TAKEN BY MISTAKE

Is Large Case of Knitted Wear in Front of Baker's Underselling Store.

It was announced Saturday morning that a large case of knitted wear in front of Baker's Underselling store was taken Wednesday morning by mistake by a teamster who usually hauls empty wooden cases the merchant gives gratis. The large wooden case containing wool-knit wear was standing on the sidewalk waiting to be opened, and as usual the teamster came along for empty cases and received permission to load them on his wagon. In doing so he also loaded the case in question. Of course the firm expects the return of the case as soon as the teamster sees that he has a case of new goods, as he is known to several merchants who can easily recognize him.

ECONOMIC FEEDING

(By W. D. Zinn, County Agent)
 Sometimes during seasons of bountiful crops like the present one farmers fail to consider the feeding questions as seriously as they do during scarce years. Feed has often been higher in the spring following a large crop than it is when the harvests were smaller. This is due to the fact that a great deal was wasted and the feed was not fed economically.

Since the size of the farmer's bank account depends more upon what he saves than what he makes it is always the part of wisdom to waste nothing. The present price of cotton seed meal is already causing farmers to doubt the propriety of buying this concentrate.

In a few cases, perhaps, it will be economy to prepare the ration using only the home grown products. Here is a farmer who has cow peas, soy bean, alfalfa or clover, hay in abundance and he has silage also. It is possible to feed this ration economically and not add any cotton seed meal and if the animals to be fed are matured ones the need is even less imperative.

But here is a farmer who has silage and common hay with no legume hay. He may feed his matured animals this ration and by giving them an excessive amount they will come through the winter in good shape, but it is the opinion of the writer that if he will spend three cents a day for each animal in the purchase of cotton seed meal it will have double that amount of silage and hay, if the animals to be fed are young he will not only lose money by feeding this ration, but he will endanger the health of the animals. This kind of a ration contains but little protein and if the animal is not fed enough of this element out of the feed it must eat so much of it that it will over-tax, perhaps, the digestive machine.

All stations agree that it is poor economy to feed silage alone. If no other roughage is fed then this feed should be supplemented with cotton seed meal, even if the price goes higher than it now is. While one or two of our stations have found that they put on cheapest gains when silage was the only roughage fed, yet I doubt the propriety of feeding it alone. The stock seem to crave a dry feed when eating silage and it always pays to cater to the wishes of the animal.

Questions like the following have come repeatedly to me: "I do not have silage enough to feed all the winter. Would you feed it first or keep it until later and let the stock go from silage to grass?"

The better way would be to feed a smaller amount of silage and feed them from the time they come from grass in the fall until they go to grass in the spring; but if silage cannot be fed all winter then I would much prefer that they go first on dry feed and then on silage, which should last until the stock is turned to grass.

There is no longer any doubt about our having turned on our pastures too early in the spring.

When the days get warm and long in the spring the stock tire of eating dry roughage and when they get from this to green grass the change is too abrupt and injury is often done. Silage is both succulent and more palatable than hay and cattle will eat it with a relish 365 days in a year. In the past farmers have been giving too little attention to the by-products of the farm.

Other business interests are now making fortunes out of what a few years ago was wasted. If we, as farmers, would prosper we must go and do likewise. West Virginia farmers lose enough every year to pay all their taxes by the careless methods of handling the farm manures. When cotton seed meal is fed and the manure properly saved it is worth $20 per ton for the meal feed. Suppose it does cost $40 per ton, by saving and applying the manure in the right way the cost of the feed is reduced to $20.

It will pay farmers to think seriously before they decide to feed no cotton seed meal on account of the high price.

BAPTISM

Is Discussed by Apostle Russell Who is to Expose Utah Mormonism Today.

(Communicated.)
 Apostle Russell presented the subject of baptism to a large and appreciative audience of ladies and gentlemen last evening at 7:30 o'clock in the court house in a manner that showed he knew what he was talking about.

The various texts in old and new testaments were presented that in any manner referred to sprinkling, pouring and immersion and by showing the original meaning of the words and the context it was quite evident that but the one word, immersion, can be translated to mean baptism.

Many of the ancient authors were quoted and read from which with the founders of the Lutheran, Episcopal, Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist and disciple churches from whom he also read made his immersion doctrine so plain that apparently every person saw it was the original mode. Then said Mr. Russell, "When I have proven that immersion was the mode that Christ himself practiced, I do not give a snap of my finger for that which man has introduced to the contrary."

It required about half an hour to answer the many questions asked. The subject for Sunday evening is "Utah Mormonism Exposed" and the hour of commencement is 8:30.

It is the absorbing topic wherever engineers gather, and experts, skeptics and enthusiasts are alike in making it the current feature of motor car progress. It is the logical development of the perfectly balanced "Six" into a lighter, more compact "Twelve" having a uniformity of torque and a smoothness of action hitherto unknown.
