The Word and the Deed

From the Chicago Tribune.

It is a rosy painting which Mr. Wilson exhibits to the business men of the country in such speeches as that made on Monday in Baltimore. The inhabitant of Mars, unacquainted with what has transpired in the last three years and a half and gaining his entire information from Mr. Wilson's utterances, would feel justified in saying that here at last was the true prophet of prosperity, the spokesman for fair play to the nation's business factors, employer and employee alike.

Few of Mrs. Wilson's speeches have contained finer words. Few public men have been able to excel Mr. Wilson in the mobilizing of fine words. Unhappily the impulse has ended with articulation. Mr. Wilson's hands have not coordinated with his vocal cords.

The Baltimore speech-maker urged co-operation between business men and their employees.

But the occupant of the White House blocked arbitration in its most spectacular presentation and increased the hostility between employer and employees in one of the greatest of industries.

The speech-maker extolled the federal reserve board.

But the president permitted a docile Congress to adjourn without altering the reserve act in any of the manners urged by the board's members as essential to continued prosperity.

The speech-maker insisted that America "must take its place in the world of finance."

But the president blocked the performance of the program arranged by Mr. Taft, whereby the American bankers would have financed China. This spring he had done to the open door policy and America's whole future in the far East. Yet even then he refused to give the bankers any assurance that they would receive treatment different from that he had accorded American investors in Mexico, and the opportunity to make America the dominant occidental power in the orient was again tossed aside by the American president.

The speech-maker praised the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

But the president acquiesced in the spoils politics practiced in that bureau by his appointee, Secretary Redfield.

The speech-maker "found, to his amazement, that some of the best of the reports seem never to have been read."

But the president refused for three years and a half to read any of the reports coming to this department and to the state department from the government's recognized agents in Mexico or the far East. He elected instead to read the reports brought back by personal and confidential agents. Much of American citizens' sufferings can be attributed to this fact, the discovery of which causes him a confessed "amazement."

The speech-maker approves the federal trade commission.

But the president, who could have forced Congress to do his bidding in good legislation, just as he did in evil legislation, could have compelled the passage of the Webb bill, for which the commission, in behalf of all commercial interests of the country, was chief sponsor, and which aimed at the development of foreign trade by scientific methods. He permitted Congress to adjourn without passing the bill. Months, crucial months, with our foreign trade in the make or break stage, are passing and nothing is done.

The speech-maker says we must expedite the development of a merchant marine.

But the president fought successfully against the scientific ideas of merchant marine development advanced by shipping men and ship-owners, who might be expected to know something about ships, and jammed through an unwilling but obedient Congress a measure which has been condemned by the people it is supposed to benefit.

The speech-maker expresses a "contempt for partisan action."

But the president has emphasized partisan and sectionalism as neither has been exercised since the days of reconstruction.

The speech-maker says the government has been made the "friend of business."

But the president forced on business a tariff measure which, in its first year of operation, caused imports to rise to an unprecedented height, and exports to fall far below the proud mark they had set under the protective tariff. It was a measure which closed factories, which threw uncounted thousands out of work, which shattered domestic trade still more completely than it shattered foreign trade. It hurled the United States into a business slump from which it did not rally until months after the European war had started, all foreign competition was removed, and, on the other hand, every foreign nation which could send ships to our wharves was buying from us to the limit of its credit and of our capacity. In framing the Underwood tariff commission sense was ignored.

"We have admitted that on the one side and on the other we were talking theories and managing policies without a sufficient knowledge of the facts."

A quotation from Mr. Hughes? No, indeed. It is confession from Mr. Wilson. He applies it to the tariff situation, and seeks to prove that in naming a tariff commission he has made a forward step toward obtaining "a sufficient knowledge of the facts." He has. But this is the same Democratic party which blocked the carrying out of this same policy when it was warmly urged by the previous Republican administration.

The speech-maker is the same president who scouted the facts about our trade, about Mexico, about the far East, about Europe, and "managed policies without a sufficient knowledge" of those facts, and only today has discovered the facts which every one else knew before he began his experiments.

It is extraordinary that a man whose blunders all but wrecked our domestic prosperity until a world war came to the rescue, and scuttled our foreign policies of a century's duration—it is astonishing that such an executive should now prove that he has admirable ideas on economic problems, and on the eve of the national election urge the carrying out of these ideas. It suggests that the blunders were not blunders of mere ignorance, but were blunders of willfulness.

OIL AND GAS DEVELOPMENT OF TRI-STATE

Latest Reports of Operations in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

In Union district, Tyler county, Eddy and Cunningham completed and shot No. 4 on the Selmon Wells farm and have a light pumper in the Big-Injun sand. In Union district, Ritchie county, the Hope Natural Gas Company drilled its test on the G. Y. Rexroad farm through the Squaw sand and it shows for a twenty-barrel producer. This location is 500 feet southeast of Frimire's test on the I. N. Cokley farm.

On Big creek, Big Sandy district, Kanawha county, the South Penn Oil Company has completed a second test on the J. M. Hoffman farm, located 700 feet north of No. 1 and it shows for a five-barrel pumper in the Weir sand. On Rush creek, Smithfield district, Boone county, the same company has started to drill No. 8 on the J. L. Ferrell farm.

Southeastern Ohio.

In the shallow sand territory in Monroe township, Muskingum county, O., the Lane Oil and Gas Company drilled No. 5 on the Wolfe-Trimbale farm through the Berea grit and it shows for a very light pumper. In Linton township, Coshocton county, the Pleasant Hill Oil and Gas Company has started to drill another test on the W. C. Wertz farm.

Stratton Brothers have completed a test on their own farm, located in Knox township, Jefferson county, 3,000 feet east of production on the Rufus Wilcox farm and it is a five-barrel pumper in the Berea grit.

Southern Pennsylvania.

Near Hookstown, Beaver county, the Crown Petroleum Company's No. 15 on the Swearingen heirs' farm showed for a duster when drilled through the sand, and is now producing a little oil and will be given a shot. In the Unity field, Plum township, Allegheny county, M. B. Cypher completed a test on the E. B. Davidson farm and it is good for five barrels a day. In the same district the Peoples Natural Gas Company has a gasser on the H. W. Hershey farm. The American Natural Gas Company got one of the same kind on the Smeltzer farm. In the Milltown field the South Penn Oil Company completed No. 4 on the Booth heirs' farm and it shows for a four-barrel pumper.

FOUND AT LAST AFTER 26 YEARS

Nerv-Worth Amply Filled the Bill for A. J. McCray, of Weston.

A very interesting story. Mr. McCray tells it well:

Nerv-Worth Co.—I have been afflicted with nervous troubles for 25 years. About 10 months ago I was overcome with heart trouble. Stomach and kidneys badly affected. My limbs were badly swollen, indicating dropsy. I have been treated in hospitals and taken treatment from a number of renowned physicians in West Virginia without any apparent relief. I had become greatly discouraged and was convinced that medicine could not relieve me.

After I had been confined to my room for about nine or ten months some of my friends prevailed upon me to try a bottle of Nerv-Worth and after that my condition is very much improved. I am now 54 years of age and I am convinced that I have at last found the remedy that I have been looking for for 26 years. I BELIEVE THAT NERV-WORTH WILL ENTIRELY CURE ME IN TIME.

I am writing this testimonial on my own accord, unsolicited, in order that the many thousands of sufferers throughout the country may be benefited by the experience which I have had. And I would certainly recommend Nerv-Worth to all my friends and all others who are suffering with any of the above diseases.

Sincerely yours,
A. J. McCRAY,
Weston, W. Va.

Your dollar back at Burke's Pharmacy, Clarksburg, if Nerv-Worth does not benefit you.—Advertisement.

MORE RHEUMATISM THAN EVER BEFORE

Clergymen, Lawyers, Brokers, Merchants and Merchants Stricken.

Our old friend Rheumatiz is having his inning this year, and a few words of caution from one who knows all about it may not be amiss.

Wear rubbers in damp weather; keep your feet dry; drink plenty of lemonade, and avoid strong alcoholic drinks.

If rheumatism gets you, or sciatica, and you have sharp twinges, gnawing pain or swollen joints or muscles, you can get rid of all agony in just a few days by taking one-half teaspoonful of Rheuma once a day.

All druggists know about Rheuma; it's harmless, yet powerful; cheap, yet sure, and a 50-cent bottle will last a long time. Ask Wells-Haymaker Co. or any druggist.—Advertisement.
