writer in West Virginia and he has but few peers in the nation. His resume politically as published herein is in his own fascinating style and what he says as well as the way he says it impresses one with his thorough knowledge of the subject he writes about.

May it not be that Mr. Smith himself will be chosen to the federal senatorship, upon which his article largely treats? He certainly is deserving of it, indeed, he merits the highest gift within his party's power.

As a man of real merit, he leads. The Telegram is intimately acquainted with the trojan work done by him at state headquarters here in the recent campaign, when he conducted the publicity part of the campaign. Experience and close observation gave him a store of political knowledge, from which he furnished all the Republican newspapers in the state great chunks of effective argument. He brought out in most winning effect the many protests made by Democratic newspapers, statesmen and leaders as well as the rank and file of the Democratic party against the party perjury and the shame and disgrace to the state for which the Democratic bosses were responsible. Millions of pieces of political literature bearing Mr. Smith's own impress were circulated in West Virginia. Three times during the campaign he wrote and saw distributed six-page supplements to all the Republican newspapers, in all fully half a million supplements. They along with other literature written by him did the real work of the campaign.

Be it not said that such service to the party and state did not result in honor, glory and power for the man who rendered it. Charles Brooks Smith is entitled to anything he may ask from his party—even the United States senatorship.
