OLD DOMESTIC TANGLE HOLDS UP A WEDDING

For Several Weeks but Middlebourne Man Finally Weds Second Sweetheart.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
 MIDDLEBOURNE, Sept. 2.—Clark McCullough and Miss Nancy Marshall were married today after a strange investigation through a dozen counties of the state with two lawyers in order to ascertain whether or not he was eligible to wed.

McCullough and wife No. 1 had some differences twenty-five years ago, and they separated, and from that time until a few days ago McCullough never heard from his wife and did not know whether she had died or not. Even now she is unaware of what became of him.

Believing his wife was dead, but anxious to make sure before he acquired another one, McCullough and Miss Marshall went to Boone county, where they found a suit for divorce had been instituted but not granted. McCullough and Miss Marshall then went into the county where the former lived twenty-five years ago, and there concealed in a bush at the roadside they saw his wife pass in the flesh. Inquiries in the neighborhood revealed that she had married again and has children.

Further investigation showed that a divorce had been granted in Calhoun county. Then McCullough decided he was free to wed, and he lost little time in marrying Miss Marshall. The investigations about the various counties were carried on in secret and unknown to his first wife.
