An Evening Echo.

Remember, no effort we make to attain something beautiful is ever lost. Sometime, somewhere, somehow we shall find that which we seek.—HELEN KELLER.

Andrew Carnegie is presenting President Wilson bouquets. He ought not to overlook Oscar Underwood. The latter with the approval of the former is very kind in his tariff bill to the United States Steel Corporation, a thing near and dear to the aged steel magnate.

As soon as Governor Hatfield gets all the striking coal miners back to work, he will doubtless give his attention to the promised extra session of the legislature. Then his troubles will begin all over again, but he knows how to ravel knotty things out and he will be in a role delightful for him.

Democratic tariff tinkers are no more consistent in that work than the many other inconsistencies indulged in by the Democratic party. The Underwood bill provides for free meat and puts a tariff duty of ten per cent on live stock. The finished product comes in free, while the raw material has to pay a duty. Applying the same principle to the glass industry, the Belgian workers' product is admitted free, while the raw material from which glass is made has to pay a duty. This indicates that the burden of the Democratic conscience is to help the foreign worker at the expense of the American toiler.

Hatfield's Warning.

Governor Hatfield is to be commended for having Fritz Merrick arrested and placed in jail. Merrick is an undesirable among free American people. His anarchy has been more or less tolerated in this and other states and he has done harm, not good. His present offense is his attempt through the columns of the Labor Argus to induce coal miners not to go to work by making them believe that the coal property rightfully belonged to them. He did this after the governor had the settlement of the strike in hand.

Governor Hatfield has sounded a warning that should be heard and heeded here, if men who incite riots, stir up strife and prejudice labor against life and property do not curb their vile tongues. The governor says "Those inside and outside this section who do not agree with me relative to law and order will not be temporized with further." It is meant to apply to all parts of the state. The governor evidently has his eye on the court house yard here and he wags his tongue to decry law and attack the dignity of peace and order may soon be behind jail bars.

Uncalled for Lenience.

Judge Boyle, recently elected to the bench in a New Jersey district, upon assuming his duties, made the announcement that he would send no man to prison who had not a criminal record.

Four men pleaded guilty before Judge Boyle in a single day. Probably they had heard of his intention to be merciful. The charge against the men were highway robbery, assault, forgery and bigamy. Despite the serious nature of their offense, the judge stuck to his announced policy and each was discharged from custody, to be on probation for four weeks.

Four weeks probation is nominal and without reason. Nearly any criminal could be good for four weeks. Four months or four years might be considered adequate. The robber and the forger and the big-mist might all be extremely pentent for four weeks, and the begin to rob and forge and marry all over again.

The scheme is not founded in common sense, as the Huntington Advertiser says. Discretion and discrimination should be used even when a court is dealing with first offenders, and mercy should be somewhat tempered with justice. Suppose a murderer who had murdered only once, should be brought before the New Jersey judge. Would he, too, be turned loose on a promise not to murder any more for four weeks?

The New Owen Bill.

Senator Owen has introduced a revised bill providing for a national department of health. The new bill goes back to the original plan and provides for a department of health with a secretary in the cabinet. It is by far the best measure which has yet been presented on this subject. It contains all the strong points of preceding bills without any of the objections to which previous bills were subject. The return to a plan for a department of health is commendable. In the United States Public Health Service we already have a strong, efficient and rapidly developing bureau. In order to justify itself to the friends of advanced health legislation, any proposed change must provide for something larger, better and stronger than the existing health machinery.

The movement for a department has gained strength enormously during the last three years. The opposition to it has crystallized in a constantly diminishing group of objectors, while public support for such a measure has been growing as its object and purposes have been better understood. The silly objections which were at first raised against the measure have been completely met. The establishment of a national department of health will not and can not create a "medical trust." It can not interfere with the rights of any citizen or with the authority of any state. It can not have anything to do with the individual treatment of disease or with the administration of drugs. These facts have been proved repeatedly to the satisfaction of all those who really wish to know the truth.

The only objectors left are those who are too ignorant to understand or too mercenary to care for anything except the possibility of interference with their private gains. The educational value of the efforts that have been made in the past are well worth the cost. The Journal of the American Medical Association thinks that the prospects for the passage of Senator Owen's bill are more favorable now than ever before.

PASSIVE

Is the General Interest of the British in Suffragette Movement.

LONDON, May 3.—The militant suffragettes may burn vacant buildings and destroy golf greens, and the interest of the general public is indirect and often passive. A method of more real annoyance was wanted, something that would reach certain individuals with particular severity, and a series of hoaxes was devised. These vary with the circumstances of the case, but a practical joke played on Prosecutor Bodkin is typical.

Mr. Bodkin has conducted the case for the government at many of the suffragette trials. He it was who proceeded against Mrs. Pankhurst. In the midst of this trial he was called from his bed at 3 o'clock one morning by a telegram which stated that his offices in the Temple were burning. Without waiting to complete his dressing, Mr. Bodkin flung on an overcoat and was driven at high speed through the deserted streets from his home in the edge of London to the Temple. Arrived there he found all peaceful and dark. The prosecutor had little doubt as to what agency to attribute the hoax, but he was doubly convinced when, as he climbed into his car for the drive home, he heard a mocking feminine voice from the direction of the embankment cry, "Votes for Women."

The next day Bodkin made his address to the jury in the Pankhurst case, and some of the severity of his denunciation of the suffragette tactics has been attributed to his early morning visit to his offices.

NECKS SAVED

Medley Gets a Life Sentence and Hix a Respite from Governor.

MOUNDSVILLE, May 3.—Virtually snatched from the jaws of death, by a telephone message, was the fortunate fate of John Medley and John Hix, condemned murderers, at the Moundsville penitentiary, yesterday afternoon. The message was received by Warden Brown over the long distance telephone from Governor Hatfield at 3:49 o'clock p. m. Medley's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, while Hix was granted a respite of thirty days. A few minutes after the receipt of the telephone communication, Warden Brown received a telegraphic dispatch of the same import, from the governor.

HIS TROUBLE NOT OF HEART

Real Facts in Regard To F. R. Huffman's Illness. Relief Obtained By Curing His Stomach Ailments.

Waynesville, N. C.—Mr. F. R. Huffman, of this city, says: "I suffered dreadfully with what I thought was heart trouble, and tried various medicines in vain. After other remedies had failed, Theford's Black-Draught restored me to health. I would not feel safe without Black-Draught in the house. I consider it worth its weight in gold.

It cured my indigestion, and by this means I was restored to health. I can not express my gratitude for its benefits." Good health depends on the condition of your digestion. Poor digestion and good health do not go together.

Theford's Black-Draught will thoroughly cleanse and set in order your digestive system. It has done this for others, during the past 70 years, and is today the most popular vegetable liver remedy on the market. Try it.

Insist on Theford's. Price 25c.
