The Greatest Happiness Comes to Ourselves when we make others happy with our gifts.

The value of a gift consists not in costliness or variety, but in the feelings of affection, or regard, or sympathy, or honor, which it is supposed to carry. It is time that both giver and receiver realized this. Too often the spirit of Christmas is utterly sacrificed in the contest between the desire to spend and the duty of refraining. For a gift to be worth the giving, no sacrifice of duty must have entered into it. A tiny flower given in love and simplicity is better than a rare and costly gem procured with worry, anxiety and doubt. When you give something to wear, you exhibit good sense, good taste and good judgment.
