THE THEATERS

There is a two-fold interest attached to the new Kaleid drama, "The Strike." In addition to being a powerful portrayal of the constant struggle between capital and labor, this feature shows the operations of one of the most important iron mines in the country. Incidentally, the battle between the enraged strikers and the mine guards is one of the most realistic pictures of this nature ever filmed.

Scene from the photoplay, "Francesca di Rimini," which will be shown Monday at the Bijou theater.

Laurette Taylor and her company in "Peg-O' My Heart" at the San Francisco Exposition.

The Stratford-Upon-Avon Players have found an enthusiastic admirer and friend in the United States ambassador to Great Britain, Dr. Walter H. Page. At a farewell dinner given the manager of the company Mr. Benson, in London, by the leading men in art.

Peggy O'Neil in "Peg o' My Heart" share with her great expenses in putting on her act, with its multiplicity of expensive gowns, to say nothing of her other expenses.

SEATS ON SALE AT APOLLO DECEMBER 5

Harold Vosburgh the well known photoplay actor, had a close call from severe illness last week in not getting quick reaction from a water scene in a great war drama in which he had to rescue the heroine, Alma Russell. The lake was at the freezing point and the pair were dragged from the water more dead than alive. No wonder actors hate—water stuff.

"Peg O' My Heart," that comes to the Robinson Grand December 9, is termed "a comedy of youth" and has for its central character, an exquisite little rough diamond of a girl who shocks the haughty, aristocratic family who are trying to educate her. The story is plausible, and throughout Peg moves a winsome, irresistible dominating character like a fresh breath from old Erin. Oliver Morosco has given the play an excellent production with a cast that includes Peggy O'Neil, Fred L. Tilden, Olin Field, Fraser Coulter and Roxanne Lansing.

Oliver Wyndham is to have the title role in a new comedy called, "A Modern Girl."

Charles Forham is going to produce another playlet by J. M. Barrie, called "The Little Policeman."

The name of the comedy by James Forbes in which May Robinson is to star called "The Clever Woman."

Mary Lawton is to play the leading feminine role in Shaw's play, "The Philander," when it is produced by Winthrop Ames in New York.

Mrs. Helen Robinson, of Colorado, the only woman state senator in the country, posed lately in a moving picture play called "Our Mutual Girl."

Oliver Morosco has received an offer of $100,000 for the appearance of

They Make You Feel Good.
