THURSDAY, JUNE 25, 1914.

An Evening Echo.

There is a time in every man's education when he arrives at the conviction that envy is ignorance; that imitation is suicide; that he must take himself for better or worse, as his portion; that though the wide universe is full of good, no kernel of nourishing corn can come to him but through his toil bestowed on that plot of ground which is given him to till.

Where, Oh, Where?

Perturbedly asks the Huntington Advertiser: "By the way, what has become of the solicitude of the stand pat newspapers of this state over the hard lot of the poor wool grower in this state? We were told that the removal of the duty would reduce the price of the wool to practically nothing, that the wool grower would be ruined. The duty was removed, yet the price of raw wool is higher than for many years."

Interest is Growing.

A man was passing along the street when a small dog jumped in his path and bit him upon the ankle. Looking around until he could select the boy who seemed to be most amused at the incident, the man grabbed the urchin by the shoulder and demanded: "Say, do you know your dog bit me on the ankle?" "Well, mister," replied the grinning lad, "Jupiter is only a pup. He couldn't reach any better. When he grows bigger he'll be able to bite you higher up."

Eugenics.

A Philadelphia newspaper says that the amateur eugenists who are rejoicing at the decision of the courts that the Wisconsin eugenics marriage law is constitutional, should remind themselves that there is a great difference between a statute which is in the power of the legislature to enact and a law which will accomplish the purpose sought by its promoters.

Enforcing Yost Law.

West Virginia is soon to have the chance of seeing whether prohibition prohibits as to the liquor business. Many opposed to prohibition have contended that regulation of the liquor trade is more successful than attempted prohibition of it. Others hold an opposite view.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

What it Means. The decision in favor of the long and short haul clause means that the railroads will be short part of their haul.—Wheeling News.

Less-Majestic. A business man, writing to the New York Evening Post says: "Personally I would like to make a deal with Mexico and swap Wilson for Huerta." Doesn't this come perilously near less majestic.—Grafton Sentinel.

Too Much So. Some of the papers in this state are so Democratic, they seem to want West Virginia to lose out in the Virginia suit, because a Republican governor is managing the defense. This is just a little too much so in politics.—Parkersburg State Journal.

be seen how successful the enforcement will be. There is every reason to believe that it will be expensive but community co-operation will materially aid. Public sentiment for enforcement will help very much.

Some Advice Unheeded.

War in camp is scented by the Exponent on the eve of the Democratic county convention and the little bird has evidently chirped the fact that the feeling is becoming bitter among candidates and their "constituents."

Pin Head Prosperity.

The efforts of the Democratic press bureau to make Pennsylvania prosperous are truly heroic, says the Conellsville, Pa. Courier, but not always truthful. The Courier gives an example, as follows:

A recent statement announced that ovens were being fired up in the Conellsville coke region, when about 3,000 ovens had just been put out. Now comes the glad tidings that a woolen mill has started up in Stroudsburg, Palmer's home town, and that a butter factory at West Chester is working over time.

Practical Ways to Save.

"Wealth can be accumulated only by the earnings of industry and the savings of frugality."—John Tyler. Here are some ways that people have saved successfully. Perhaps you can adopt one of them yourself.

Clean Up Week

WESLEYAN

College Commencement Held with Brilliant Exercises in City of Buckhannon.

BUCKHANNON, June 25.—The twenty-fourth annual commencement of West Virginia Wesleyan College was held here yesterday. Two exercises marking the day. In the morning the college commencement was held with a large crowd in attendance and with Dr. W. O. Thompson, of Ohio State University, delivering the address. Thirteen men and women received degrees and honors of magna cum laude were given to Morgan M. Brooks, Mabel Elizabeth Gay, Walter Enoch Hall, Gladys Carter Mayfield and Opal M. Snodgrass, while the honor of cum laude was given to Byrd Lee Pickens. Dr. Thomas's address was one of the most scholarly ever delivered in Buckhannon at a Wesleyan commencement and made a profound impression. The honorary degree of

After July 1.

The courtesy of Saturday's Democratic convention to Mr. Bowen did not extend to permit him to speak without a persistent and rude attempt to drown him out by all kinds of uncouth noises. Perhaps after July 1 another kind of spirit will prevail in the Democratic conventions in this state.—Charleston Mail.

Question of the Hour.

A matter which ought to come up for intelligent discussion before the electorate in the present campaign is the development of the water power in West Virginia's rivers. The next legislative mandate as to the formulation of a policy in dealing with private corporations desirous of investing money in the development of hydroelectric power plants. The potential energy of our rivers is now going to waste, and it is in line with a wise policy of conservation to remedy that condition as soon as possible.—Morgantown Post-Chronicle.

The New Era.

Monday began the final week of the licensed saloon in Huntington. Although licenses will hold during Monday and Tuesday of the coming week, the majority of the Huntington dealers will close their doors on Saturday night, never again to reopen them to the trade.

This impending event will usher in a new era. It will work material economic changes. West Virginia, after more than fifty years of license, will enter the ranks of the prohibition states with a law far more drastic than has ever been written into the statute books of any other American commonwealth. And whatever may have been the history of prohibition or attempted prohibition in other states, there is foremost a profound conviction that it will be made effective in West Virginia, and that it will endure for a long period of years.—Huntington Herald-Dispatch.

Cured of Indigestion.

Mrs. Sadié P. Clawson, Indiana, Pa., was bothered with indigestion. "My stomach pained me night and day," she writes. "I would feel bloated and have headache and belching after eating. I also suffered from constipation. My daughter had used Chamberlain's Tablets and they did her so much good that she gave me a few doses of them and insisted on my trying them. They helped me as nothing else has done." For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

LL D. was conferred on Frank Butler Trotter, now dean of the College of Liberal Arts at West Virginia University at Morgantown, but for seventeen years a teacher in Wesleyan and for the greater part of that period the vice president of the college. Prof. Trotter is most favorably known at Wesleyan and in Buckhannon. The announcement that an honorary degree had been conferred on one who had labored so long and so earnestly for the success of Wesleyan brought forth prolonged applause from the large crowd present.

In the afternoon the academic departments commencement was held and sixty-two were given diplomas in their respective courses. Dr. G. D. Smith, an alumnus of Wesleyan and now pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church at Clarksburg, delivered the address, which proved to be one of the features of the whole commencement week. Last night the Alumni banquet was held at the Valley hotel and in addition to having a spirited evening plans were launched looking toward the largest and best gathering of alumni at Wesleyan's twenty-fifth anniversary next year that has ever assembled.

The board of trustees of the college, which had been in continuous session since Monday, finally adjourned at a late hour last night. Dr. Doney was retained as president of the college, and will return in the summer to enter again on his duties. Acting President Haught will resume his old duties of dean of the College of Liberal Arts. Morgan M. Brooks, one of Wesleyan's honor graduates this year, and for a number of years superintendent of the Grafton schools, and one of the best
