For the Democratic Nomination for Congressman-at-Large from State.

(By Charles Brooks Smith.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—More or less disquieting news comes from the Eastern Panhandle for the Hon. Wylie Beall, of Wellsburg, and possibly for the Hon. Hal Deput of Roanoke, the Hon. Sam V. Woods, of Barbours, the Hon. Ben Butcher, of Wood, and whatever other gentleman that may have a secret in their hearts covetous of the Democratic nomination for congressman-at-large. The news in question is that the Hon. Gray Silver, of Martinsburg, has it in mind to take over that nomination for his very own—or try to. The news bears the earmarks of authenticity. Silver is a politician of skill and experience, and a personality smooth and urbane. But he is most to be feared because he stands as close in to the Watson-Chilton machine as it is possible for one to get, and he knows so much about the building of that mechanism as the owners themselves; so much in fact that it might be dangerous for them not to honestly back him to win. No one ever rendered unto Caesar more than Silver has rendered unto Watson-Chilton, not even the new state committee chairman, Clem Shaver, and that is saying a great deal indeed.

If there is anything of virtue in the early-bird maxim then Col. Beall has an advantage at this early stage, for he it was who was first to climb to the housetops and proclaim in no audible tones his ambition to try to oust Howard Sutherland from a job he has discharged with such conspicuous distinguished success. Deput was the first talked of by the chroniclers of politics, but he terrified and was not first to shy his castor. It was Beall who grabbed that honor. If such it be, and he is formally installed in the race, according to ceremonial customs and usages. The others have been wasting their precious time "wandering between two worlds, one dead, the other powerless to be born," as Ignatius Brennan might say, while the Wellsburg banker decided with the promptness that he would discount a note for any rich and opulent newspaper reporter, for example. However, they they have some time coming to them in which to decide what they are going to do. Knowing Beall as they do, they will understand without hiring a tutor what stride they will have to strike to keep within sight of the Brooke county man. It will be no place for a timid man or a tightwad.

If it is true that Senator Silver is not going to try to succeed himself the friends of Braxton D. Gibson, of Charles Town, say that he ought to easily secure the nomination for senator. Followers of Samuel J. Hodges, of Shepherdstown, fall to see it in that light. They argue that with Silver out of the way, their candidate's chances are improved. It narrows the field and ought to focus party attention and interest on the two men, and the Hodges contingent think so highly of their favorite that they say this will help him. Gibson is a lawyer and Hodges is a grain merchant. Silver's reported candidacy indi-icates that his opponents have succeeded in scaring him away from trying to again succeed himself in the state senate. They have been seen after his scalp for several years, and it would seem that while in a strict political sense they did not get it, it amounts to about the same thing. He has sidestepped the issue at home and is going to range in a larger field for bigger game. The opposition to Silver in his home district was based mainly on his anti-prohibition attitude and record, and his close alliance with the Harniss distillery people for whom it was charged he was more or less of an agent in legislative and other branches of official affairs. Accusations have been hurled at him from time to time that he was a representative of large corporate interests, but the wise heads say that that ought not to hurt him much with is party since all the offices held by Democrats in West Virginia are held by corporation servitors. If forced to make a choice between Silver and Beall the Watson-Chilton organization will find itself hard put to it. If such thing were possible it would be most embarrassing for the reason that both of these men have loyally supported the two party bosses, and each in the particular role he has had to play for the high erups has played it most satisfactorily. They have never wavered and, in the Princeton language of the day have "given in ungrudging measure" the best that was in them to Watson and Chilton.

SITUATION IN MEXICO NOW IS EXPLAINED

By Dr. Callahan in An Address at the West Virginia University.

MORGANTOWN, May 2.—A large audience made up of students of the university and towns people, attended chapel to hear Dr. James Morton Callahan discuss the Mexican situation. Dr. Callahan first took up the abuses which have led to the present situation in Mexico, giving as the two principal causes the rivalry of leaders and the economic conditions and the relation of these two causes to the administration of Diaz.

Dr. Callahan stated that there might have been four possible solutions of the trouble: First, recognition of the Huerta government by the United States and the discouragement of the rebels; second, international intervention; third, intervention by the United States in connection with the Constitutionalists or alone; fourth, the intervention of European powers. Dr. Callahan discussed all of these propositions as to their particular merits and the possible effects they might have on the interests of the United States.

Dr. Callahan says that the United States has never had a wish to interfere in the internal policies of Latin-American neighbors. She has no desire to interfere with those which are orderly and no inclination to interfere with those that are disorderly, but in the case of Mexico she has refused recognition to de facto governments irregularly or unfairly elected. The maintenance of the Monroe doctrine places upon the United States a responsibility to prevent its foreign policy from becoming a shield to protect the existence of revolution, anarchy and military despotism which increases the debts of neighboring Latin-American countries and results in vast claims for property destroyed.

Dr. Callahan said that it might be possible that arbitration in some form could be applied to the conditions in Mexico so that orderly elections might be held, a staple form of government established and the troubles gradually abolished. The United States as a near neighbor stands in a favorable position to take the initiative in the consummation of such reforms.

NEW DESIGN IN ORGANDY.

do well to include this design in her wardrobe. Plain and figured organdy are used for the model, the blouse being of the figured material. It is trimmed with flounces of shadow lace arranged at the bottom of the peplum and about the deep V-shaped neck.

Three yards of 36-inch organdy are needed for the blouse and the same quantity in plain color for the skirt. About 7 yards of 4-inch lace will also be required.

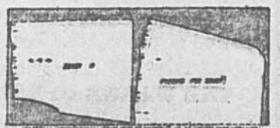

The blouse has a fitted lining of silk after closing the outer part, the tucks are placed at the shoulders, back and front. Then the lower edge of the blouse is gathered as indicated and the stay sewed to lower edge, centers even and small "o" perforation at under-arm seam. Turning the hem in right back of the shield at notches and sewing on collar follow.

For the sleeves, pleat at slash, bringing "t" to corresponding small "o" perforations. Close the seam as notched, and sew in the armhole, without any fullness.

Now close back seam of the peplum from large "O" perforation to lower edge; finish edges above for placket. Gather entire upper edge. Close back seams of ruffles, gather upper edges between double "T" perforations. Adjust to position on peplum, centers and seams even; stitch gathered edges along small "o" perforations. Sew to lower edge of waist over stay, centers even, small "o" perforation at under-arm seam.

Finish with a belt of dark satin ribbon.
