

A Kidney Medicine Accomplished Remarkable Results

About fifteen years ago I began suffering with backache and sick headache and nervous trouble. For about nine years I received treatment from different doctors but did not receive any relief or benefit from their medicine. About six years ago I began using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and took some until I was entirely cured of my ailments. I am now well and strong and have not had to take any medicine for the past two years. I attribute the cure of my ailments to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and cannot praise the same enough. I would heartily recommend any person suffering with backache, sick headache or any nervous trouble caused by kidney disease to at once begin taking Swamp-Root as I am positive it will effect a permanent cure.

Yours truly,
Mrs. JOSEPH BOEHLER,

JACKSONVILLE ELDER

Writes Characteristic Letter Regarding Loss of Appetite.

He says: "Vinol is just the thing. For summer, winter fall or spring. Follow directions, take it right. It will save your lagging appetite. I know for I have tried it. For weeks I could scarcely eat enough to keep a make-alive. I have taken three bottles of Vinol and now it looks like I will eat my head off. I am at the table three times a day eating as I did in the good old days when I split rails, dug wells, topped trees, plowed corn and hoed cotton. Thy Vinol and see how good it feels to be real hungry." "When you ought to be hungry and are not it is because your stomach does not feel strong enough to assist for food—a sure sign of impaired general health. Better than dosing the stomach with pepsin for temporary relief is taking Vinol, our delicious tonic, which has the strengthening and blood-making power of iron, and the building-up value of cod liver oil. It quickly restores appetite and perfect digestion. If Vinol does not help you it costs you nothing. Stone & Mercier, druggists, Clarksburg, W. Va. P. S. If you have any skin trouble try Saxo Salve. THE Ne'er-Do-Well

"Don't let the money question stand in your way, Kirk. You're my guest, and your I. O. U. is as good as a government bond, so go as far as you like."

A considerable portion of Anthony's time in college had been devoted to a course in draw poker. But he soon found that these men had forgotten more about the game than he could ever hope to learn at any university, and when the crowd broke up at midnight he signed his name to a tab for $40.

Early the next day the following cablegram was left at the American consulate:

Weeks, Consul, Colon:
 Anthony absent. Return Friday.
 C. O. P. L. Y.

"Copy is the governor's secretary," Kirk explained. "That means that I miss the Santa Cruz and have to wait another week."

"That's delighted," the consul said heartily.

"Perhaps you could stake me to a ticket. I'll remit when I get to New York."

"My pay isn't due for a fortnight," Weeks explained after an instant's hesitation. "You see, I'm interested in so many ventures it keeps me—well, broke. Anyhow, you can't go until we have arranged an investment for your father."

Not wishing to embarrass his host, he refrained from pressing the matter and resigned himself as best he could to an extension of his exile. Meanwhile he decided to visit the canal.

But his plans were upset by the weather. On the following day it began to rain, and it continued to rain day and night thereafter until Colon became a sodden, dripping horror. The soil melted into a quagmire, the streets became slithers, the heavens closed down like a leaden pall, and the very air became saturated. It was hot and sticky.

It was too much for Kirk, and he deferred his trip over the line, spending his time instead at the Wayfarers' club. In his daylight hours he listened to Weeks' unending dissertations upon the riches of the tropics. At night he played poker with such uniform bad luck that his opponents developed for him an increasing affection.

But all things have an end, and Friday morning broke clear and hot.

"We'll hear from the old gentleman today sure," he told Weeks at breakfast. "He's regularity itself. His train dispatchers set their watches by him." He then declared his determination to avail himself of the good weather and see something of the town.

The prospect of squaring his account with the fawning fat man filled him with relief, and once away from the consulate he strolled until late in the afternoon. It was nearly dark when he strolled in to inquire:

"Well, did you get an answer?" "Yes. Here's the message; read it yourself."

Kirk read as follows:
 Weeks, Consul, Colon:
 Your guest an impostor. Have no son. ANTHONY.

"Well, I'll be blanked!" he ejaculated. "This is a joke!"

Weeks was beginning to pant. "A joke, hey? I suppose it was a joke to impose on me?"

"Don't you believe I'm Kirk Anthony?"

"No, I do not. I just discovered today that your name is Jefferson Locke Stein told me."

Anthony laughed lightly.

"Oh, laugh if you want to. You're a smooth article, but you happened to select the wrong millionaire for a father this time, and I'm going to give you a taste of our Spigotty jails."

"You can't arrest me. You offered to take me in."

"You can't get out of it that way," cried Weeks at the top of his little voice. "I've fed you for a week. I put you up at my club. That very suit of clothes you have on is mine."

"Well, don't burst a seam over the matter. My governor doesn't know the facts. I'll cable him myself this time."

"You get out of my house!"

Kirk found himself singularly lacking in resource, and a period of sober contemplation brought him no helpful thought. Perhaps, after all, he decided, his best course would be to seek relief from the Cortlandts. According to the strolled into the offices of the steamship company near by and made leave to telephone. But on calling at the Hotel Irving in Panama City he was told that his friends were out, not could be left in the probable hour of their return.

He was growing sick from further down the water front the lights of the Wayfarers' club shone invitingly, and Kirk decided to appeal there for assistance. But as he neared the place he underwent a sudden change of heart. Slowly mounting the stairs ahead of him like a trained hippopotamus was the colossal, panting figure of the American consul, at sight of which Kirk's pride rose up in arms and forbade him to follow.

A band was playing in the plaza when he came back—a very good band, too—and, finding a bench, he allowed his mind the relief of idly listening to the music. The square was filling with Spanish people, who soon caught and held his attention, for every imaginable variety of mongrel breed looked out from the loitering crowd. But no matter what the racial blend, black was the fundamental tone.

Round and round the people walked to the strains of their national music, among them dozens upon dozens of the ever present little black and tan policemen who constitute the republic's standing army.

As the evening drew on Kirk became conscious of an unwelcome sensation. He began to wonder whether a fast of twenty-four hours would seriously weaken a man, and rather than make the experiment, he called up the "Tivoli," reporting in on the fact that there was no ball of lithalium anisettes. But again he was disappointed. This time he was sorry that the Cortlandts were doubtless spending the night out of town with friends.

CHAPTER VI.
 The Reward of Merit.

SOON after Kirk's second return to the park the concert ended, the crowd melted away, and he found himself occupying a bench with a negro of about the same age as himself. For perhaps an hour the two sat there heartening to the dying noises of the city; then Kirk, unable to endure the monotonous longer, turned sharply on his companion and said:

"Why don't you go home?" "Oh, boss, I got no home."

RALLIES

Are to Be Held at Various Points in This Section of State by Baptists.

Resulting from a conference held here by a number of Baptist ministers in this section of the state a series of missionary and educational rallies will be held in the Monongahela valley at an early date. The rallies will consist of five or six sessions each day and night. Among the places where they will be held are Weston, Fairbairn, Salem, Mannington and Morgantown.

The conference here organized by making Dr. D. B. Purinton, of Morgantown, president, and Dr. W. C. Taylor, of this city, secretary. A permanent committee on management was chosen with Dr. Purinton chairman.

As a mass meeting Tuesday night ended the conference, it was held in the First Baptist church and Dr. Purinton delivered an excellent address on "The Challenge of the Times." The Rev. F. E. Brimstool, pastor of the First Baptist church of Wheeling, spoke on "Our Obligations to the Times."
