A SENSIBLE FROCK.

5130

Pretty little dress for a small child, to be slipped on over the head and adjusted at the left shoulder. It is made of etchelyn cotton and trimmed with embroidery.

While one finds a great deal of variety in children's frocks, the sensible and the fanciful both being favored, there is seldom a minute's hesitation about accepting the former once it is seen.

For the tiny tot nothing could be more in keeping with comfort and be at the same time stylish than this design in etchelyn cotton, one of the new fabrics for children's frocks.

For a child of four years, two yards of 36-inch or 1 1/4 yards of 41-inch material will be needed for the dress. In cutting out the design, which closes over the shoulder and is to be slipped over the head, the pieces of the pattern marked triple "T" perforations should be arranged on a lengthwise fold of the material. The girle, however, is placed on a crosswise fold, and the remaining pieces with line or line "O" perforations on a lengthwise thread of the material.

If the belt is made of the same material enough may be saved from the cuts to make the simple fold used for this purpose. The first step in the construction of the design is to turn under the shoulder edge of front on slot perforations. There are small "O" perforations on the back on which this should be lapped, with notches even. Now stitch to position on the right shoulder, leaving the left shoulder free for the opening. Now close the seams, making them even with the notches on either side. The inverted pleat may be formed by creasing on slot perforations; bring folded edges to seam and press. At this stage the little straps may be added through which the girle is to be run. Their places are indicated by small "o" perforations. On the girle pattern the large "O" perforations indicate the upper edge. After turning and sewing in the hem the dress is finished, with the exception of sewing the collar to neck edge as notched. If the round neck is used it may be piped or finished with a tiny ruffle of lace.

BIG INCREASE IS SHOWN IN CROP VALUES

Eighty-three Per Cent Gain is Shown for Period from 1899 to 1909.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 17.—The state of Idaho showed the largest increase in the value of its crops in 1909 as compared with the year 1899, of any state in the Union, according to the census of agriculture in 1910, which recently has been issued by Director William J. Harris, Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. The crops of Idaho in 1909 increased in value 270.7 per cent over their value in 1899. The state of Washington ranked second with a percentage of increase in value of 235.4 per cent; North Dakota was third, with a percentage of 234.3; Wyoming, fourth, with 219.8 per cent; Oklahoma, fifth, with 205 per cent; and Colorado, sixth, with 200.4 per cent.

Five other states showed gains of 150 to 200 per cent in value, namely, New Mexico, 191.2; South Dakota, 184.1; Montana, 177.9; Florida, 167.8; and Georgia, 152.4.

Eight other states showed gains of 100 to 150 per cent in value, namely, South Carolina, 141.1; Oregon, 124.9; Utah, 124.2; Arizona, 122.3; Nebraska, 112.1; North Carolina, 108.2; Nevada, 105.1; and Arkansas, 101.5. By comparison, the percentage of gain in value of crops for the entire United States for 1899-1909 was 83 per cent, while that of the state of Illinois, which led all other states in the total value of its crop production, was 73.3 per cent.

Significant Figures.

The significance of the above percentage figures is shown by the fact that the states which showed the largest gains in 1909 over 1899 are not the states which led in agriculture and value of crops, speaking generally. In most of these first named states agriculture has not been one of the chief industries, but the advance shown from 1899 to 1909 indicates that greater attention is being paid to the growing of crops. The newer states in the northwest—Idaho, Washington, North Dakota, Wyoming—show very large percentage gains during the 1899-1909 decade; yet, the total value of their crop will not rank with other states in the more densely populated sections of the country, as is shown by a comparison between Idaho, with a percentage gain of 270.7 per cent and a total valuation (at the farm) of crops in 1909 of $34,258,000, and Illinois with a percentage gain of 73.3 and total value of crops of $37,270,000.

The Principal Crops.

The principal crops, in the order of their value, of the states whose percentage of gain ranks over 100, were as follows:

Idaho: Hay and forage, wheat, and oats.

Washington: Wheat, hay and forage, oats, fruits and nuts, barley and potatoes.

North Dakota: Wheat, oats, flaxseed, hay and forage, and barley.

Wyoming: Hay and forage, oats, and wheat.

Oklahoma: Corn, cotton, wheat, hay and forage, and oats.

Colorado: Hay and forage, wheat, sugar beets, fruits and nuts, oats and potatoes.

New Mexico: Hay and forage, corn, miscellaneous vegetables, fruits and nuts, wheat, and oats.

South Dakota: Wheat, corn, oats, hay and forage, barley and flaxseed.

Montana: Hay and forage, oats, wheat and potatoes.

Florida: Citrus and nuts, miscellaneous vegetables, corn, cotton, peanuts, and sweet potatoes.

Georgia: Cotton, corn, miscellaneous vegetables, sweet potatoes, oats, and hay and forage.

South Carolina: Cotton, corn, oats, miscellaneous vegetables, hay and forage, and sweet potatoes.

Oregon: Hay and forage, wheat, and oats.

Utah: Hay and forage, wheat, sugar beets, and oats.

Arizona: Hay and forage, barley, wheat, miscellaneous vegetables, fruits, nuts and corn.

Nebraska: Corn, wheat, hay and forage, and oats.

North Carolina: Cotton, corn, tobacco, miscellaneous vegetables, potatoes and sweet potatoes, pecan nuts, and hay and forage.

Nevada: Hay and forage, potatoes, wheat, barley, miscellaneous vegetables, and oats.

Arkansas: Cotton, corn, hay and forage, miscellaneous vegetables, fruits and nuts, and potatoes.

Don't Let a Cold Settle on Your Lungs

Many cases of Lung Trouble can be traced directly to a severe cold which has been neglected and which, as a result, has affected the lungs. If you have a persistent cough, or if you are unable to breathe before it is too late. Eckman's Alternative is most beneficial in such cases and will insure a complete and permanent restoration to health many persons who had serious lung trouble. Read this case—

Fresantville, N. J.

"Gentlemen: During the winter of 1911 I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs. The doctor pronounced it lung trouble. I tried nearly every preparation without any result and kept getting worse. Eckman's Alternative was recommended to me and I commenced using it as a last resort. The first bottle seemed to give no relief; in fact, I seemed to feel worse, but I kept on using the medicine and found out the first bottle had really started me on the road to recovery by loosening the mucus and making me expectorate freely. After using the medicine for some time my cough ceased. I gained weight and today I am a well man."

CO-OPERATION IN DANGER OF SHERMAN LAW

As It Applies to Producer and Consumer Alike, Says University Professor.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Advocating an interstate trade commission to have the power to pass upon the proposed practice of co-operation, President Charles R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin here showed where the co-operative movement of the United States was in danger of being held up because it is liable to be declared in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

In a banquet address before the second National Conference on Marketing and Farm Credits and the Western Economics Society President Van Hise said in part:

Cites Other Cases.

"The Sherman anti-trust act applies alike to the producer and the consumer, to the laborer and the magnate. Various labor organizations have been prosecuted and fined under the Sherman act. Also boards of trade engaged in marketing agricultural products are now under attack, and one fruit growers' organization has been heavily fined. "Congress well understands this situation, and at recent sessions they attached to the paragraph of the sundry civil bill containing an appropriation of $300,000 for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws a proviso that none of this money should be spent in prosecuting combinations or agreements of labor, nor spent for the prosecution of producers of farm products and associations of farmers who co-operate and organize in an effort to and for the purpose to obtain and maintain a fair and reasonable price for the products." The aim of this provision is clearly to make the Sherman law class legislation by its direction and in effect to prevent before the law of the manufacturer and the merchant as compared with the farmer and the laborer.

Two Presidents Protest.

"Both ex-President Taft and President Wilson have protested against the attempt of Congress in this direction. The principles of justice in regard to co-operation are alike for the manufacturers, the farmers and the laborers.

"The act should be modified under a general principle which should permit legitimate co-operation in all lines of business and at the same time prohibit all practices of co-operation which are inimical to the public welfare.

"This could be accomplished by a very simple amendment embodying the following idea: That the restraint of trade prohibited by the Sherman act shall be construed to include all contracts and combinations which are detrimental to the public welfare, and the presumption is that every combination and contract is detrimental under the law and been heavily fined. "If this amendment were adopted any person, association or corporation that wished to enter into a combination or contract could do so, provided the contract or co-operation was not detrimental to the public welfare. In order to protect the public the presumption would be that the contract or combination is thus detrimental. In order that the farmers may know whether any proposed practice or co-operation is legal or illegal, it will be necessary also that an interstate trade commission be created which shall have power to pass upon the proposed practice of co-operation. This suggestion is in accordance with the message of President Wilson, in which he recommends that an interstate trade commission be created by the present congress.

Laws Should be Amended.

"Further the anti-trust acts of the several states should be amended to the same effect as proposed for the Sherman act, and also state trade commissions should be created having the same powers within the states that the interstate trade commission has for interstate commerce.

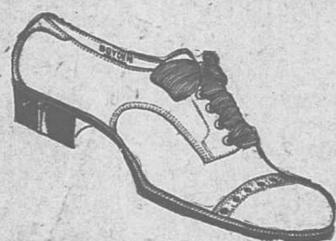

"This program will result in the following benefits:

"1. The efficiency which goes with industrial magnitude will be secure, and the resultant profits may be fairly distributed between the producer and the consumer.

"2. The farmers' co-operative movements will become lawful.

"3. Labor organizations will be free to co-operate in all legitimate ways.

"Let us strive to secure trust legislation from Congress such that the co-operative movement among the farmers will be lawful; for the purpose and contract is detrimental
