The first championship baseball game as played yesterday at the Palace theater on the new electric score board was a great hit. A big crowd was pleased and voted thanks to Hal Corbin for his success. The second game is on this afternoon and another packed house is on hand.

A large crowd stayed yesterday to see the vaudeville so the management of the Palace invites all to stay today, also every afternoon during the world's series as there is only about five minutes time between the ending of the game and the beginning of the show.

Louis A. Carr is the announcer of the games. The pictures and vaudeville will be on tonight as usual, three performances being given at 7, 8:15 and 9:30 o'clock.

George V. Hobart and William K. Sample have written a play called "Stop That Man." It is said to be on original lines.

"The Way Back," is the title of a four act Edison masterpiece showing on the Bijou screen today. Miss Marian Nesbitt is leading lady in this fine drama. In this drama of the "submerged" life Miss Nesbitt adds another highly interesting impersonation to those she has sketched in former successes. In rapid, vivid action and illuminating motives, the play lays bare the desperate intrigue that often surges beenath the surface of the gambling world and shows that no matter how bad one may seem, he is even in the midst of glorious revenge, capable of the higher life and worthier deeds. Two comedies are included in Saturday's program.

Monday, Mrs. Fiske will be seen in "Vanity Fair." She takes the part of Becky Sharpe in this big Kleine-Edison masterpiece taken from Thackeray's novel of the same name.

—o—

In the title character of "Peer Gynt," a Paramount Picture produced by the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company, Cyril Maude, the celebrated English actor and star of "Grumpy," appears with marked success. A unique feature of the photoplay is the fact that it presents as many as six leading women characters in support of the star.

—o—

The great star, Captain Jack Bonavita appears in the spectacular drama, "The Rajah's Sacrifice," a thrilling story from the pen of one of the world's greatest writers, at the Orpheum theater today. The story is laid in far off India and has a peculiar air of the tropical forests. The picturization is superlative and acting perfect, featuring a large cast of very clever players. A large number of David Hoorsley's animals act in the most thrilling scenes and add wonderfully to the interest of the great play.

Two other very fine photoplays are shown also, making the bill one that will be enjoyed by every one.

—o—

At William A. Brady's Forty-eighth street theater in New York next Tuesday evening George Broadhurst's new play, "What Money Can't Buy," will be produced with a company of which George Fawcett is the most conspicuous member. There are other well known players, including Anne Meredith, Edith Campbell Walker, Sydney Shields, Mrs. Russ Whytal, William B. Mack, Frank Kemble Cooper, William Devereux, Calvin Thomas, Robert Cain, etc.

CANCELLED

Carnegie Tech Refuses to Play Mountaineers on Account of Rodgers.

MORGANTOWN, Oct. 9—After having assured J. H. McCulloch, director of athletics at Carnegie Tech, that Erret Rodgers, the West Virginia fullback, would not take part in Saturday's game, not because of his ineligibility, but because of his bad physical condition, local officials Friday afternoon received a telegram canceling the game. West Virginia's officials would not admit in the correspondence and telegrams which exchanged hands that Rodgers would not be in the game because of his ineligibility.

In a sharp but courteous telegram sent Friday night, West Virginia demands the $300 named in the contract as the guarantee, and it is said will bring action to collect the same. There is nothing in the contract regarding eligibility.

Rodgers would not have been allowed to take part in the game owing to injuries which he received at the Washington and Jefferson game last Saturday, and he was forced to leave the field Friday afternoon in practice to see a doctor. Students and fans alike are standing with the local committee.

RULING

Is That Certain Kinds of Chartered Organizations Must Pay State License.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 9—West Virginia corporations, though chartered for purely agricultural purposes, must pay the annual license tax if it is conducting its corporate business for pecuniary profit to its stockholders, according to the opinion of Attorney General A. A. Lilly, announced on the request of Secretary of State Stuart F. Reed for an interpretation of the law.

The opinion of General Lilly places his construction on section 188, of chapter 33 of the code, serial section 1271, acts of 1913, which reads in part as follows:

"Nothing in this chapter shall be constructed as imposing a license tax on corporations chartered strictly for educational, literary, agricultural, scientific, religious or charitable purposes, or upon charters incorporating cemeteries or lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows or the like, or other charitable, fraternal or patriotic societies not incorporated for profit to the stockholder."

"I think a fraternal organization, organized for profit and incorporated, would be required to pay the tax, and there are many that do pay it," says the attorney general; "also a corporation organized strictly for scientific purposes with the object of making money for its stockholders would be required to pay the tax. Hence, the secretary of state, in this same section, is given the mandatory direction to require full proof as to the character of any such corporation claiming such exemption.

"The constitution gives the legislature power to tax by uniform and equal laws all privileges and franchises of persons and corporations. To give exemption to an agricultural corporation organized for profit, and require a coal mining corporation organized for profit to pay taxes on its privileges and franchises, would not be uniform and equal.

"In statutory construction it is the universal rule if a statute is susceptible to more than one construction, that one shall be given it which is in consonance with the principles announced in the constitution. Giving this exemption statute a strict construction against the exemption, and in further view of the requirement of the constitution, I am of the opinion that agricultural corporations organized for profit to its shareholders, are liable to pay the tax."

AUTO

Is Presented at Elks Carnival at Marion, O., to Mr. Speary, of That City.

Marion, O., Elks recently held a carnival, at which an automobile was given away. As a number of Clarksburgers were contestants for the car, the following from a Marion newspaper is of interest to them:

The award of the different prizes was made at the closing session of the Elks' bazaar Saturday night, with the largest attendance of the week present. All the booths did a rushing business and nearly all were sold out long before the closing hour of the bazaar.

The big award of the evening, the presentation of the new Overland touring car, was the last number of the carnival, and the drawing of the numbers was made by a committee representing the different banks of the city. Three hundred capsules were prepared, one of which contained the word "automobile." One number and one capsule were drawn at a time, until the word "automobile" was found, and that number drawn at the same time was given the prize. The prize number was 12,302, held by C. Fred Speary, of this city.
