THE BEAR AND HER CUB.

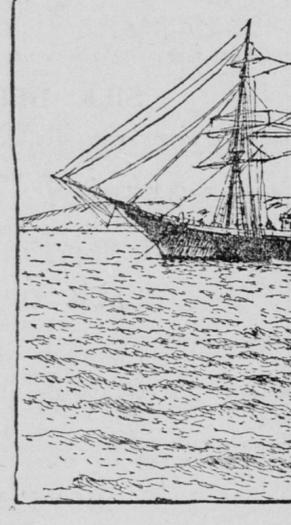

A Strong and Swift Launch That is a Chip of the Old Block.

SHE CAN TOW HER MOTHER

The Little Boat so Fittingly Named Is the Fastest of Her Class.

None are so awake to an eternal fitness of things as the sailor. Not a name, not a term on board of a vessel but was bestowed in accordance with the leading characteristic of the object so entitled. The system simplifies the acquiring of a knowledge of the hundreds of minute and frequently complex objects found on shipboard.

This principle is carried forward into the beauty of a perfect consistency on the revenue cutter Bear, showing how congruous, how alive her crew are to a finely drawn agreement between the relationship of things. The staunch cutter herself was so called because of her then future work

THE BEAR AND HER CUB. [Sketches for the "Call" by Coulter.]

In northern American waters, where that is undisturbed king of beasts, but the culmination of name-suitability came when they called her little steam launch the Cub.

The bear is a strong vessel, her hull sheathed with heavy planking for battle with the ice of the north and her fine engines drive her many good knots every hour over the water. The Cub is a chip of the old block and a fit offspring from such a parent. Its 17-horse power engines can tow the youngster through the water twelve or fifteen knots. In an emergency she will pull its mother, dragging the maternal quite speedily against an ordinary tide, and could be utilized for this filial duty in case of an accident to the cutter. The Cub is the fastest and best equipped Government launch on this station and has beaten everything that has been pitted against her. She is admirably equipped for the work of the steamer on the coast of Alaska and in the Bering Sea, patrolling the waters and seal-breeding islands of the north.

A LENTEN REPAST.

How to Fare Well on the Product of Creek and Sea in Holy Week.

"To-morrow will be Friday, so we'll fish the stream to-day," sang the monk, in the days of old, when the brethren depended upon the charity of the foresters for a fat buck and their own skill with the angle for the tenants of lake and stream. In this season of mortification and prayer the city markets make easy the path for the most devoted abstainer from flesh meats. He may obey the ordinance of his church and yet not fare badly. He may spread his table with choice viands and not offend. For the nets of the fishermen are in the bay from dawn till dark to keep pace with the increased consumption of fish.

There is so much to choose from, so many good things with which to furnish forth the Lenten table, that even the most experienced caterer must needs pause before making his selection.

He is concerned about his soup. If he wants anything particularly rich there are big fat turtles sprawling on the floor. Or he may switch off to their cousin, the terrapin, claiming the direct diamond-back pedigree, but which are in reality "sliders." The reptile is not interdicted. He is more fish than flesh, and he is delicious when prepared with even the most ordinary appetite. Only their complete disappearance from the market is to be regretted. On the table of artichoke and asparagus serving as a foil for the light emerald of the pea. He is fortunate if he can secure a few alligator pears to blend with this toothsome compound.

The softshell crab and the shrimp lie fraternally together on the fishmonger's stall. Both are high class, both have their admirers, and the wise epicure greets them with impartial affection. On the table at the same time it invariably happens that the diner will partake of a little of both. A curry of shrimp may win the first choice, as it comes steaming on the table, but it at once enlists the sense of smell, and the crisp brown crab makes a close second. Then there are oysters and mussels for another variety in this line, but the oyster at this season is apt to be crossed in love, and is not as plump as in the winter months.

For his piece de resistance, for the great dish which is to crown the dinner, the field is most extensive. There are shad, plump fellows, to be examined, and the shad roe baked with the fish is a precious morsel. There are halibut, white as snow, flaky

GRAND JURORS ON WATER.

The Spring Valley Company's Officials May Be Indicted.

JUDGES ACT AS WITNESSES.

The Alarming Increase in Divorces Is to Be Closely Investigated.

The Grand Jury held a brief session yesterday, which was brief principally on account of its being smoked out. Though it is getting very warm toward the end of the session, several of the members had a nervous chill, as they expected countercharges would be presented from the two factions in the Board of Supervisors. Both sides are maintaining positions of masterly inactivity, and no communications came from them.

THE ROSE CARNIVAL.

San Franciscans Can See the Festival for a Dollar.

The San Francisco and North Pacific Railway has acted handsomely with Santa Supervisors, in a state of masterly inactivity, and refused to draw. The smoke, therefore, filled the Grand Jury room and the members were smoked out. They sought refuge in District Attorney Barnes' private office, and the sixteen who were present crowded into the small room.

Two new matters were principally discussed by the grand jurors. The members of the present Grand Jury seem to be no respecters of persons, for though they have not yet commenced the investigation which may end in the indictment of some or all of the solid eight in the Board of Supervisors, they brought before them two Superior Judges of this city with the idea of getting some information in regard to the way the great increase of divorces in the Superior Courts has been brought about. Judge Wallace and Judge Hunt were before the jury, but nothing of importance was elicited from them. The investigation will be continued.

A possible sensation can be foreseen in the summoning of Hermann F. A. Schussler, chief engineer of the Spring Valley Water Works, which was brought before the jury yesterday to answer interrogatories in regard to the charges made by Mayor Sutro that the Spring Valley Water Company is furnishing impure water to the citizens of San Francisco. Schussler was closely questioned by Foreman Gagan and other members of the Grand Jury in regard to the condition of the water supply of his company. He maintained that all water furnished the city was as pure as it could be. He denied that the water of Lake Merced and other places, when put in the mains, was ever impure.

The members of the Grand Jury clearly indicated that they would make a thorough investigation of Mayor Sutro's charges. The feeling of the jurors seems to be that the Spring Valley Water Company is not serving its customers with pure water. It also appeared that they will secure the services of some able man who cannot be influenced by friends or by money to give a correct report on the condition of the various waters furnished by the Spring Valley Water Works.

THE WATER RATES.

Some Questions Referred to the City and County Attorney for His Opinion.

The Water Committee of the Board of Supervisors held another of its sittings for the discussion of the water rates and the relation of the laws thereto last evening, but got no further than a discussion. The water company was represented by Messrs. Kellogg and Booker and the full committee was present.

Mr. Taylor held to his plan of raising the rates on the hydrants of the city to the proportionate relief of the ratepayer and to the fixing of the uniform rate to all consumers as required by the text of the law. Mr. Kellogg expressed the belief that this law was unconstitutional, but the members of the committee would not go into that question, believing that they must follow the law as they find it.

Mr. Kellogg expressed the belief that this law was unconstitutional, but the members of the committee would not go into that question, believing that they must follow the law as they find it.

Two resolutions were passed asking the advice of the City and County Attorney, first as to the right of the committee to levy a tax to meet the water bill, such as would follow the raising of the hydrant rate from $2.50, as now, to $10, and, again, as to their right to fix a uniform rate to the ratepayer, to take the place of the sliding scale which runs from 30 to 13 cents in favor of the large consumers.

It is expected the opinions will be at hand by next meeting night, and that then the committee will determine upon a rate.

CHASED AND CAPTURED.

Henry Ward, who recently came here from San Jose, rented a room in the lodging-house of Mrs. Sipple, 1549 1/2 Mission street, yesterday afternoon, but was careful not to pay in advance. Shortly afterward he was discovered taking a survey of the different rooms, and Mrs. Sipple saw him leave the house with a lady's cloak under his arm. She raised a hue and cry and Ward started off at a rapid pace. Several people joined in the chase after him and he was captured on Folsom street and handed over to Special Officer Delaney. He was booked at the Seventeenth-street station on the charge of burglary.

ROSENFELD ELECTED.

The Park Commissioners met and Re-organized their Board.

The Golden Gate Park Commissioners met yesterday and elected John Rosenfield a member of the board. Commissioner Joseph Austin was elected president of the board in the place of W. W. Stow.

The committee's duty will be to obtain contributions to the museum and in every way possible improve it.

VETERAN POLICE SKETCHES.

Captain William Y. Douglass was born on June 30, 1826, in New York City. He chose a seafaring life, and on August 1, 1849, arrived at this port as second mate of the ship Pacific. Becoming seized with the gold fever, as was usually the case in those days, he went to Mormon Island, on the American River, and took a hand at placer mining. He fell sick and returned to the city. He took command of a vessel on a voyage to the Sandwich Islands and back. He was intrusted with the sale of the vessel, and that ended his seafaring life. On December 18, 1856, he was appointed to the police force. In less than two years afterward, on August 16, 1858, he was promoted to the position of captain, which he has held continuously ever since.

THEATER AND CONCERT.

Plays That Are Only Running This Week—Some Easter Novelties.

One of Joseph Hayden's Symphonies Rendered by Local Amateurs.

"The Lightning's Flash," with its melodramatic situations, that keep the audience on tenterhooks of surprise as to what dreadful thing will happen next, continues to hold the boards successfully at Morosco's. William Burress, whose sprightly acting enlivens the melodramatic woe of the piece, has made quite a hit with his topical song, which is produced for the first time in San Francisco.

In one respect "The Lightning's Flash" resembles the thrilling serials which appear working up the reader to the agony pitec and abruptly with "To be continued in our next." "The Lightning's Flash" is continually showing the performers in agonizing situations, from which there seems no possible escape but by death, and just when the audience is waiting breathlessly to see them throw up the sponge, down goes the curtain, and the scene changes to situations if possible more harrowing than the last.

Large houses continue to be the rule at the California, where the great American drama in John J. McCall's successful farce, "A Country Sport."

On Monday evening, April 15, J. K. Emmett will appear at Stockwell's Theater under the management of Friedlander, Gottlieb & Co. for the first time in San Francisco in his delightful comedy, entitled "Fritz in a Madhouse," which has proven itself an excellent vehicle to display Mr. Emmett's talents.

At the Baldwin on Monday evening next the first performance in this city will be given of the new operatic extravaganza "The Bathing Girl." It is to be presented by the Fencing Master Opera Company. Miss Dorothy Morton appears as the prima donna.

"The Bohemian Girl" is still doing well at the Tivoli. It will be succeeded on Monday by the burlesque of "Robinson Crusoe."

At the Orpheum Stuart and Binns and Binns have all caught on well with the public, and the old performers in new sketches are doing well.

FRITZ SCHEEL CONDUCTED.

A Successful Concert Given by the Philharmonic Society.

About two months ago the Philharmonic Society gave a concert under a conductor whom it is not necessary to name. Last night they gave another concert in Odd Fellows' Hall, under Scheel's baton, and when the two performances are compared it is impossible to help confessing that Scheel is endowed with some of Dr. Hans Richter's talent for gathering to-directors. Out of a total number of 120,000 shares 85,683 were voted.

Shareholders of the Northern Railway held their annual session and elected as directors for the ensuing year H. E. Huntington, W. H. Crocker, Charles F. Crocker, N. T. Smith and C. G. Lathrop. As many as 127,409 shares out of a total stock of 128,000 were voted.

C. P. Huntington, H. E. Huntington, C. F. Crocker, F. H. Hubbard, N. T. Smith, C. G. Lathrop and A. N. Towne were elected directors of the South Pacific Coast Railway. The total stock consists of 60,000 shares, and of these 53,900 were represented at the meeting.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company of California held its annual meeting and re-elected its board of directors, who thereupon organized as follows:

Charles F. Crocker, president; H. E. Huntington, vice-president; J. E. Gates, second vice-president; N. D. Smith, treasurer; J. L. Willcutt, secretary; Charles G. Lathrop and A. N. Towne.

The Geary-street, Park and Ocean Cable Railway Company re-elected its board of directors as follows: Charles F. Crocker, president; Adam Grant, vice-president; N. D. Smith, treasurer; J. L. Willcutt, secretary; R. F. Morrow, H. E. Huntington and F. S. Dooty.

The different interests in the Southern Pacific Company were not interfered with in their representation on the respective boards of directors. Everything in the management continues as before.

NEW SUITS.

George K. Fitch has sued the heirs of Frank Johnson to clear title to property on the corner of Filbert and Webster streets, purchased recently at the Kate Johnson sale.

The California Wire Works have sued the stockholders of the Piedmont Cable Company for $16,826 83, value of steel rails sold to the corporation.

The Bank of San Luis Obispo has sued James T. Murphy for $8712 90 due on a promissory note.

Photographers complain that women's sleeves are so enormous nowadays that the utmost skill has to be used in posing a subject in order to get them into a picture. Somebody devised the ingenious idea of turning the ordinary camera photo sideways, and in that manner the huge leg of muttons get a full show. Bicycle-sweaters with big sleeves are in evidence.
