COLORED CHILD
Dies of Burns Received Two Months Ago.

John Henry Wittington, colored, aged two years, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wittington, of Morris avenue, Broad Oaks, died at 11 o'clock Monday night after suffering two months of burns. The child was left alone in the house by its mother two months ago and while playing near an open fire its clothing caught and it was fatally burned before the fire was extinguished. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made, as yet.

A CONFESSION
Hopes Her Statement, Made Public, will Help Other Women.

Hines, Ala.—"I must confess," says Mrs. Eula Mae Reid, of this place, "that Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done me a great deal of good.

Before I commenced using Cardui, I would spit up everything I ate. I had a tired, sleepy feeling all the time, and was irregular. I could hardly drag around, and would have severe headaches continuously.

Since taking Cardui, I have entirely quit spitting up what I eat. Everything seems to digest all right, and I have gained 10 pounds in weight."

If you are a victim of any of the numerous ills so common to your sex, it is wrong to suffer.

For half a century, Cardui has been relieving just such ills, as is proven by the thousands of letters, similar to the above, which pour into our office, year by year. Cardui is successful because it is composed of ingredients which act specifically on the womanly constitution, and helps build the weakened organs back to health and strength.

Cardui has helped others, and will help you, too. Get a bottle today. You won't regret it. Your druggist sells it.

HAULING DOWN
AMERICAN FLAG

Abandonment by the Congress of the United States of Our Pacific Ocean.

(By Winthrop L. Marvin.)

The American Congress has hauled down the American flag and given Japan a monopoly of the great mail, passenger and freight carrying trade across the Pacific ocean. To the uninformed this may seem an incredible statement, but it is absolutely true. A little clause in the new seamen's law of March 4, last, which President Wilson promptly signed, requiring that seventy-five per cent of the crew of a steamship in all departments shall understand the language of the officers has had this far-reaching and disastrous consequence. On its face this requirement, is innocuous enough and even praiseworthy. "Of course," the average man will promptly say, "the crew of a ship ought to understand the language of the officers." But general conditions are such that the inevitable result of this proviso is to drive the stars and stripes of the trans-pacific route, and in the great trade wholly or so far as American seaports are concerned, to the Asiatic-manned steamship lines, so heavily subsidized by the Japanese government.

Ships Manned by Chinese.

For many years steamships of all nationalities plying between the western coast and Japan and China have been chiefly manned by industrious and docile Chinese sailors, firemen and stewards, though the Japanese lines their own people have been substituted. These Asiatics have been engaged frankly because they were cheap and they will work for wages of about $8 a month where white men would demand from $30 to $50. But the Chinese—and the same thing is true of the Japanese—are not only cheap, but reasonably efficient and thoroughly amenable to discipline. Orders of European or American officers are communicated to the crews through their own leading men who know both languages.

What the American congress has now demanded is that the Chinese should go, not only from American ships, but from British or other European ships entering our ports in transoceanic commerce. As a result and certain sequel, the Pacific Mail management has announced that after November 2, next, two days before the new seamen's law goes into effect its entire trans-Pacific service will be suspended.

No other course is humanly possible. The Pacific Mail, as an American steamship company, is not subsidized by its government. It competes with Kisen Kaisha, one of its Japanese competitors, paralleling its route from San Francisco to the Orient, receives a subsidy of $1,340,000 a year. The Osaka Shosen Kaisha, another Japanese concern, receives a subsidy of $605,000, and the Nippon Yusen Kaisha—both running out of Puget sound—receives $238,000. The British trans-Pacific line, called the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, is subsidized by the British-Canadian governments to the amount of $215,000 a year.

Cheap Labor Employed.

All of these foreign competing companies employ cheap Oriental labor. The Pacific Mail has done the same, and through an exceptionally vigorous and able administration has managed to maintain its service against the subsidized Japanese and British fleets, but for many years the American company has paid no dividend.

Now, however, in addition to the hopeless handicap of these foreign subsidies the American Congress loads upon the American trans-Pacific line the obligation to discharge its Chinese stewards, sailors and firemen, and employ white men at from four to six times higher wages. It is to say, the Pacific Mail Company, without a subsidy, is required by the mandate of the American Congress to compete with foreign concerns generously subsidized and allowed, moreover, to retain Asiatic crews.

Not even an extraordinarily capable American management can meet these overwhelming conditions, and the American ships are, therefore, to be withdrawn. The British Pacific Company, that sails out of the Canadian port of Vancouver, is not subject to our seamen's law. The Japanese steamers come to American ports, but their Japanese crews understand the language of their Japanese officers. British and Japanese ships, unhindered, will continue to run, and after November 2, next an American Pacific port to the Orient will have to sail under Japanese colors—because the lawmakers of the United States have forced the stars and stripes from the Pacific ocean.

When Congress took this extraordinary step, it was with full knowledge of the consequences. The Pacific Mail managers had told Senators and representatives precisely what would follow. There was an opportunity to put American ships on an equality with foreign ships by granting mail pay or naval reserve pay, equivalent to foreign subsidies. But Congress would not and did not do this. With eyes wide open, President Wilson and his followers blotted their country's flag off the sea—and for this, as for some other things, there is going to be a stern and speedy accounting.

WARNING

Is Sounded by Dr. James A. Campbell against Use of Wood Alcohol.

CHICAGO, June 29.—Dr. James A. Campbell, of St. Louis, in a paper read today before the Ophthalmic Society, in joint session with the American Institute of Homeopathy, warned against the use of wood alcohol. Several cases of blindness were reported due to absorption through the hands. In part Dr. Campbell said:

"Wood alcohol blindness may occur by inhaling the fumes; absorption through the hands, and one case was caused by its being splashed into the eyes. The symptoms are headache, dizziness, weakness, nausea, prostration, blindness and death. Blindness is a late symptom.

"Wood alcohol blindness is curable if treated early, but if left until
