

THEY CANNOT BE SEEN,

But Gus Spreckels Claims That His Damages Were Very Severe.

HIS FEELINGS WERE INJURED.

Inquiries as to Explanatory Statements Omitted by Reporter Johnson.

The inquiry into the suit for damages brought by Gus Spreckels for alleged slanderous utterances said to have been made by his father, Claus Spreckels, in an interview printed in the Examiner, was resumed yesterday. The plaintiff was questioned by Samuel M. Shortridge, attorney for Claus Spreckels. The examination was on the line of questions in regard to the extent of the damages suffered by the plaintiff. These questions he had previously refused to answer, but was now required to respond by an order of court.

The inquiry took place before Notary Public Eugene Lev. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney Henry Ach. The trend of yesterday's questioning seemed to be toward putting the blame upon the shoulders of the Examiner and the reporter, Johnson. The fact was elicited that no one had told C. A. Spreckels and he did not know that the statements attributed to his father had been made, nor whether the statements as printed in the Examiner were not qualified by explanations that would relieve them of the interpretation put upon them by the complainant.

The examination was opened by Mr. Shortridge, who asked Mr. Spreckels if he still declined to reply to the questions which the court had ruled he need not answer. Mr. Ach objected on the ground that the question was not within the stipulation. Mr. Ach insisted that all questions that the defense wished repeated should be asked. "Except the questions answered," he said, "the defense has concluded the examination. I wish to inform the witness that he is not expected to answer any questions save such specific questions as the court ordered the witness to answer. Mr. Spreckels repeated that he rested on the instructions of the court. Mr. Shortridge then asked:

"You have alleged, Mr. Spreckels, that the immediate result or effect of the utterance of the words 'he has wasted money' has injured your reputation as manager of this plantation company, and you have fixed your damage at $100,000. Will you point out where you were injured?" "I am a general manager of the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company, which company I have managed since its organization in 1884. The position of trust which I held for my father was known to every one. The effect of the words 'he has wasted money' was, therefore, naturally reflect upon my management. I know that I would not have him say $100,000 in regard to my management. Mr. Shortridge: You did not occupy any confidential relation with your father as his manager or agent at the time these words are alleged to have been spoken by him?" "Hereafter I had for many years."

"You say that the use of the words, 'He has wasted money,' affected your position as manager of the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company?" "Mr. Ach objected that his client had been injured, not by that expression alone, but by the additional statement, 'He will soon be bankrupt.' Mr. Shortridge, however, insisted that he wanted to know in what respect the plaintiff considered himself damaged by those particular words, and Mr. Spreckels at length answered:

"As I stated before, having occupied a position of trust for my father, no one is in a better position to know the extent of the damage. Coming from my father such a statement would naturally hurt me. I would not have had him say it for $100,000. In your verified complaint that the utterance of these words has caused you damage to the extent of $100,000, what do you mean by that?" "Mr. Ach explained to the witness that Mr. Shortridge wanted to ascertain whether he (Mr. Spreckels) could point to any specific damage. The question was repeated and the witness replied:

"I cannot point to any specific damage. The damage was to my feelings. An objection was interposed by Mr. Ach. He insisted that the words quoted were slanderous in themselves and therefore must have damaged his client. He said that the court had directed the witness to answer that particular question solely to permit the jury to estimate the extent of damages above nominal damages. Mr. Spreckels answered:

"It is unquestionably did. How do you know from the source it did? To whom was it uttered? To a reporter, Mr. Johnson. I do not know his name or where he lives. Where was he when these words were said to have been uttered in his hearing?" "You have alleged that it was on or about the 23d day of March. Did you know that to be true?" "I saw the publication of it. But you allege Claus Spreckels, your father, in the presence and hearing of blank Johnson, uttered certain words. Did you know that to be true or did you swear to it on general principles?" "I knew it to be true from information and belief."

"What information?" "From information I gathered from the Examiner. I do not know where the words were uttered. They were uttered by him. So you were informed?" "Were you not informed where the interview, if any, took place?" "I believe it was in his house. And uttered merely to the reporter only? I was not told and do not know who was present."

"You were told the time of the interview, were you not?" "I am not sure as to that. What is the source of your information on which you base a positive allegation?" "Mr. Williams of the Examiner. Did they tell you it was in a room where the two were alone?" "Yes, sir. They tell you anything about the conversation that is alleged to have taken place between Mr. Johnson, the reporter, and the defendant?" "Yes, sir. Mr. Williams stated that he had ascertained from the reporter, Mr. Johnson, that the words were spoken by my father to him. Did you see Mr. Johnson and have him verify the statement?" "I did not. Have you ever talked to Mr. Johnson in regard to it?" "I had an interview with him either before or after filing the complaint."

"So that your positive allegation was based on information received from Mr. Williams?" "Yes, I understood that he was Mr. Johnson's employer. During this forenoon the plants and flowers will be placed in order, but hereafter the show will be open from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M. There will be five judges. The exhibits will all be judged today, but the announcement of the premium-winners will not be made until the last day. Exhibits will be judged by the percentage system. All over $80 per cent will receive first premiums and 70 per cent will receive second premiums. The vocal instrumental music and recitations will be special features every evening. The long-distance telephone between Paris and London is now open 24 hours a day. At the rate of $2 for each call, it pays.

MAY INEARTH SKELETONS.

Revival of a Famous Suit Against the Late Mrs. Mabel Treadwell.

WITNESSES ON THE STAND.

Grave Hints of Counsel in an Interesting Resume of the Case.

In the opening statements in the case of Charles A. Loomis against Mrs. Mabel Treadwell, now deceased, and Calvin Somers, yesterday, the attorney for the plaintiff, J. B. Moon, dropped some grave hints as to the character of the sensational evidence that may be expected to be produced in that celebrated case. He said that after Mrs. Treadwell had gained possession of her husband's estate after his death she found herself involved in a number of legal lawsuits. At that time Charles Loomis was a close friend of hers and rendered her much valuable service in her trouble, and all he did for her was inspired by friendship, Loomis receiving no compensation whatever for his services. Mrs. Treadwell at that time procured the services of private detective named Joseph McClintock, and one day the latter made statements to her, the veracity of which were doubted, and Mr. Loomis went out to verify the reports and found that the reports were false. As a result the affair ended in a row between Mr. Loomis and McClintock, which culminated in Loomis shooting McClintock in the cheek, making a serious but not dangerous wound. Mr. Moon said that he would also show that subsequently Mrs. Treadwell made proposals to Loomis, trying to get him to resort to illegal means to assist her in her litigation, which he declined to do. Calvin Somers, a friend of Mrs. Treadwell, was the shooting affray with the exception of his wife, who was in the next room at the time, who heard but did not see the shooting.

These four persons only knew that the trouble had occurred, and all agreed to keep the matter quiet, and did so for a few months. When Loomis and Somers had a misunderstanding on account of certain troubles between Mrs. Treadwell and her mother over the shooting of McClintock, Loomis suspected that Somers had given the facts of the shooting to the press and immediately called Loomis to the attention of what steps he should take in the matter. He was advised to surrender himself and stand trial. Prior to the time of Loomis' trial Somers made a statement that the shooting was justifiable, but when the case came up in the Police Court for a preliminary hearing he declared that Loomis had been guilty of an unprovoked assault to murder McClintock, and his statements were corroborated by his wife, Loomis was tried and convicted, and was granted a new trial and finally acquitted. Loomis immediately commenced suit in Judge Wallace's court for $100,000 damages, but Mrs. Treadwell applied to Judge Wallace for a change of venue, as she supposed that that court was prejudiced against her, and that the case would not get a fair and impartial trial. The attorney for the plaintiff vigorously opposed such measure, but Judge Wallace declined to try the case, saying that he would not hear any civil case if both sides were not satisfied to have the action tried in his court. Mrs. Treadwell's attorneys immediately asked that it be transferred to Judge Finn's court, but Loomis' attorneys would not consent, and it was finally decided to let the matter rest in abeyance until another court should be designated. The case is now before Judge Dingerfield and a jury, which was impaneled yesterday. Fisher Ames and P. H. Pendergrass were examining as witnesses for the plaintiff, but their testimony was not of much importance or bearing on the case, both of them simply making statements which exceeded that of the plaintiff. James A. Watt and J. B. Moon have been retained as the attorneys for the plaintiff, and the defendants are represented by Garber, Boalt & Bishop.

OFF TO MACKA DIGGINGS.

A Party of Miners Leave for Cooks Inlet With C. D. Ladd To-Day.

Rich Discoveries of Coarse Gold on Turnagain Arm, on the South Side. The disgust and discouragement of the miners who are on their way back from Alaska, having been unable to get up the Yukon River, does not seem to have had a depressing effect on others whose plans were laid for a trip to the new gold diggings off Cooks Inlet. A large party of miners, many of them from Fresno and quite a number from this city, leaves for Cooks Inlet under the direction of C. D. Ladd this morning. Mr. Ladd thinks that before the season is fairly open in the land of the midnight sun there will be an influx of several hundred miners from California and the Territories. The new diggings on Turnagain Arm, along the southern arm of Cooks Inlet, were discovered last year by a party of fifteen miners that went up from this city. With their discovery was also acquired the knowledge that by taking the Cooks Inlet route to the gold mines in the interior a tramp of 1500 miles could be saved over the mountain route. This long trip has been a great obstacle. Miners could not make the trip to the mines and back to open country the same year, and to many this is a serious objection. No matter what the luck or success, they had to remain in that desolate region two years. All that is obviated, however, by taking the new route. Then, too, there are thought to be rich deposits of coarse gold all through the mountains north of the inlet and extending east to the one diggings on Forty-mile creek. Mines have also been opened along the Luchina and Knick rivers, and the old miners say the region will develop into one of the richest in the western part of Alaska. There are large fisheries along the coast and on Cooks Inlet, one of the latter being owned and operated by C. D. Ladd of 9 Third street, this city. Mr. Ladd expects to return at the close of the fishing season, but the miners who are going up with him to-day will probably remain through the winter.

POSTPONED THE FAMINE.

Auditor Broderick Calls the Contractors to a Show-Down.

FOUND THEY WERE BLUFFING.

Supplies Are on Call for at Least Two Weeks and the Scare is Over.

Auditor Broderick "called" the contractors yesterday and discovered at the showdown that they were not in the game. Before noon the Auditor could have stood on the ground floor of the rotunda and kissed his hand to the people on Market street from above the unroofed tower, such a big man did he grow immediately following his successful encounter with the contractors. The Auditor only did what he intimated he would do. He told the contractors that if they declined to furnish the City with supplies that would be a fracture of their contracts in the face of which he would decline to audit their bills for April. They read in the morning papers something of his intention to do this, and they were about it. The Auditor anticipated a busy morning and was at his office early. Captain Thomas also looked forward to an interesting session and had gathered together all the claims of the contractors and had placed them on the Auditor's table, and Mr. Broderick was engaged in looking over them when a knock sounded on his door and there were ushered in a number of well-groomed gentlemen, who have occupied a great deal of the anxious thoughts of the City Fathers during the past week or so. There were Messrs. Scott and McCord, the hay and grain merchants, A. M. Ebbets, Thomas Morton and P. Lynch, coal dealers; J. F. English, the potato contractor, representatives of the Pacific Supply Company and T. J. Parsons of the Del Monte Mill Company. They were disposed to be a little haughty at first and indignant at the mere suggestion which they had read in the newspapers that the Auditor might audit the bills for goods which they had already delivered. "But you have notified the City that you will not furnish any supplies to-day. That is a breach of your contract and I have no right to audit your bills if you break your contract." "We are required to know the condition of the treasury before furnishing supplies," said Parsons, "and it is admitted there is no money in it for any further supplies. We don't intend that the City shall get any further into debt to us." "Very well," said the Auditor with aggravating composure. And then he added: "The contract is a clean cut affair without any provisos to it. It requires you to furnish supplies through the year. If you fail to do that I will not audit your bills for April." There was a pause in which these contractors—who for the past several days have been carrying their chins a little higher than usual in their confidence that they had the City where they wanted it—looked at one another in a disgusted sort of astonishment. "One of them intimated that the Auditor could be compelled to audit the bills and that his bondsmen might be held responsible." "Very well," said the Auditor. "The Finance Committee has been trying to find some means of getting this matter into court. It will no doubt please them if you lose the case. They would prefer to be defendant anyhow I am sure." The contractors easily realized that he had the best of it. "If we go on furnishing supplies we will simply lose by it," said Parsons. "I have known plenty of men who lost money by them, but who were, nevertheless, required to complete them." "Suppose we continue to furnish supplies for say two weeks by which time we may get a decision in the matter from the Supreme Court?" "All right," said Broderick. "Will you sign our warrants then?" "I may, I will let you know at that time." "But if you don't promise we stop right here." But they didn't. Broderick stuck close to his text and kept cool about it and gradually the disgruntled contractors clambered down off their perch and got on to a footing with him. Broderick then assured them that there would be some $30,000 in the treasury after the payment of the April bills, and that money would be coming in as fast as time went on. They finally agreed to go on furnishing needed supplies for at least two weeks, and in the meantime they will do something themselves in the way of getting opinions from the court.

WAR TO COME IN HAWAII.

Filibustering Expeditions Preparing to Invade the Islands.

C. W. Ashford Says That Guns May Have Gone and Men Will Follow.

While Sanford B. Dole, President of the Hawaiian republic, is nursing his exhausted brain on the island of Maui the enemies of his Government are actively at work preparing for his undoing. There is no doubt that a storm is rapidly approaching the island republic from the East. Threatening signs can also be seen rising from the West. Telegraphic dispatches from Port Townsend yesterday morning announced that mysterious individuals had purchased a large number of rifles and stores of ammunition from the gun stores in nearly all the cities and towns on Puget Sound, and that even Portland had been drawn upon. Mysterious schooners were reported to have been seen sailing the waters of the sound and rounding the northern headlands seaward bound. It was assumed by those who were watching the movements of the men and vessels that they were bound for Hawaii. "C. W. Ashford, who is one of the most bitter enemies of Dole and his Government, in speaking of the reported purchase and shipment of arms and ammunition, last night said: "It is probably true that the guns have been purchased and shipped as stated, but it is not true that the vessels are under surveillance or will be stopped before they pass the straits. In all probability they are now out on the deep blue sea, safely lost in the broad latitudes of the Pacific." "Can the arms be landed in Hawaii without being taken by the Government?" was asked. "Can't they be landed in Hawaii?" "It is the easiest thing imaginable," he continued. "Landings can be made at forty places or more on the island of Oahu alone. The guns could be landed and hidden in half an hour if necessary. Besides, the people are now all in favor of overthrowing the Dole Government—all except Dole and his fellow office-holders. I wouldn't be afraid to touch the shore and ask the police to help me land the forbidden goods. They are all tired of the present regime." "I have a letter of a late date, in which I am informed that the people are anxiously waiting for the coming of the filibusters who will overthrow the present government." "I am told that Dole knows this, too, and he is breaking down under the strain. He has gone to the island of Maui to rest because he is suffering from an ailment of the head." "Speaking of arms," added Mr. Ashford, "there are several hundred stands of guns hidden on the island of Oahu at this moment. The guns that have gone from Honolulu to the various islands and places. The men to stand behind them will soon follow."

FREIGHT RATES REDUCED.

The Southern Pacific Company Becomes Very Generous.

All Local Tariffs on Fresh Fruit Are Lowered Forty per Cent.

The Southern Pacific company decided yesterday to reduce rates of freight on fresh fruits practically 40 per cent over its rates of last year and the years before. To be sure there is a limit to the territory over which this sweeping and wholly unsolicited cut will be extended. It does not mean that rates on fresh fruit will be cheaper from California terminal points to Chicago than formerly, but it is a matter of considerable importance to orchardists in the valleys and foothills of California, as it affects local freight rates and places the shippers in various districts on an equality with those as main-line points. In the fruit tariff arrangement there are three starting points for main transcontinental lines from California. These are San Francisco, San Jose and Los Angeles, and from them a common rate has been, and will be, charged to Eastern common terminal points. The same rate prevails from all California stations along the main through lines going east from the three points designated. All the branch and other lines not on the direct main routes are classed in the tariff schedule as branches. So, to reach a station on the main line, a local freight has to be paid by shippers of fresh fruits. For instance, shippers on the Napa or Sonoma roads have to pay a local freight to reach the main line, and then a local freight which places the transcantal rate begins. What is known as the local charge is also paid on fruit from Marysville and that district to the main line. So it can be seen that the reduction of 40 per cent on this extra charge will mean a great deal to shippers of green fruit. The through rate, however, will not be reduced. The railroad company goes as its reason for making the reduction that the new system of transportation in ventilator cars reduces the cost, and, consequently, the producer is to share in the benefits.

Stabbed in a Saloon. John Schulz, horseshoer, 1015 Alabama street, near Harrison, had a fight in front of the saloon on Twenty-fourth and Harrison streets yesterday afternoon. Shackleton, a well known saloon keeper, was the opponent of the fight. About a half an hour later they again met in the saloon. They began wrangling, and suddenly Schulz drew a revolver and made a blade about four inches long and made a lunge at Schulz. A bystander fortunately seized Schulz's arm, otherwise the blade would have been a corpse. The blade penetrated his chest about three inches. They were both arrested, and Schulz was immediately dressed at the Receiving Hospital. Schulz refused to prosecute Shackleton, so they were charged with disturbing the peace. He is now in the Receiving Hospital, and is being preferred against Shackleton, as Captain Douglas ordered that a thorough investigation be made into the matter.

YOU ARE ALWAYS COMPLAINING OF HEADACHES. It comes on you in the morning, at 10 o'clock in the evening, at night. You are in despair. Everything seems blue and black. Now, there is a cause for this. There is a cause for all disorders of humanity. A good, strong, vigorous man or woman is in perfect order physically. Just as soon as the blood begins to get thin and watery, just so soon does your system show these dreadful headaches. Headaches are a sign, a symptom of a disordered blood supply. If the blood is poor you are quite likely to know it, especially in the head. When your blood is impure you have nasty pimples. Blood blotches. Vile headaches. You are nervous. You don't sleep. Your liver becomes sluggish. Your stomach gets foul. Your tongue is badly coated. Your breath is foul. You are a run down. You are jaded.

Just as soon as you purify your blood these symptoms will disappear. JOY'S VEGETABLE SARSAPARILLA is a blood purifier. It is a grand discovery. When the word grand is used it is meant to convey to the mind the word wonderful. JOY'S VEGETABLE SARSAPARILLA is really a wonderful prescription. It is a blood purifier and a laxative. Instead of driving the impurities of the blood through the pores of the skin, these impurities are caused to gently run through the proper channels of nature. You don't need to take nasty pills, beastly iodide of potash, mercury or other mineral poisons. When a substitute is offered, when some one tries to talk you into taking something which is just as good as the "pure as blood" contains no niple-producing blood-bleaching, corrosive poisons. Don't be talked into buying a dollar bottle of solid extract of pimples.

JOY'S WITHOUT PIMPLES. SUBSTITUTE WITH PIMPLES. Joy's for the Jaded. Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. All honest, reliable Druggists hand you a bottle of Joy's when you ask for Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla.
