CHARGE OF EXTRAVAGANCE IS ANSWERED BY HATFIELD

Governor Pulls the Records on John Cornwell, Democratic Candidate.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 7.—The following letter has been addressed by Governor Hatfield to the Huntington Advertiser: "Charleston, W. Va., October 5, 1916. "Huntington, W. Va. "My dear Sir: "In connection with the cartoon published in your newspaper there appears a statement that $1,500,000 additional appropriation had been expended in my administration, this representing expenditures made in excess of the Glascock administration. "For the information of your readers permit me to give to you, with the request that the same be published, a detailed statement of the improvements at the various state institutions that have been made or are now in progress, representing the sum total in expenditures of $1,280,000. "New Science Hall. "Of this amount Marshall College, a Huntington institution, received $65,000 for the erection of a new science hall. "The Huntington state hospital was given a new building, the appropriation for the same being $20,000. "Eighty-five thousand dollars of the $1,280,000 spent upon the institutions has gone to Huntington. I desire to ask the Advertiser in all fairness, would it eliminate the new science hall at Marshall College? And would it eliminate the new building at the Huntington state hospital that is necessary to take care of the crowded condition prevailing at present? "Does it say that this money was wrongfully expended and that the improvements should not have been made? "Is that what I am to understand from the implied criticism as to the expenditure of more than one million dollars over the expenditures of the Glascock administration? "No Apology to Offer. "I have stood for the development of our institutions upon a plane befitting the dignity and honor of the state. I have no apologies to offer, but I do object to the misrepresentation that the money has been wrongfully used. "Economy in the strictest sense has been the watchword of this administration; but in the expenditures that have been made the state has realized dollar for dollar, and its institutions have been brought to that point where they are no longer merely houses of detention, but are institutions where humanitarianism and convenience are given consideration. "I submit the following statement showing the expenditures for new buildings erected at state institutions during my administration: Weston State Hospital, kitchen, dining hall and cold storage $23,000.00 Spencer State Hospital, Psychopathic building, (under construction) 24,000.00 Dairy barn 7,000.00 Huntington State Hospital, new building 20,000.00 West Virginia Penitentiary, remodeling building for hospital 6,000.00 Farm house 3,500.00 Welch Hospital No. 1, remodeling and addition 14,000.00 Nurses' home, under New ward addition, under construction 3,000.00 McKendree Hospital No. 3, new ward addition 3,000.00 Nurses' home, under construction 16,000.00

Table listing expenditures for various state institutions, including West Virginia Industrial School for Boys, Dairy barn, West Virginia Industrial School for Girls, State Tuberculosis Sanitarium, Colored Orphan's Home, West Virginia Children's Home, West Virginia University, Keyser Preparatory School, Marshall College, Fairmont Normal School, West Liberty Normal School, Glenville Normal School, Shepherd College, Concord Normal School, West Virginia Collegiate Institute, Office of state board of control, and various hospitals and dormitories.

CRETE'S REVOLT IS ONE OF MANY

As Up to the Time of Annexation There Were Constant Revolts on Island.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The present revolt in Crete has occurred almost on the fourth anniversary of the announcement of the island's annexation to Greece, made by the Greek premier on October 1, 1912. Up to that time the Cretans had been in an almost constant state of revolt against Turkish and Egyptian domination for the greater part of the nineteenth and the first decade of the twentieth century. Today's war geography bulletin of the National Geographic Society tells of the resources of this revolt-ridden region. "Crete and Corsica are practically tied for the distinction of fourth island of the Mediterranean, each having an area somewhat in excess of 3,500 square miles and being surpassed in size by Sicily, Sardinia and Cyprus. But while Corsica has sustained a comparatively inconspicuous role in world history, if one excepts the fact that it was the birthplace of Napoleon, Crete has played a stellar part in human events for more than 4,000 years. "Island is Rugged. "Oblong in shape, with a length of 160 miles and a width varying from six to thirty-five miles, the rugged island lies eastward from Europe, Asia and Africa. Its northern coast is greatly indented, and while the anchorage is too shallow for modern steamers in all save one of its ports, in ancient times many of its 109 flourishing cities of which Homer spoke were regularly visited by the light-draft vessels of the Phoenicians, the Greeks and the Egyptians. "Crete today sustains a population of about 350,000, more than nine-tenths of whom are Christians and the remaining tenth largely Mohammedan. Much of its land is bare and stony and the forests of cypress which once and its glory have almost disappeared. Its rivers are scarcely more than mountain torrents, which rush down from snow-clad heights towering more than 8,000 feet above the sea. "Many of the narrow valleys and a few plains are extremely fertile, however. Fruits of many varieties, especially the orange and lemon, grow luxuriantly, and the olive is one of the most valuable products of the island, the oil being used extensively in the manufacture of soap. The vines of Crete, which were noted in the middle ages, have deteriorated somewhat in modern times. Currants are profitably grown, but little grain is raised. The mineral resources of the island may eventually prove to be considerable, but at the present time gypsum, lime, slate and whetstone constitute the principal output, which is meager. "Always Liars. "St. Paul, in his Epistle to Titus, perpetuated the indictment that 'the Cretans are always liars,' so it is not astonishing to find in the legends of the island the claim that the supreme god of the Greek world, Zeus, was a native and that he was nursed by nymphs on the slopes of the famous Mt. Ida. He was even supposed to have been buried at Iukta, near the ancient center of Minoan civilization, Knossos, or Sinosus, an account of whose astonishing culture thousands of years ago has been given in a recent bulletin of the National Geographic Society. "The Cretans were the allies of Mithradates the Great in Parthian's negotiations with Rome, and a few years later the islanders espoused the cause of Cilician pirates, as a result of which the Roman general, Metellus, brought them under the yoke of the Eternal City in 66 B. C. "Captured by Pirates. "When the Roman empire was divided Crete was apportioned to the eastern rulers and it remained under the Byzantine emperors until 825, when it was captured by piratical Saracens from Andalusia, who held sway over the island for 140 years. Then it was redeemed by the Byzantines. During the fourth Crusade the island was given to Boniface de Montferrat. He immediately sold it to the Venetians (1204), who ruled it for more than 400 years. "One of the most prolonged blockades in world history was that conducted by the Turks from 1645 to 1669, when the last port of the island surrendered to Ottoman arms, against whose sway the Cretans were almost constantly in revolt until the final annexation to Greece. The islanders fought shoulder to shoulder with the Greeks in the recent Balkan imbroglios. "Community Happenings of Interest Are Reported by Telegram Correspondent. BRISTOL, Oct. 7.—One of the biggest and best birthday surprise parties ever to take place in this vicinity was made by Miss Winona Lenora Haney and friends, of Salem Fork creek, Thursday evening, October 5, in honor of the fifty-seventh birthday of her mother, Mrs. Emma C. Haney. The affair was a most successful one from every standpoint. And to say that the surprise was a complete one on the part of Mrs. Haney is saying no more than the truth. She had not the least hint of anything until the crowd descended upon her with profuse congratulations, best wishes and many fine and costly presents. Mere words fail utterly graphically to portray her deep appreciation. "Music for the joyful occasion was furnished by Walter Foreman Lynch, violin; Harvey W. Fletcher, first guitar; Lewis Bailey, second guitar; Mrs. Ottilie Marsh, banjo; and Mrs. Elsie Shahan, organ. And at an appropriate hour exceedingly dainty and rapidly delicious refreshments, consisting of cake, coffee and fruit, were served by the hostess. "Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shahan; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Davis and sons, Sewell and Leonard; Mrs. Clara Nay and children; Mrs. Ota Meredith and children; Mrs. Ottilie Marsh and children; Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Davis and family; Mrs. Nichols and children; Mrs. James R. Riddle, Misses Eva and Blanche Meredith, Pearl and Bertha Nay, Emma and Iola Haney, Nancy Smith and Maud and Ruby Marsh, and Messrs. Lewis Bailey, Harvey W. Fletcher, Walter Foreman Lynch, Dwight Meredith, Blair Davis, William T. Riley and Ottilie Strother. "At a late hour the merry crowd departed for their homes after cordially wishing Mrs. Haney many more happy returns of the day and the very earnest of success in all her undertakings. "Church House Painted. The Pleasant Grove Methodist Protestant church building on Cherry Camp run has been recently painted by Gordon Brand, of Dogs' run. The improvement was badly needed. "Gets a Good Oil Well. The Dennison, Ward and Randolph Off and Gas Company has completed its initial test well on the George T. Nurum farm, on upper Grass run, Tenmile district, and has a twenty barrel producer in the Gordon sand. The production of the well may be increased after given a shot of gly-

The National View

Mr. Wilson's Position.—Col. Roosevelt, at the Union League reception to Governor Hughes, which was widely advertised because the colonel and Judge Taft met there and shook hands, described Mr. Wilson's position. Referring to Mr. Wilson's declaration of September 20, that the election of Mr. Hughes would mean war, Mr. Roosevelt said: "Mr. Wilson's speech of last Saturday was an invitation to foreign powers to do whatever they wished because if he were in power they need not be afraid. Take his sentence about keeping us out of war and those about 'prompt challenge and resistance.' Taken together, one group of sentences is the weasel and the other the egg. It is open to Mr. Wilson which is the weasel and which the egg. But one of them sucks all the meaning out of the other. If Mr. Wilson's speech expressed his real convictions, then by 'prompt challenge and resistance' he means tapping his adversary on the wrist. As Mr. Hughes has pointed out this evening, Mr. Wilson is praised for the most part by people whose shoulders slope like a champagne bottle, by people with timid hearts and quivering voices, who say that he has kept us out of war. Has he kept us out of war? He has put us into three little wars that I can name."

Taft's Views.—Ex-President Taft paid tribute to the Wilson Mexican policy in these words: "Have we been kept out of war? In the treatment that we have accorded Mexico one that insures peace? Had we allowed Mexico to work out her own salvation, as President Wilson told us we should in his Indianapolis speech, we should not be responsible, as we are now, for the conditions and the anarchy which prevail in Mexico. But we did not do that, and when the European war is over—if not before—the policy we have pursued in Mexico is going to follow us, and we will have to answer for our intermeddling, our determination to punish one person, and to dictate to the Mexican people whom they might have to rule over them and whom they might not. But even in so far as Mexico is concerned, I do not consider that Mr. Wilson has kept us out of war."

Ferred for Her Purse.—A member of the National College League vouches for the truth of this story. There is a certain sweet-faced old lady whose annual vacation is a trip to Washington, and the chief event thereof a midday "dinner" at the Shoreham. On Tuesdays, the members of the cabinet generally lunch together at the Shoreham because of its proximity to the White House. "Walter," said the dear old lady to the head waiter, "this is an especial occasion for me and I want a very good table."

"Certainly, madam," replied that functionary, and ushered her to a table next to that at which the cabinet was lunching. Presently the old lady summoned him. "Walter," she said timidly, "I don't like this table you have given me at all."

"Why, madam?" "I don't like the looks of those men at that big table."

Big Snow October 1. It may probably interest some of the readers of the "leading newspapers of central West Virginia" to note that just forty years ago last Sunday, October 1, (October 1 in the year 1876 being on Sunday also) an exceedingly heavy snow fell during the afternoon and lay on the ground until the following day. And also on October 9, 1906, quite a bit of snow fell here. Many people had not yet gathered their apples and the sight of the trees loaded with fine big red apples and bedecked with snow led some folks to think that "the end of time was right at hand."
