Followed Friend's Advice

After trying Fruitola and Traxo, Mrs. L. C. Clark, 240 Main St., Dallas, Texas, wrote to the Finns Laboratories as follows:
"I have been a sufferer from gall-stones, and Fruitola and Traxo was recommended and I am glad to say I took advantage of your most wonderful medicine, with wonderful results."

Fruitola and Traxo are two remedies that are used in combination. Fruitola acts on the intestinal organs as a powerful lubricant, softening the congested wastes and breaking up the hardened particles so that they eliminate quickly, to the great relief of the patient. Traxo is a compound of splendid tonic properties, of special value in strengthening and restoring the system that has been weakened by constant suffering.

The Finns Laboratories have many letters on file testifying to the merit of Fruitola and Traxo; letters from people who have used the remedy and know from actual experience what it has done for them. For the convenience of the public, arrangements have been made to supply Fruitola and Traxo through local drug stores. In Clarksburg they can be obtained at

NEW YORK, July 27.—Since Old Doc Flint spilled a few beans about insanity and its various ramifications everybody is wondering who is looney now. In fact life's lunatics seem to be the sole topic of conversation. Organists, so experts declare, become insane more frequently than trombonists, bootblacks, hod carriers and writers. If this is true, and it probably is not, one wag wonders if the mental derangement is not caused by calculating the time between the conductor's bat and the emission of sound from the organ.

J. E. Waldron, of Puck, has a craving for two ice cream sodas or so during the hot weather and he is wondering what favorite form of insanity he has. A gentleman from New Jersey walked into a police station in New York the other morning and said he was beginning to feel a little milky in the fibert.

"What trend does your constitutional inferiority take?" said the desk officer, showing that he was up on the snappy and snippy stuff.
"Well," said the Jerseyite, "I get up every morning feeling that I will surely get a seat on the subway train when I arrive in New York."
He was locked up without further parley.

Raymond Hitchcock follows Billie Burke with a snap of his fingers for the legitimate stage. The long-haired comedian has signed up with a film company and declares that he doubts very much if he will ever return to the legitimate stage.

He declared that he liked studio work much better and that as long as there was big money in it—he should worry. No word has come yet from George M. Cohan, who has been frivolling away four or five hours a day writing a play for Hitchcock.

Nellie Revelle, most famous of the women press agents, has resigned as vaudeville editor of the Morning Telegraph, to return to publicity disseminating with the Orpheum circuit.

Miss Revelle was the right-hand man—a pardon—woman when Percy Williams owned the theaters now controlled by the Keith people. Anna Marble, who in private life is Mrs. Channing Pollock, was also considered one of Broadway's best press agents and was the originator of the sensational style of advertising which made the Hippodrome famous.

Mrs. Pollock decided one day that Channing was making too much money writing plays, so she resigned to help him spend it. Since that time she has received huge offers to return to press work.

Toto, innocent child of the jungle until the gay night life of Broadway led him astray, has been found, wiser but repentant and Lady Grace Mackenzie, African explorer and big game huntress, has forgiven him. Toto went for a ride in the park with Fred Feeless, until lately Lady Mackenzie's secretary.

A few hours later Feeless telephoned that Toto had been drinking rum along the great white way and smashing hats. Later Toto and Feeless became separated and Feeless was arrested for listing too far to the starboard.

SUDDEN BLAZE OF FAME FOR CARDIFF CITY

Greatest Coal-Exporting Port in the World Center of the Recent Coal Strike.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The greatest coal-exporting port in the world, where more business is carried on in a quiet way than in hundreds of cities better advertised and far more in the public eye, Cardiff attained a sudden blaze of fame by reason of its being the center of the strike declared by British coal miners, an action which might have had significant bearing upon the war. The story of this mushroom growth in the heart of England's richest coal fields is told in a bulletin just issued by the National Geographic Society, which reads:

"For years a great part of the coal that has driven the industrial machinery of Germany, Austria, Holland, France and Russia, has been shipped from the Welsh port of Cardiff. That city became the first port in the world for the shipment of coal, and so vast was the quantity of this export that, including the docks at Barry and Penarth as part of the port, it saw the greatest quantities of foreign shipping clear from its docks of any port in the United Kingdom. With the outbreak of the European war, with the loss of practically all of her coal fields by France, and with a growth of a need of coal by Russia and by France greater than ever before for the manufacture of the almost unlimited munitions that the war is consuming, Cardiff has become a place of first strategic importance, a heart-source of energy to the Entente powers.

Best American Tradition.
"The Welsh port conforms to the best American tradition, in that it has grown from an insignificant village to a center of world importance during two brief generations. In 1831, it had a population of 6,187 and its name was never mentioned outside of Wales. It now has a population of more than 165,000, a tremendous business, a highly developed harbor, equipped with the most modern machinery and port appliances, and among the finest group of public buildings in Great Britain. Its annual shipments of fuel totalled before the war about 8,500,000 tons.

"The growth of Cardiff began when Great Britain started its career of being the factory nation of the world. The port, situated upon the river, Taff, a mile above its outflow into the British channel, lies in the midst of a rich coal and iron country, whose vast deposits have formed an undiminished stream of lifeblood, not only to British industry but to the industries of many other countries. The whole region surrounding the town is honeycombed with coal and iron mines, principally coal mines. These minerals have been mined here for centuries, and were formerly brought down from the hills on the backs of mules and in rudely constructed wagons. With the rise of the star of industrialism, the construction of an up-to-date harbor and of efficient means for transportation, Cardiff came into its own; became big, prosperous, rich, renowned.

Export is Enormous.
"While the export of this port is enormous, it has but an inconsiderable import. Its docks receive iron ore, pit-wood, grain, flour and cattle. An industrial region of increasing importance has been growing up all around the city. Tin, copper and iron works are established here. There are also large wire factories, general foundries and engineering works. Many of the city's general manufactures are sent to London, which is 146 miles to the west by the Great Western railway.
"Cardiff owes much of its progress to the second marquess of Bute, who realized the importance of this place as an outlet for the great stores of mineral wealth of the surrounding country, and who opened the first great dock here in 1835. The present Lord Bute owns the docks and basins of the harbor proper, five in number and covering 110 acres, while numerous other docks extend down into the Bristol channel. Despite the city's great development in all directions, the exhaustion or shutting down of its coal mines would rob it of its importance. During the present time the value of its exports to Russian, French and Italian factories can hardly be over-estimated."

OLD LADY
Celebrates Seventy-Ninth Birthday by Riding Bicycle 12 Miles.

GOSHEN, Ind., July 27.—With the mercury at 90 degrees, Mrs. Cynthia E. Davis, of this city, celebrated her seventy-ninth birthday anniversary by riding a bicycle to New Paris and return, a distance of twelve miles. Again at home she said to two nephews and a pair of slender gazelles who may have some right to be called second or third cousins: "Come on, chickens, I'll scramble ye a few eggs!"

The New Paper

All manner of rumors are being aired concerning the CLARKSBURG AMERICAN, which is to appear within the next few days. Very little truth is voiced by the opposition relative to the new paper, however, and a few facts will do no harm:

1. The AMERICAN is to be strictly a people's paper.
2. It will be an eight or twelve-page daily as required.
3. It will be an out and out DEMOCRATIC paper, backing up and standing squarely for the principles of real DEMOCRACY.
4. It will be one of the greatest news mediums so far as local and county news is concerned, that has been published in West Virginia.
5. Cartoons of interest will appear regularly.
6. The AMERICAN will reach every home in Clarksburg and vicinity with the very first issue, and a subscription list of ten thousand is our aim for the first year.
7. It will be supported by men and women who believe in the RIGHTS which belong to all American citizens, rights which are the God-lent heritage of every one of Uncle Sam's children.
8. You are with us because you are willing to recognize our claims. You believe in fair play; you feel that it is unjust and unfair in every respect to crush with the powerful influence of MONEY, a newspaper which is willing to become the common defender of the PEOPLE.
