American mills and American labor employed at the former rate, though they have failed to lower the cost of living so confidently promised, though exports from this country have fallen off tremendously, though gold exports have tremendously increased, though depression has followed the enactment of the new tariff, they have at least one reason for rejoicing. They have rescued Sidney from the depths of industrial stagnation and "at present the prospects are excellent for the year's business."

What boots it if our workmen are working on reduced time or not at all? What's the difference if America is suffering from what has been done and what is threatened to be done? Why do we rejoice over the boom at Sidney, Nova Scotia? It is a part of the great British empire now recipient of so much solicitous care at the hands of the present administration. Not only has it determined to turn the Panama canal over to England, but it has brought prosperity and good cheer to Sidney. Though it has slackened every mill in the Pittsburgh district and has closed down thousands of ovens in this region, it has made it possible for many a man at Sidney to go home to his family on Saturday night with a fat pay envelope. Here is the dry consular report, eloquent as it is with what the Democratic administration has done for the foreigner at the expense of American citizens:

Owing to a lack of orders, caused by a general depression of the iron business, in the latter part of 1913, two of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company's furnaces were closed down, and other departments of that plant run on short time. This continued into the present year, and, as the city of Sidney has only one major industry, it seriously affected all commercial enterprise. Never since Sidney became a city has there been a stagnation of business been felt. During the first three months of the present year but one building permit was issued.

At present conditions have improved, and the steel plant (as noted in the Daily Consular and Trade Reports for March, 1914), is reaching out for a more varied business and a larger field. For the first time since its establishment this company is shipping its products to the United States and is taking advantage of the reduction in the American tariff.

It has already, within the last two months, shipped to the United States three cargoes of pig iron, which under the tariff of 1909 paid a duty of $2.50 per ton. The putting on the free list of pig iron allows the Dominion Iron and Steel Company to dispose of its products at a profit in a market where formerly it was unable to compete. This outlet for iron and steel products, together with the large rail and mail shipments to Australia and New Zealand, in conjunction with the Canadian market, has changed the outlook for the company, and at present the prospects are excellent for the year's business.

What effects this company is felt throughout the entire community, and good business is expected for the last six months of 1914.

Not Buried.
A hundred years hence some one will be digging along the New England shore for the buried treasure of the New Haven pirates.—Wheeler News.

Have to Hurry.
If Tom Lipton expects to lift a cup the Boston Transcript advises him to hurry over and do it before the prohibitionists make it unlawful.—Wheeler Register.

General Impression.
Government employes at Washington are loud in their demands for pensions, but the general impression is that they get one while their salaries last.—Bluefield Telegraph.

Psychologically He Could.
Secretary Redfield is to have shipments of food sent to Vera Cruz to be sold at reasonable prices. Wonder if he couldn't do something of the kind for this country.—Wheeler Telegraph.

Develops Later.
Congressman Neely has at last brought to the attention of Congress the charges impeaching Judge Dayton. What attention Congress will pay to them is one of the matters that will develop later.—Charleston Mail.

We Hope So.
Now, if President Wilson can convince Secretary Bryan that his inability to live on his salary as a cabinet officer is a mere psychological hallucination, that loquacious official may decide to give up the lecture platform and stick to the nation's business.—Huntington Herald-Dispatch.

Tried to Be Fair.
Bluefield Times, we have tried to be fair in discussing the Wilson administration. You will not find any calamity howl in this paper. We have said over and over the Democracy did well the first year it was in power. That was certainly a surprise, but it has now broken away in an awful and injurious manner. We commend what we think is right, even when it is done by Democrats, and certainly propose to oppose such blunders as repealing free tolls in the Panama canal for American coastwise shipping, and the way we reap all the evils of war without getting any of the benefits of the same.

In the first proposition we have the pleasure, too, of being with such leading Democrats as Champ Clark, Underwood and O'Gorman and in the last it is difficult to see why everybody does not agree with us.—Parkersburg State Journal.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

ANNA PETRUNKA—A TRAGEDY.

She dived a dove of perfect grace; She dove a dive, submerged her face.
She sank a sunk of weighty joy, Alas, fair maid! Ho, ship ahoy!
(Translated from the Norwegian.)
The family of Anna Petrunka was all agog.
The family of Anna Petrunka on the quiver.
Anna Petrunka, the only lady life saver on the wild and forbidding Norway coast, was that afternoon to give a public exhibition of diving and coming up again.
Anna Petrunka, their Anna, who had won 678 medals for saving lives, was to do this.
Joy!
Two joys!!
I.
Low grey clouds lowered lumpyly. It was a typical day.
All Norway, it seemed, was there at the sea to see.
To see Anna Petrunka dive and come up again for exhibition.
Anna Petrunka glistened, coruscated, with her 678 medals.
Ah!
She is diving!
She has dived!
II.
Anna Petrunka never came up again.
The weight of her 678 medals kept her down.
(The end.)

MOUNT CLARE

MT. CLARE, June 16.—Class No. 2 of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school, under the leadership of its teacher, Carl Workman, gave a lawn fete upon the park grounds on last Saturday evening, which proved to be a financial success. A good sum of money was realized, which will go to help swell the fund that is being raised in payment of the new piano recently installed in the church.

A very pretty and well prepared Children's Day program was rendered Sunday evening to a large audience in the Methodist Episcopal church, in which all the participants did their parts well. The music was especially complimented.

The locusts, which have been very numerous and noisy in this vicinity for the past two weeks, for some season remained silent all day Sunday. They seemed to have greater regard for Sabbath observance than some of our most intelligent citizens.

At the first onset he came to the merchant recommends Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it cured him. No one should leave home on a journey without a bottle of this preparation. For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

The voters here are not showing much concern in the proposition to be voted on June 30, to build and establish a high school at Lost Creek. The discussion of the matter has not even been taken up by the "store box" socialist orators.
