

THE HARRINGTON INQUEST

"Murdered by Persons Unknown" the Verdict of the Coroner's Jury.

LEES AND BUCK ARE AT OUTS.

Accusations Were in Order and All Hands Took the Opportunity Given.

"We, the jury, find that Ellen Harrington, age 45 years, nativity Prince Edward Island, occupation housekeeper, single, residence 1017 Ellis street, City and County of San Francisco, came to her death June 1, 1895, at her residence, from cerebral hemorrhage, and we further find that said death was produced by assault of an unknown person or persons, between the hours of 12 m and 1:30 p. m."

THE SIDE ARGUMENT BETWEEN BUCK AND CAPTAIN LEES. [Sketched in the Coroner's court yesterday for the "Call" by Campbell.]

Coroner's jury in the Harrington case yesterday. This ended the inquest into the death of the woman who was murdered in her home, at 1017 Ellis street, on the 1st inst. The last day of the inquest was replete with incidents. Long before the jurors assembled Captain Lees was in evidence. He took exception to a statement published in an evening paper.

"Did he own a match factory?" "Yes, sir." "Was it burned down?" "Yes, sir." "Was there any insurance?" "No, sir; the rates were too high, and my father carried the risk himself. In consequence he lost everything. After the fire my father came to California and made a new start in life."

home I helped to get him to bed and remained with him until noon the next day. A juror asked, "Had you any conversation with him?" "Yes, I had some conversation, but he appeared to be dazed. When I moved him away from the fence he said 'Where are you taking me?' I said 'Home.' He looked at me a moment and then said, 'This is not the way home.' Finally I persuaded him to come along and got him to the house. His wife wanted to send for a doctor, but the injured man would not hear of it. Finally Miss Buck called a physician, and he pronounced the case very dangerous."

thing I have learned has been submitted to the Coroner, and through him to you. "That it was a murder there can be no doubt. It was a cold-blooded, deliberate assassination, in which a woman was hacked to death and the perpetrator of the crime has so far escaped. The first blow was so heavy that it not only crushed in one side of her skull, but fractured the other side by the concussion. Immense force must have been used to use the murder was a strong, able-bodied man. The first blow killed Miss Harrington, and the other wounds were only butchery."

At the corner of Twelfth and Castro street. "I was on my bicycle," said the witness, "and seeing a crowd, I stopped. Senator Buck was in the middle of the throng and looked dazed. 'Can I do anything for you, Senator?' I asked. He looked at me for a moment and then said, 'Walk to the corner with me.' I helped him to the corner and then he said, 'Take me home.' I got him as far as Grove street, but he did not want to get on the car. The conductor got angry and said, 'I'll leave you here, and you can catch the next car.' I persuaded him to wait a moment and got Mr. Buck on the dummy. I asked the conductor to hold him, and to make sure that he did so I rode beside the car to Adeline street. When I got him
